PASSERS-BY examine debris scattered from the bed of a pickup truck after a collision on Interstate 55 which killed an Arkansas baby and injured three others. In the background is the overturned tractor-trailer truck involved in the two-vehicle crash early this morning.

TWO-WEEK-OLD Theresa Lynn Ingle, passenger in this pickup truck, was killed and her parents of Bald Knob, Ark., were injured when a tractor-trailer truck rammed the back of the slow moving pickup on Interstate 55 early today.

Baby Dies, 3 Injured

A two - week - old girl was fatally injured this morning when a pickup truck and a tractor - trailer truck collided on Interstate 55, 11 miles south of Sikeston.

Three were injured. The rear end crash happened at 4:05 a.m.

The victim, Theresa Lynn Ingle, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Ingle of Bald Knob, Ark. died at the Missouri Delta Community hospital at 5:30 a.m.

She was a passenger in the pickup truck, driven by Ingle, 42, who sustained possible internal injuries. Also injured were his wife, Irene, 36, shoulder and ankle injuries.

The driver of the tractor-trailer truck, Allen Castile, 50, of Imperial, was slightly injured. All were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

The highway patrol said the tractor - trailer truck hit the back of the pickup truck, which was traveling at a slow speed, and knocked both vehicles out of control.

Theresa Lynn was born Aug. 10 at Searcy, Ark. The body is at Jackson Funeral Home.

State Fair Holding Own At Gate

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP)—Attendance at this year's Missouri State Fair appears to be holding its own despite a rainy start Saturday and Sunday.

The current fair's unofficial four-day total through Tuesday was estimated at 135,111, up 3,842 from the four-day count of 131,569 last year.

Today's Sedalia and Kansas City day is expected to give the attendance a shot in the arm. Many Sedalia businesses are closing for the day, a custom of long standing; and several busloads of fairgoers are expected from Kansas City.

Wednesday was governor's day, and Gov. and Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes were on hand.

The governor used the occasion for a news conference and spoke again in favor of paying for future state highway construction by tolls rather than the gasoline tax or bond issues.

"Time is coming when we will need the tax for maintenance of our present roads," Hearnes said. "A bond issue I do not feel would be practical. It is feasible that the users of toll roads would pay 99 per cent of the cost. This approach must be explored first."

A track record was set in the free - for - all pace of Wednesday's harness racing. Early Purdue, owned and driven by Morris Trabert of Douds, Iowa, took both heats of the event, winning the second inthe record time of 2:05. Trabert won the $2,000 purse and the governor's trophy, which was presented by Gov. Hearnes.

$56,000 Cotton Loss

A fire gnawed for more than four hours into 99 bales of compressed cotton and caused an estimated loss of $56,000 early today at the Sikeston Compress and Warehouse, 801 West North.

All but 13 of the 112 cotton bales on a Frisco boxcar were damaged by the fire, B.B. McCaa, manager of the compress, said today.

The car was sealed at 5 p.m. Wednesday for shipment to Bemis, Tenn.

James Beech, a night watchman, discovered the fire at 1:20 a.m. today.

Cotton is valued at about $100 a bale. Damage in the 99 affected bales ranged from a 90 to a 10 per cent loss, McCaa said. In all, the loss was estimated at half the load, or at $56,000. The load was fully insured.

Cause of the fire was undetermined. It could have resulted from a spark thrown by a breaking metal band that binds the cotton, however, that is "only a guess," McCaa said.

"We really have no idea what caused it."

About 14 members of the fire department and eight company employes worked from 1:30 a.m. until 5:30 a.m. this morning unloading the cotton and pouring water on each smouldering bale.

The cotton bales which weigh about 500 pounds each, had been stored in a warehouse three compressed. The fire ate deeply into several bales.

Company workers were still digging into the bales to stop the smouldering at 10 a.m. today.

The box car was parked on railroad tracks north of the compress at a loading dock.

"A white smoke was put out by the burning bales," Fire Chief L.D. Ramsey said. "We didn't use anything but water to extinguish the fire. Each bale had to be rolled off the car and sprayed."

NIGHT WATCHMAN JAMES BEECH discovered the freight boxcar fire this morning in which $56,000 worth of cotton was lost at Sikeston Compress and Warehouse. He stands next to undamaged bales in the car in which the fire started.

AN EMPLOYE of the Sikeston Compress and Warehouse checks a charred cotton bale to see if the fire is out. Ninety nine bales were unloaded from a sealed boxcar, where the fire started this morning.

Waitress' Duties Talked At Restaurant Session

A citywide meeting of restaurant owners and operators, was held Wednesday at the Holiday Inn.

The meeting was in charge of Custer McDonald, director of adult distrubutive education, department of health, Jefferson City, and Mrs. Faye Jeffries, field instructor for the state department, Cape Girardeau.

We feel that the waitress of today should know and realize that her job is a professional one, and should be done in a professional manner, "McDonald said. To be a top waitress involves personal appearance, personal hygiene, courtesy and understanding. It is also necessary to know how to use human relations and proper handling techniques."

Mrs. Jeffries described proper handling of food being served to customers, mannerisms and knowledge of proper procedures from waitress to customer.

A waitress training school will be held at the Holiday Inn in

Signal Trouble Delays Saturn Rocket Liftoff

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) --America's man to the moon program faces a critical test today with a powerful Saturn 1 rocket scheduled to hurl an unmanned Apollo spaceship three-quarters of the way around the world. The aim is to qualify it for a three-man earth orbit flight in December.

The launching of the Saturn-Apollo was delayed beyond its planned 12:30 p.m. EDT liftoff because of a problem in sending teletype signals to a tracking ship. The countdown was in a hold at 20 minutes, with the earliest possible liftoff time 1:30 p.m.

If all goes well on the 93-minute test and there are no other development problems, three astronauts will take a trip of up to 14 days in December to trigger an all-out drive to land men on the moon in 1968.

The Soviet Union launched an unmanned space laboratory weighing nearly two tons Wednesday on an undisclosed mission to the moon, prompting specultaion it might photograph the moon's surface or perhaps land an animal on the moon. A Soviet satellite made a controlled "soft" landing on the moon in February, four months ahead of the United States.

The latest Soviet vehicle, Luna 11, weighs more than four times as much as the 850-pound American Lunar Orbiter, which is now taking pictures of potential astronaut landing sites on the moon.

The pilots for the first Apollo earth orbit journey will be Air Force Lt Cols. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Roger B. Chaffee.

Work to Begin On New Trinity Baptist Church

Construction of the educational building and the interim auditorium at the Trinity Baptist Church is scheduled to begin Sept. 1.

Cost of the project is estimated at $256,000. The contract was awarded at a special business meeting Wednesday evening of members of the church to the Ray Clinton Construction Co., 731 North Main.

The building will be located on a 20-acre tract north of the Joel A. Montgomery home in Sikeston.

The red brick structure will be Williamsburg Colonial architecture, with 132 feet facing highway 61. It will be 144 feet, eight inches deep and will have two stories in the educational section.

Overall plans for the church call for a three-phase construction project costing in excess of $1,000,000. The second phase is expected to be undertaken in about three years.

A permanent auditorium will be built in the second phase, and the interim auditorium then will be used as a fellowship hall.

Third phase calls for the construction of a chapel. Additional educational space is called for in phase two and three. Extensive plans for recreational areas also are planned.

The church was organized Nov. 24, 1965 with a charter membership of 133. Since organization, the membership has grown to

Investigation Continues at East Prairie

EAST PRAIRIE -- No new leads have been uncovered in the mysterious disappearance of a nine-month-old boy, who was missing from his home for an hour Monday.

Mississippi county sheriff officers reported today that an investigation is continuing.

Johnny Higgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Higgins, was set out on his pallet beside the family's garage about 2 p.m. Monday and was found at 2:45 p.m. in the back yard of a family who live two miles away.

The unanswered question is how an infant could travel two miles in 45 minutes. No one has admitted taking the boy from his home to the W. C. Bryant home, where the baby was found.

The Bryant home is at Sawdust corner, east of East Prairie, and the Higgins home is two miles south.

Yorty Accuses Kennedy of Undermining

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Samuel W. Yorty, back home again after a fiery Washington appearance, has accused Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of attempting to "destroy all the friends" President Johnson has in order to further his own presidential ambitions.

"I got caught in the crossfire of Bobby Kennedy's attempt to undermine President Johnson," Yorty told a news conference Wednesday, and added: "In my opinion, he's trying to ride on his brother's fame and his father's loot and take over the United States of America."

The Los Angeles mayor appeared Tuesday before a Senate subcommittee studying the city and its problems and promptly got into an often caustic give-and-take debate with Kennedy and Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., about what the senators described as his lack of leadership.

In Washington, Kennedy responded to Yorty's Los Angeles statements by expressing regret that "Mayor Yorty could not give the Congress the necessary information nor imaginative proposals of any kind."

In the 1960 presidential election, Yorty jumped party lines and failed to support John F. Kennedy, late brother of the New York senator.

DeGaulle Embarks on World Tour

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle left today on an around-the-world trip, including a state visit to Cambodia whose leader, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, has been vociferously opposed to American policy in neighboring Viet Nam.

De Gaulle plans a major speech in the Cambodian capital, Phnom Penh, Sept. 1 in which he is expected to push his campaign for a united, neutral Viet Nam.

Whether he would condemn U.S. policy in Viet Nam from that rostrum was a matter of diplomatic speculation here. He has been critical of it in the past but observers noted he was restrained about the situation while visiting the Soviet Union last spring.

The president, accompanied by his wife, flew from Paris in an American-built DC8 jet on the 22nd anniversary of the liberation of the city by French and American troops.

Although his 27,000-mile trip includes stops in Djibouti, French Somaliland; Addis Ababa, Ethiopia; New Caledonia; Tahiti, and Guadeloupe, his visit to Cambodia-formerly a part of French Indochina-overshad-

Red Chinese Close Catholic Mission School

TOKYO AP -- Communist China ordered the closing today of the Sacred Heart Academy, a Roman Catholic mission school in Peking run by French nuns, the newspaper Yomiuri reported in a dispatch from Peking.

Kensaburo Seki, Yomiuri correspondent based in Peking, said Communist China's Ministry of Foreign Affairs, shortly after teen-age Red Guards broke into the school and hoisted the Red flag over it, informed embassies by telephone that it was closing down Sacred Heart.

The explanation given, Seki said, was that the Catholic mission school was supported by those advocating anticommu-

Pupil Costs Low-Twitty

Lynn Twitty, superintendent of the public schools, told the Kiwanis club Tuesday night at the Rustic Rock that a student "can be given excellent training" in the Sikeston schools for $325 a year compared with a $500 average per student cost across the country.

He praised this country's advanced civilization and gave reasons for it:

The constitution, democratic type of government laid out by the bill of rights, scientific discoveries, a healthyly climate for medical discoveries, creation of six per cent of the wealth of the world and 30 percent of the manufactured goods.

Universal public education and community colleges and universities have brought education to the nation's youth, he said.

Results of the people's brain power give the county one half of the telephones in the work, one half of the television sets, one third of the automobiles and 75 per cent of the bath tubs.

He said that about 25 per cent of the adult educated people are directly or indirectly engaged in jobs related to education, the world's highest.

Costs of the vocational training in Sikeston last year were $14,000,000 of which $650,000 came from local taxes, $750,000 from state aid programs and the federal government contributing to such undertakings as the Head Start program, car mechanics, janitor training, secretarial typing, shorthand, given to adult.

Twitty said that tests given students in the Sikeston schools indicated the value of "high standard teachers" and their performance. These tests indicate that the Sikeston schools graded 13 per cent above those of the national average. He was a guest of George Kirk.

Lonnie Standley will talk to the club next Tuesday night at the Rustic Rock at 6 p.m.

House Ponders Reserve Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House squares off today for a fight over including in a defense appropriation bill authority for President Johnson to call up some Reserves for active duty. The President has not asked for such authority.

The provision was written into the $58-billion bill by the Senate. It was not included in the defense money bill originally passed by the House.

Under present law, the President can call up Reserves only after declaring a state of national emergency, and then they usually are mobilized by units.

The Senate-passed provision would waive the emergency declaration and authorize the President to summon Reservists as individuals, whether or not they were attached to organize units, to take advantage of special skills.

The Reserves provision added by the Senate is not mandatory for the President.

Spokesmen for National Guard and Reserve organizations opposed the proposal. They claimed it would wreck the Reserves.

The Reserves provision was listed as the first order of business for today's House session. It was expected to be opposed by most Republicans and most members of the House Armed Services Committee which now is considering a separate bill dealing with Reserve forces.

Under the Senate provision, Reservists or National Guardsmen could be called to active duty up to 24 months, minus any time previously on active duty for training purposes.

Proponents of the Reserve provision have contended that many draft-age youths have signed up for Reserve and Guard duty to avoid induction for active military service.

They argued that the policy of allowing young men to fulfill their military obligation without the risk of going into combat was unfair to those who are drafted or who volunteer for active duty.

Since the appropriations measure passed by the House and the one approved by the Senate differed, the measures were sent to a Senate-House conference where a compromise was reached Wednesday. Among other things, the compromise included agreement for the House to vote on the Senate's Reserves provision.

The conferees agreed to go along with the Senate provision with modifying language requiring that the identities of Reserve units ordered to active duty be retained and that family and economic status be considered.

While the Senate-House conferees were reaching their agreement Wednesday, the Pentagon provided more details on a military training program announced by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in a New York speech Tuesday.

Under the program, thousands of men who in the past would have been rejected for military service because they did not score high enough in physical or intelligence and aptitude tests, will be inducted.

During their first months in uniform, efforts will be made toward improvement. If there is sufficient improvement, these GIs will remain in service. If not, the trainee will receive an honorable discharge on the grounds that he is not qualified for military service.

Pentagon manpower officials said that the 40,000 men who enter the service under the new program between October and next July 1 will be those now disqualified by substandard scores in military intelligence and aptitude tests. They will get special educational training.

Starting next July 1, when the program begins absorbing 100,000 men a year, men also will be accepted with physical ailments which can be cured in about six weeks. An example would be a man with a hernia, which could be corrected with relatively minor surgery.

The manpower officials said quotas for the program are being worked out among the armed services but the Army will get the bulk of the trainees.

They said the Selective Service is expected to review men classified 1Y—eligible for duty only in time of national emergency or war—and many of these will be among the new trainees.

They said about 200,000 of the 2 million men in the 1Y category probably can be qualified under the new program to meet standards and remain in service.

The officials said 30 per cent, or about 12,000 of the first 40,000 trainees, are expected to be Negro. At present, about 10 per cent of all recruits are Negro.

Meanwhile, an Army report says wide variations from state to state noted from year to year in the disqualification rates for draftees continued last year.

Total disqualifications-- for moral, mental or medical reasons—ranged from a low of 26.1 per cent for Iowa to a high of 59.8 per cent for South Carolina.

The report prepared by the Army surgeon general's office said that for the nation as a whole, the 1965 results of the preinduction examinations "indicate a substantial decrease in the total disqualification rate". 44 per cent, compared with 53 per cent in 1964.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Now that the commercial passenger planes are back in the air, Congress should make passage of laws governing strikes affecting the national interest the first order of business.

President Lyndon B. Johnson should use the enormous prestige of his office or his ability as an arm twister to encourage Congress to act.

The strike of the airline machinists was like others before it.

Any legislation passed during it would have been bad legislation -- hastily conceived to assure a specific result and granting that it would have achieved compliance, it most certainly would have had poor acceptance from striking machinists forced to return to work even temporarily under federal government dictated terms.

Now that the immediate crisis has passed Congress in an election year wants to forget the whole problem. It should instead enact sound legislation when it is not involved in a labor crisis.

It is unfortunate that both President Johnson and Congress both share the belief that people soon forget the inconvenience and hardship suffered during strikes. They both share the belief that it is good politics to do nothing and that the long range needs of the country can be forgotten as far as their popularity with the voter is concerned.

The inflationary result of the strike has not been lost either on the American people or on other ambitious labor union leaders, who have never been known to forget.

The labor leaders will be trying to get more for their members at the earliest possible date.

Since it has been demonstrated that it can be done, they'll be willing to make everybody from President Johnson on down look like fools just as the airline machinists did so successfully in getting a whopper of a settlement.

This process is making a mockery of the collective bargaining but the airline machinists union leaders defend it as being "democracy" at work. It is a form of perverted deomocracy which endangers the rights of the majority of the people.

It may be better that neither President Johnson nor Congress act to protect the public interest.

When public irritation grows greaf enough the people will throw out of office those federal officials, who chose to ignore their well being in favor of cultivating the labor union vote.

The public's patience has grown razor thin and the hope for better labor-management relations grows dimmer every time a union flaunts the public interest and defies the President and the members of Congress with the impunity of the airline machinists.

The President and Congress need to be shown the public's displeasure with their inaction.

If they receive the message at the polls it will come through loud and clear at last.

THE GOLD GAME

BY THE END OF AUGUST, France will probably have converted into gold the entire amount of $146 million which accrued to French reserves during July. That will bring the French gold board to almost $5.4 billion, next to the United States' the largest in the world.

Since the end of 1964, when President de Gaulle announced that France would reduce her holdings of dollars, France has converted a minimum of $34 million -- or 30 tons of gold -- each month. The gold drain is alarming to many American economists, though opinion is not solid. The dollars France redeems ship gold from Ft. Knox to Paris.

When France engaged in the gold game, as money men call it, 73 per cent of her reserves were in gold. A year later the figure was 85 per cent. So far this year the rise has been gradual, to about 86 per cent. The reserve total is about $6 billion.

ACCUMULATION OF GOLD in the United States reached its high-water mark in 1949, when American reserves totaled $24.6 billion. Since then the outflow has been consistent, though occasionally the rate has been reduced. Today the holding is slightly over $13.3 billion, as against well over $13.8 billion a year ago.

The gold drain stems from the chronic American deficit in the balance of international payments. We still sell more abroad than we buy, but that margin is dwindling. And our expenditures for the war in Viet Nam, our massive foreign aid, and private investment abroad tip the balance of payments machine to TILT.

All the efforts of the past three administrations to redress the balance have been insufficient to the task. Some good news came on Aug. 18, when Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler announced that the payments deficit for April, May, and June was only $163 million. This was a trifle higher than the total of $150 hinted a week earlier, but still a healthy cut from the first-quarter deficit of $563 million.

HOW LONG we can play the gold game with France remains to be seen. Already there is pressure in some parts of Congress and some sections of the press to make France pay the $6.5 billion owing to us since World War II.

Most economists say we are skating near the balance of payments abyss. But Eli Shapiro, Harvard Business School professor of finance, recently told an international symposium that short-term claims against the American gold stock have been exaggerated. Too little has been said about the U. S. long-term creditor position in the world, which has risen from $3 billion in 1946 to $55 billion today.

Why is France playing the gold game, anyway? Some say it's a reflection of the ancient French peasant instinct to hoard gold i n times of emergency. More likely, it's an attack on both the pound sterling and the dollar to try to effect currency revaluation.

Edward W. Kuhn, President of the American Bar Association, at its annual convention in Montreal:

"Why will America keenly watch what we do here today and tomorrow? Because America is in desperate need of authoritative advice from the organized bar in the field of human rights and responsibilities. In the light of prevailing conditions, of the 'long hot summers,' we have failed in our duty to the American people, both old and young. Especially do our youth need education in these fundamental principles. We observe small groups of students in effect taking over a large university by simply locking out the school administrators. We hear them cry 'Freedom, Freedom,' yet they demonstrate little awareness that with freedom goes responsibility.

"We see more and more students absorbing the principles of political science, and at the same time more and more young people becoming faceless figures in banner groups whose single-minded purpose seems to be rebellion. Rebellion, as a product of permissiveness and a tool of pressure groups which misunderstand freedom, is a trap and a snare.

"We have withstood teach-ins, lie-downs, lie-ins, sit-ins, mass demonstrations, mass invasion of governmental offices -- including the White House itself--blocking of busy streets, entrances and exits to public buildings, armed groups of citizens espousing opposite dogmas confronting each other in public seizure of private property by force, deadly and vicious riots, and other forms of unlawful protest.

"We hear of self-appointed leaders, both secular and religious, proclaiming in all sincerity the philosophy that it is right and proper to obey only the laws he believes to be just --that he can with moral impunity disobey those he does not believe just. The late Mr. Justice Frankfurter gave the answer to this when he said:

" ' If a man can be allowed to determine for himself what is law, every man can. This means first, chaos, then tyranny.' "

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest puzzle to a husband is his own wife.

She's the greatest mystery of his lifetime, as much of an enigma on their 50th wedding anniversary — if they live that long — as on the day she married him.

How come it is so hard for a husband to understand his soulmate? What really makes his wife so mystifying? Well, practically everything, it would appear.

An informal poll of a nondescript group of husbands asked: "What puzzles you most about your wife?" It produced these answers:

"Why she always has to be the first gal at a cocktail party to kick off her shoes."

"Why she bends over and kisses me on the bald spot on top of my head while I am reading — when she knows this makes me mad."

"Why she wants me to get bifocal glasses but wants contact lenses for herself."

"Why she always insists that we eat at home by candlelight so dim a fellow can't even see what's on the plate."

"Why she always eats those tuna fish sandwiches for lunch."

"Why she only butters the center of our breakfast toast. I like it buttered all over. I've been telling her that for years."

"Why she thinks I should have to give her four weeks' warning if I'm going to bring anyone home for dinner."

"Why she saves all my old love letters."

"Why she only doles me out six bits for lunch, when everybody knows you haven't been able to get a decent lunch for that in Manhattan since 1942."

"Why she always makes me lick the stamps for our Christmas cards. The Lord knows she's got as big a tongue as I have — probably bigger."

"Why, when we split up the Sunday newspaper, she always demands the section I happen to want to read first."

"Why she thinks she knows how the government could balance its budget when she can't even keep ours in kilter."

"Why she'd rather go out in the evening, even to watch a blood transfusion or attend the opening of a delicatessen, than stay home and watch television."

Yes, mysterious are the ways of wives, but ever husband agrees on the one thing that puzzles him most about his particular wife:

"Why she married me in the first place — when, she claims, she had so many to choose from."

WHEN WE WERE a boy there was as much condemnation of cigarettes as there was of liquor. The cigarettes were called "coffin nails" and our grandmother and mother guided us through most of our youthful years afraid of tobacco in that form. At an early age, we can't remember just when, we began smoking small cigars. Likely we didn't smoke more than two a week, but felt sort of grownup puffing on a cigar.

We must have been 18 or close to it when one night our date expressed a desire for a smoke, and we bought a package of Fatimas. As she smoked, we thought we might as well. That was the first cigarette we ever smoked and it didn't create a habit for we very rarely thereafter smoked any.

But in the fall of 1913 we entered the University of Kansas and most all of the boys in our fraternity smoked ciagrettes. As a pledge one of the first things that we remember was being taken by an upper classman to the leading drug store in Lawrence, introduced to a clerk and recommended as being "alright." In case you did not know, Kansas had a law against selling cigarettes and they were bootlegged just like liquor was, though the cigarettes could be bought in respectable places. It appealed to us as so thrilling to lay a quarter on the counter in the drug store and be handed a sack with a package of Camels in it, we soon got "hooked" with the habit.

Camels could be bought in Kansas City in those days for 10 cents a package, but brought 25 cents in Lawrence. Our fraternity house would have some of the members buy a suitcase full of cigarettes in the city and then retail them to the brothers.

The years passed and from a slight beginning the habit worked on us until we smoked not less than two and a half packages a day, and many days three packages. Lots of times we would light a cigarette and look down in the ash try and see the remains of one still burning.

Forty years passed and we won't estimate the thousands and thousands of cigarettes we smoked, nor the hundreds of dollars we spent on them. Then came New Year's Eve, December 31, 1952. We took sick that evening, an not from what the date might infer. It was the old fashioned flu. For several days we were so sick we didn't want to smoke, and then we got better. Realizing we hadn't smoked in 1953, we decided we'd quit long enough to get the nicotine out of our system. Phil Donnelly had named us to his staff of honorary colonels and we went to the first gathering of these gentlemen, carrying two packages of cigarettes, for we felt we had done without smoking long enough. But before we ever lit one, we found ourself bragging to another colonel that "We haven't smoked this year." And we are still bragging and it's not far from 14 years now.

We cannot remember there being as many makes of cigarettes when we were a boy as there are now. Pall Malls were on the market but they were 100% Turkish tobacco then, packed 10 cigarettes to the box, and selling for 25 cents when other cigarettes were only 10 cents. Fatimas had an unusual taste and many thought some kind of dope was put in them. Egyptian Deities were a dainty cork tipped (not filter), oval shaped cigarette. Camels looked just like they do now, even the package was the same. Our older friends remember such brands as Sweet Caperal, Omar, Home Run, Piccayune, Lord Salisbury, Piedmont, Nebo (10 for 5¢), Benson and Hedges.

Like a lot of other boys we started smoking early, but not cigarettes. First there was corn silk, then mullen, grape leaves rolled into cigars, buggy whip which burned your mouth with every puff, catapa beans, and doubtless other things we have forgotten. Old women smoked pipes, but it was a rare thing when a young housewife or a girl smoked, the one who got us started being an exception.

Tobacco chewing was very popular but we never cared for it. Our uncle, for whom we are named, made the statement frequently that no one would make a good printer who didn't chew tobacco.

Nearly every town had a cigar factory, sometimes more than one. There was a cigar factory in Shelbina when we came in 1926.

PRIVACY INVADERS

A massive invasion of personal privacy is underway in our country. Numerous careful studies have confirmed its existence and shown its extent. The makers of the studies run the gamut from "left" to "right" of the ideological spectrum. They all find the same pattern.

The worst invasions of privacy are those for which government is responsible, since government has the power to force individuals to answer its questions under penalty of fine or imprisonment, or to prosecute individuals on the basis of information gained by privacy invasion. But too many private business corporations are also guilty of privacy invasion, particulary of their employees, through the use of such techniques as the personality test and the so-called "lie detector."

A man's personality and private life are strictly his own business. So long as he injures no one else, no other person should probe him against his will. To be sure, the private business concern has a right not to hire, or to discharge, persons who will not bare their souls on order. But it is very poor practice, and will result in the most talented individuals going elsewhere.

Privacy invasion by government can take the form of "mail covers," electronic spying, or simply too-detailed census questionnaires that recipients are required to answer. The federal government already has much information on every American. We should take care that it is never brought together into the kind of "dossier" which the secret police of totalitarian states like to use. A central file of this kind on every citizen has actually been proposed, but so far rejected. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- This column owes an apology to Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., regarding the recent account of his trip to Miami -- with his two sons-- in which it was stated that he double-billed the Senate Internal Security Committee and the Citizens Committee for a free Cuba $153.72 each for the trip.

Sen. Dodd did take his two sons, together with his assistant, David Martin, Martin's wife and two children, to Miami under interesting circumstances. But a refund was given to the Cuban Committee. Here are further details, some of them complicated, but illustrating the manner in which one senator maneuvered with the taxpayers' money.

The trip took place in 1965 during a Senate Internal Security Committee investigation friendly to Gen. Wessin Y Wessin, the Dominican strongman who was bucking the state department's attempt to set up a civilian government in the Dominican Republic. Sen. Dodd and Roman Hruska, R-Neb., of this committee seemed intent on lining up against the State Department on the side of the military. For some reason best known to the senators, their investigation was taking place in the swank Eden Roc hotel, one of the most expensive in Miami, instead of the rent-free federal building in Miami where hearings are traditionally held.

The invitation to Sen. Dodd, Mrs. Dodd, and assistant Martin came from Paul D. Bethel, secretary of the Citizens Committee for a free Cuba, who now complains that Dodd was not invited by the Citizens Committee but by the Cuban representation in exile.

THE FAMILY IS INCLUDED

After the invitation was issued, Martin telephoned Bethel to ask if Tom Dodd, Jr., couldn't come with the Senator and Mrs. Dodd. The Cubans said fine and sent him an extra ticket. At this point Martin decided that since he and the Senator were going to the Wessin Y Wessin hearing, he could charge his own ticket to the Senate Internal Security Committee and use the free ticket donated by the Cuban Committee to take his wife to Miami.

After inquiring around among the airlines, Martin also found that the first-class ticket given him by the Cubans could be used under the family plan, tourist class, to take his wife and two children. This was done.

At the last minute Mrs. Dodd decided not to go. So Dodd exchanged her ticket for one for Jeremy Dodd, his second son. Thus, thanks to the generosity of the Cubans, plus a smart exchange of airline tickets, Sen. Dodd, his two sons, his assistant, David Martin, Martin's wife and two children all went to Miami and all stayed at the Eden Roc, where their expenses were paid by the Cubans.

While in Miami, Dodd, who is a member of the Senate Subcommittee on Immigration, received an invitation from President Johnson to go with him to New York to sign the immigration bill.

The ceremony in New York was to be on Sunday, Oct. 3, whereas Dodd's speech before the Cubans in Miami was to be on the preceding Saturday night. The Senator was invited to fly from Washington to New York on the presidential plane, but he had to get to Washington by Sunday morning. The only plane he could take left Miami shortly after midnight, arriving in Washington about 4 a.m. This interfered with the Senator's sleep.

So he asked Michael O'Hare, his accountant, to call the air force to see if a special plane could fly him from Miami to Washington Sunday morning. The air force agreed.

WEEKEND RUINED

Dodd then came back with a second request that his two sons also be allowed to fly on the air force plane. The air force refused.

When this message was conveyed to Dodd, the Senator almost screamed. He protested vociferously that this had ruined his entire weekend.

In the end the Senator took the air force plane alone from Miami to Washington, joined the presidential plane there and flew on to New York for the signing of the Immigration Bill.

After he got back, Dodd found himself with one unused round-trip ticket between Washington and Miami which had been supplied him by the Cubans. This was because he had gone to Miami at the expense of the Internal Security Committee and returned at the expense of the air force. So Dodd instructed his accountant, O'Hare, to get a refund on the unused round-trip ticket.

Since this ticket had been issued by a Cuban travel agency in Miami, it was impossible for O'Hare to get a refund direct from the airline involved. He had to go through the Cuban travel agency. When he did so, the agency wrote back asking whether the Senator from Connecticut would like to have the money returned to the Cuban friend who had paid for it in the first place.

Obviously it was embarrassing for Dodd to say no. O'Hare wrote back that this was agreeable.

Thus this column was in error in reporting that Dodd collected twice on his round-trip ticket between Washington and Miami. Our apologies.

The column in question, however, was not in error on other details, including the manner in which Dodd paid for the $150 dinner at the Eden Roc and then, displeased at the size of the dinner check, had his assistant telephone the Cuban Committee asking for a refund. The refund came in the form of a $150 check No. 701, Oct. 4, 1965, on the account of the Citizens Committee for free Cuba.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

McNamara: Nation Calling on Negroes t o Fight Abroad Must Give Minorities Full Opportunity at Home

It is not generally known that the Dept. of Defense is the world's biggest employer of labor. I asked Secretary Robert McNamara, as the head of this vast system, to comment on his department's impact on labor and its policies in handling such a vast force. Here is his reply:

By Robert McNamara
Secretary of Defense

Washington, D.C.: I a m pleased to be able to accept Mr. Riesel's invitation t o contribute this guest column. Managing the Department of Defense is, in so many ways, a question of applying human resources to national needs. This, of course, means labor.

As the largest employer in the world, we have a natural interest in labor, just as labor has a natural interest in us. For without the efforts of the many millions of Americans who work with us -- either directly or indirectly -- there can be no effective Defense Department. Human resources available to the government are our most priceless resources. How we use them demonstrates, as perhaps nothing else can, the kind of country we are.

The primary mission of the Department of Defense is to keep America strong. But our large effort also contains a moral obligation. The money, the resources, the labor that are used in the defense effort must be expended in accord with our principles and our traditions. This means that the Defense Department, in partnership with industry, must provide labor with equal opportunity for all. Not only must the nation be defended -- our heritage must be defended as well.

This was the thinking which prompted President Kennedy's Executive Order 10925, issued in 1961. Its guiding principle is clear and simple. Industry, in fulfilling the government's contracts, must give the same equal opportunity to labor, without regard to race, creed, color or national origin, that the federal government insists upon in its own operations. There must be no discrimination. There must be no bias. There must be equal opportunity for all.

The directive was not without a bite to it. A vital clause stated that the government could cancel a contract were it determined that discrimination was being exercised in the fulfillment of that contract. It has been the policy of the Department of Defense to buy at the lowest sound price, but we all agreed that price was unacceptable if it meant the exclusion of some Americans from their birthright.

The vast majority of American industry was eager to comply. But compliance was not a simple matter. For the more one looked at the problem, the more one realized that its roots lay in a whole social structure.

Equal opportunity does n o t come from segregated local unions.

Equal opportunity is not born out of Negro ghettos.

Equal opportunity finds no home in poor housing, inadequate education, inferior training programs.

To comply with this order, in short, meant a government-wide effort as well as an industry-wide effort. To comply with this order meant, in fact, a compliance with the promises of the American Constitution.

The statistics for the 1964-65 non-white employment in the first 100 companies enrolled in industry's voluntary Plans for Progress program have been encouraging. While the total employment in these companies has increased 6.6 per cent, the increase in total non-white employment increased 19.1 per cent.

Yet, in as expanding economy, the gains in non-white employment by these 100 companies have not been reflected on a national basis. These companies have shown what can be done, but the great national imbalance in truly equal opportunity, opportunities within the whole spectrum of management and labor, still remains a challenge for what must be done.

If the obligations of citizenship require a non-white citizen to serve in battle, he must also be able to serve, without discrimination, in industry.

If a Negro can become an officer -- and hundreds have -- equal opportunity should mean that he can also become an office manager.

In short, we must build our country as we build our strength. It would be a hollow thing indeed if, in the act of building our defenses, we overlook the very principles which we have set out to defend.

When you come down to it, basically, we are defending an idea. This, in essence, is what the Defense Department is all about. We are apt to think in terms of the tangible expression of that idea -- the land itself, its resources, t h e physical bounty of our country. But America would be just another land without the concepts that govern it. The very heart of that concept is equal opportunity for all. Deny the concept and you deny America. Deny the concept and there is no true America to defend -- only a latitude and a longitude, which could be any other land by any other name.

If we hope to realize our promise of the future, we must keep our promise with our past. Almost two hundred years ago that promise was spelled out in the Constitution. Today it is spelled out once again in President Johnson's bill for civil rights.

Many problems must b e solved before equal employment, not only in defense related industries, but also throughout the country, becomes a reality. Some of these problems are social, some are economic, some are political.

But the great encouragement is that we are going ahead with the task, and industry is going ahead with it. The results are beginning to be reflected in communities throughout the country, where it is being discovered that opportunity is not diminished by the sharing, and that if democracy is to have its true meaning, it must mean the truths it has vowed to defend.

Most important, one gets the feeling that industry and the whole country are beginning to recognize the right of equal opportunity -- not just because the government says it has to -- but because it is just.

Food Prices Up This Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Food prices took another jump this week. The predictions offer little hope to harried housewives.

Bread, milk, egg and butter prices have been up sharply; grain, vegetable and fruit supplies have been cut by the weather, and increased labor costs are showing up on everything from lettuce to watermelons.

Butter prices this week were the highest since 1952.

Margarine, salad oil and shortening prices have been inching upward, reflecting the shifting demand for a lower - priced spread.

The forecast now is for short crops of corn, peas green and wax beans and cherries, with higher prices, both now for the fresh varieties and later when the canned and frozen ones move to market.

There is, however, a big pear crop.

Meat prices this weekend are mixed across the country.

Choice beef ribs are down in the Pacific Northwest, but up about 1 cent a pound in California. Veal is down 3 cents in Portland, Ore., but up 1 cent in San Francisco.

Pork is down in the midwest, but up on the West Coast.

Turkey is being featured in many areas, reflecting the larger supplies.

Astros End 24-Inning Drouth With 7-2 Victory

A's Take Two From Boston, 4-2 and 8-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Houston, held scoreless for 24 innings, launched a three-run rally in the fifth inning Wednesday on the way to a 7-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in the Astrodome.

Kansas City, meanwhile, captured both games of a doubleheader against Boston on the East Coast, winning the first game, 4-2, and the second, 8-3.

The A's scored all of their runs in the first game in the sixth-inning on a walk, Mike Hershberger's double, an error and a three-run homer by Roger Repoz. Jim Nash got credit for the victory, his eighth against one loss, although he needed help from Jack Aker over the last three innings.

Lew Krausse went the distance in the second game, allowing the Red Sox only 5-hits, while his teammates backed him up with an 11-hit attack including two-run homers by Ed Charles and Jim Gosger. Hershberger also drove in two runs on a single. Krausse has now won 10 and lost 7.

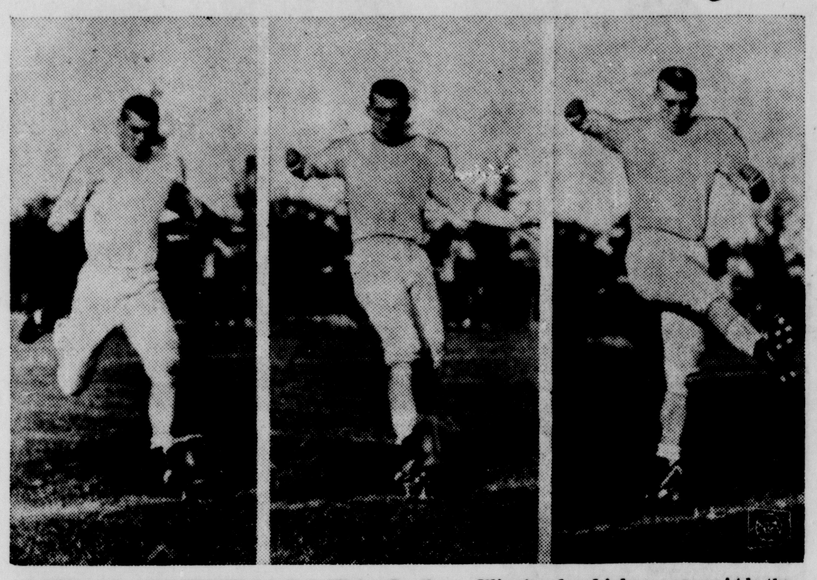
Campy Campaneris was thrown out twice attempting to steal a base in the first game, but was successful in two attempts in the second to boost his total to 38 for the season.

Bob Aspromonte sparked the Houston victory by singling in a run in the fifth to trigger a three - run rally and singled again to score two runs in the sixth in a four - run rally.

The Cardinals were able to collect only five hits off Mike Cuellar who recorded his ninth victory in 15 starts. Larry Jaster was the loser.

The Cardinals are idle today.

Kansas City plays Boston in another doubleheader with Paul Lindblad, 4-6, and Johnny Odom 2-3, scheduled to face Ed Fischer, 2-9, and Dennis Bennett, 2-2.



RISING TO NEW HIGHT-S is Bob Hight, Southern Illinois placekicker now with the Buffalo Bills. Hight was born without a right arm and lost an eye in a childhood fall. But he is very much in the competition for the job vacated by Pete Gogolak.

WILD BILL IS HAPPY!!!!!

Dolphins Take On Fourth Consecutive Loss

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Miami Coach George Wilson, whose Dolphins were beaten by Denver 28-16 Wednesday night, apparently sees a silver lining after his team's fourth consecutive exhibition defeat.

"I think our boys are coming around," said Wilson, after the game.

The coach of the American Football League's newest team noted that the Dolphins' 16 points were the most they have scored this year, while Denver's 28 were the least scored by an opponent.

"We just let them pick up a couple of cheap ones in the first half," he said. "In the second half, we gave a better defensive effort-particularly Frank Emmanuel and Willie West."

The scoreboard backed him up. Denver scored all 28 points in the first half while Miami rebounded with a touchdown and a safety after the intermission.

Denver Coach Mac Speedie said the Dolphins were a "very underrated" team, adding: "They're going to surprise a lot of people."

PITCHING - Vernon Law, Pirates, fired six innings of scoreless, one-hit relief in a 3-4 victory over Philadelphia, that sent the Pirates back into the National lead.

A. State Returning 12 Lettermen, Depth and Experience Are Lacking

JONESBORO--Arkansas State Head Coach Bennie Ellender will be considered a miracle man in football circles if he, and his A-State coaching staff, can pull the Indians through with a winning record this season. Although the Indians finished with an unbeaten 7-0-2 record two seasons ago and last year tallied a respectable 6-3 slate, the Redmen will be hard pressed to come near those marks this season.

The Indians will have only 12 lettermen returning, with a total of 19 letters among them, to face one of the toughest schedules in recent Indian history. Included in the schedule are Ohio Valley foes Tennessee Tech and Murray State, Gulf State opponents Southwestern Louisiana and Louisiana Tech, Southland cousins Lamar Tech, Abilene Christian, Trinity University and Arlington State, and independent Florence State.

Nineteen lettermen were lost by graduation, including the entire first unit, with the lone exception of quarterbeck Terry Gwin turned halfback for this season, and five starters off the second unit.

The Indians' major problem will be lack of depth and experience at all positions except quarterback. The Indians will be changing to the use of offensive and defensive platoons instead of using platoons which played both ways as in past seasons.

The brightest ray in the Redmen's future is the return of last year's defensive secondary led by ALL-SLC safety Dick Litchey. The trio intercepted 17 passes and held Indian opposition to less than 66 yards per game through the air. The returning halfbacks are three-year letterman Bryan Caplinger and sophomore Gary Hankins.

A-State's chief offensive experience will also lie in the backfield. Gwin, last year's leading rusher with 534 yards for a 4.9 per carry average, will return, as will the team's leading passer, Tim Keane, who hit on 27 of 67 passes for 326 yards. Keane, who like Gwin will be a senior this season, will have sole control of the signal calling duties.

The fullback will probably be 185-pound junior Steve Gankiewicz, who lettered last season as a halfback. Benny Winford, a two-year letterman, will man the other halfback position.

The A-State offensive line will be filled with new faces. The only certain returning lettermen is tackle Dwain Glenn, a 219-pound sophomore. Gerald Jumper, last year's leading pass receiver, will see duty as the split end. Virgil Peyton is slated for the tight end position. However, David Wagnon and Dennis Zolper, both freshman redshirts, are putting up a good battle for starting end positions.

Coach Ellender will go with Jack Smith at the other offensive tackle position. Smith is a 210-pound redshirt. The starting guards will probably be Dennis Roberts, a 220-pound junior transfer, and Sid Trammell, a 6-5, 230-pound freshman.

The center position will be manned by Ran Worthen, a 6-5, 225-pound junior squadman who was impressive in spring training.

Leading the defensive linemen will be linebackers Truman Moore and Bill Bergey. Moore, a 6-1, 218-pound senior, is the club's most experienced lineman with three letters. Bergey is probably the team's fastest lineman, and lettered last season as a noseman.

Eugene Thompson, 6-0, 224-pounder, is slated for the noseman slot, while Dan Buckley and Charles Hinrich are the leading defensive tackle candidates. All three are freshman redshirts.

The defensive ends will be Steve Puryear, a junior who lettered last season as a guard and linebacker, and Tom Howard, a junior transfer.

The Indians' success will depend greatly on the success of transfers and incoming freshmen, combined with the improvement of the numerous freshmen redshirts who will be heavily counted on.

Jim Brown the Actor Is Through With Football

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON, England—(NEA)—Stage 10 on the movie lot in Boreham Wood was made up to look like the inside of a World War II army stockade.

There is an ennui to movie making that an outsider can't grasp. It's like the real army where you always hurry up and wait.

The real pros take it in stride. Lee Marvin, Telly Savalas, Charles Bronson, Clint Walker and John Cassavetes sit at the long, prop-loaded dinner table. They turn the emotion of a tense scene on and off like an electric switch. With them is Jimmy Brown. He's casual, too.

"He's a beautiful man," said Cassavetes, an intense, talented actor who has also directed fine films. "I think he'll become a better actor than he was a football player.

"When he came into the picture, I didn't know he was Jimmy Brown the football player. But he comes prepared. And you have to. This is the most competitive business in the world. If he can get by in this bunch of guys, he can do O.K. any place."

Brown's acting career began when he was in Los Angeles two and a half years ago to play in the Pro Bowl. He got a phone call asking if he'd like to play in a western. It was an opus called "Rio Conchos" and Brown's part was mostly flexing his muscles.

"I tried to be relaxed," he recalled. "I tried to deliver my lines easy, to fit in. Here I've got to do more than fit in. The challenge of acting changes as you get a little more astute. I'm trying to compete, to live the part."

Does he find the competition an extension of the same thing he experienced in football?

"It's as hard as playing a game. It drains you. You're just as tired. Actors like to zing you, as they say. They like to surprise you within the confines of the script and bring out the real response in you.

"You have to meet these challenges by zinging back. When you have two actors in a scene and they're really zinging and it's real, the audience senses that realness. And then you come out with what we construe as a good picture."

It seemed possible that the other actors, experienced in their craft, might help him over the rough spots.

"That went out with grade school," scoffed Marvin. "He doesn't need any help. He just has to be Jimmy Brown. He has a tremendous opportunity because he's the first Negro actor to come along that the average man in Watts or Harlem or the Detroit ghetto can identify with. He looks like them and slouches like them and talks like them. Not like Sidney Poitier, who goes around all day talking Shakespeare."

And this is why I think that Jimmy Brown, at the age of 30, is through with football and will stay in his new medium. He has a commitment from Paramount Pictures for another film, with an option for two more. He is convinced there is room for him as a Negro leading actor. 8-18-66

Baseball Meeting Opens

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball's major leagues open their annual summer meetings in Chicago today with such items on the agenda as:

Who's going to pay Marvin Miller's salary?; clarification of the White Sox proposal to relax rules limiting major leaguers playing winter baseball.

The Major League Players Association proposes to tap the players' pension fund to pay their $50,000-a-year executive director, Marvin Miller. Among those attacking this plan is Art Allyn, White Sox owner.

"It's illegal," he says. "It makes the pension plan illegal for tax deduction and can endanger the whole pension plan, one of the finest programs anywhere."

Miller currently is paid through dues of the Players Association.

Allyn also is opposed to any agreement with the National Collegiate Athletic Association to hold off signing baseball prospects until their college classes have graduated. Presently, the majors cannot sign a collegian until after his sophomore year.

The majors are expected to approve a contract that would send one major league club to Japan on tour every other year, alternating between National and American League teams.

The White Sox have proposed that major league players be allowed to play winter ball at any time during their first five years in the majors. Currently, winter ball is limited to players in their first three years with a major league club.

Red Tape Creates Hardships for Wives of Missing Servicemen

EDITOR'S NOTE — The wives of some U. S. fighting men missing or captured in Viet Nam must tangle with red tape and what seems to them bureaucratic indifference. Here's a report on what can happen when a service wife suddenly finds herself in a legal limbo.

By JOHN T. WHEELER

NEW YORK (AP) — Wives of U.S. fighting men missing or captured in Viet Nam say they sometimes must shoulder bewildering burdens because their husbands have become legal "nonpersons."

Some of them contend they have been forced to tackle walls of red tape and bureaucratic indifference in carrying the load.

When a man is declared missing or captured, his status falls into a gray legal area, somewhere between alive and dead. He can not act for himself, and his wife or dependents can't act for him, except in special circumstances.

Major complaints reported by next of kin include:

— Problems in making ends meet because money the serviceman had been sending home stops and the pay he was getting is frozen. It can take weeks or months to unfreeze part of it.

-- A federal income tax bureau refused to process a joint return unless the wife somehow got the signature of her husband, who had been shot down over North Viet Nam.

— The woman was forced to sell the family car because she couldn't get new license plates without her husband's signature.

Wives and children who are entitled to free medical treatment can't get it sometimes in emergencies because they are not allowed to live on military bases.

— Attorney fees to solve legal problems directly related to a missing man's or POW's status must be borne by the families.

— Only bare-boned, sometimes confusing reports are issued by the Defense Department concerning the fate of lost men. Many doubts are cleared up only after families ask congressmen for help.

A Pentagon spokesman said such problems are "normal things that must be put up with when a man is missing or captured. Anyone with someone missing in action or captured will hit snags."

He said the Pentagon does its best to give families the full details of casualties. Complaints, he said, must be the exception.

Each service maintains a casualty assistance office to help dependents in whatever way possible after their men become casualties, the spokesman said.

He added later, "But don't write anything that will bring a flood of letters or calls. Its not so much that they (the offices) couldn't handle it, but there is no requirement for it. It would create unnecessary problems."

Instances of problems faced by families have cropped up in reports from a recently formed civilian group seeking to protect POW's legal rights, and in interviews of some wives by The Associated Press.

Names of the missing men and their families are ommitted to prevent the Communists from confronting captured men with reports of difficulties encountered by their dependents. The Defense Department declines to make public information about the men for the same reason.

One woman who tried to get quick cash from the Air Force after her husband was shot down reported, "One officer at the base told me to go on relief because he couldn't give me the money.

"It was only a couple of weeks before Christmas and I said, 'You've got to be kidding me.' But he wasn't."

She had been getting a regular postal money order from her husband in addition to a monthly allotment of $200, a deduction from his pay arranged by the serviceman.

Told she could not draw against her husband's pay, which was accumulating in a special account, the woman threatened to go to the newspapers. She also wrote President Johnson. She says she got the money and a letter of apology from the Air Force.

The troubles of some service wives came to light during the past two months after Patrick McGahn, an Atlantic City, N.J., lawyer, formed the Society for the Defense of American Prisoners.

McGahn's original interest was in trying to get American lawyers into North Viet Nam to defend American fliers, then threatened with trials as war criminals.

He says that more than 100 wives and parents of missing men called or wrote him, many complaining of their treatment by the government. Some enclosed copies of their correspondence with the military and congressmen.

With some 400 Americans missing in the Viet Nam war, McGahn suggests the services could pool resources to provide highly trained personnel that could regularly visit dependents, explain their rights, help with filling out forms, offer legal advice and aid them in dealing with government agencies.

If a GI is killed, then such things as real estate and other property pass to dependents together with special payments from the government and money from insurance policies.

To ease the threat of red tape, the services encourage Viet Nam-bound men to give their wives general powers of attorney — permitting them to act for the husband legally no matter what comes up. But some wives report this doesn't always solve the problem.

A Pentagon source said men who try to make out valid powers of attorney from Viet Nam cannot do so in 23 states which insist that the documents be witnessed by a notary public of that state or have other restrictions.

Many men are sent to Viet Nam with only a few days notice and don't get around to clearing up all their personal affairs.

Some men balk at filling out powers of attorney or assigning nearly all their pay to their wives for a variety of reasons.

One is that an unscrupulous woman could put everything in her name and then sue for divorce.

Some men have said their wives just don't have the needed business sense. Many decline to act for the same reason other men refuse to make wills. They don't want to admit even indirectly that they may not be coming back.

The Pentagon spokesman said the Army has an aggressive and effective program to get its men to do their best to insure that wives will not run into unnecessary problems. He said the Navy and Air Force have not done nearly so well. The overwhelming majority of missing and captured men are Navy and Air Force fliers.

School Bells Jingle Nation's Cash Boxes

By SALLY RYAN
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) —School bells are ringing bells on cash registers for the nation's merchants.

The back-to-school crowd pays more than $3 billion each year for Fatman lunch boxes, Beatles writing tablets, plum hiprider skirts, the longest dipping all the way down to the top of the knee; white texture hose, long dazzling earrings, honey-hued corduroy jeans, red stretch tights, plaid school bags and fake fur hassocks.

It's the biggest thing next to Christmas for the stores.

Take a look at a few school girl figures:

Eugene Gilbert Youth Research, in a study for Seventeen magazine, sampled 5.8 million high school girls last year and another 618,000 who were off for their first year of college.

The college girls spent a total of $289,277,000, an average of $468.07 each, the survey indicated. The high school girls averaged $231.17 each, a total of $1,340,822,000 getting ready for school.

The survey estimated the girls bought more than 33 million pairs of shoes, sneakers sandals, slippers and boots, 27.5 million blouses, 22 million skirts, 13 million dresses and 8 million sweaters, along with 8 million coats.

The Boys' Apparel Buyers' Association, Inc., estimates boys 6 to 18 spend $510 million to $575 million each August and September on clothing.

This year indications are the figures will be even larger — there are more teen-agers and some prices are higher.

That is why discount stores and fashion houses are sending out back-to-school catalogs, putting kicky clothes in display windows and spending thousands of dollars on fashion shows.

"It's a time of major expenditure," said Melvin E. Dawley, president of Lord & Taylor, New York.

Dawley estimated that the back-to-school and Christmas sales combined accounted for half of the year's business in children's departments, with Christmas sales about 25 per cent larger.

In Philadelphia, retailers are promoting tape recorders for class note-taking. A Chicago department store suggests a black and white mod room with vinyl pillows for studying. Denver stores report a brisk business in pots for boiling water for coffee or tea. Hair dryers are promoted as back-to-school items in Cleveland.

A Southern California chain is advertising bookcases, beds, desks, bedspreads, lamps and related items, and a St. Louis store is advertising student desks and chairs.

Woman of 71 Flushes Robbers With Club

KANSAS CITY, Kan. AP - It was when one of three young robbers hit her over the head that 71-year-old Mrs. Garnet H. Smith got mad.

She grabbed a club from a wastebasket and chased them out of the house. In their haste one of the robbers dropped his .32 caliber pistol.

The men entered the Smith home Tuesday night while Mrs. Smith and a house guest, Mrs. Nettie Pearce, 70, of Houston, were out to mail a letter.

Mrs. Pearce went into the house while Mrs. Smith was parking their car and was forced to turn over her billfold, containing $6.

When Mrs. Smith came in, she told the bandits she had no money. One struck her on the head and forced her into the bedroom. There, she seized the club and struck one man. He ran and the other two followed. Mrs. Smith suffered a cut on the scalp.

This Shouldn't Happen to Anyone

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) - After eight years delay by broken legs, assorted childhood mishaps and childbirth, Mr. and Mrs. Arden Miser and their eight children finally set out on a vacation trip.

They and the family dog headed for a rented cottage at Higgins Lake.

About 25 miles from home a rear wheel on the loaded family station wagon started to lock and a short time later exploded.

Miser walked to a telephone to call a tow truck. Mrs. Miser and children stayed in the car.

"Then I heard a crackling sound," she recalled. "I looked back and smelled smoke. Then I saw it."

She took the children, aged 1 to 12, to the side of the road just as the car burst into flames.

"We saved nothing, not even my purse which was beside me on the front seat," she said.

Fishing Ground

Dogger Bank is an isolated shoal in the North Sea off the coast of England. It is 160 miles long, 60 miles wide and 50 feet below the surface of the sea at its highest point. A well-known fishing ground, it gets its name from the Dutch "dogger," meaning a trawler, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Journeymen Win First At Jackson

JACKSON -- The Journeymen, a newly formed Sikeston folk-singing group, won first place in the Jackson Homecoming talent show Tuesday night.

The group is composed of Larry Bond, guitar, Russell Felker, guitar; Malcolm Lee, bass; and George Gilmore, banjo. The prize was $25.

Gilmore was unable to sing with the group Tuesday as he was employed out of town. The Journeymen will compete Saturday night with other contest winners for the grand prize.

Trouble Mushrooms

LOS ANGELES AP - Mrs. Tak Woo's problem with her car is mushrooming.

She said Tuesday she didn't know whether to take it to a mechanic or a gardener when she found a crop of brown and white mushrooms sprouting from the floor matting.

She decided on a mechanic who said, "It looks like there may be a leak in the air conditioner which makes the carpet damp."

And if repairing the air conditioner doesn't do it?

"I'm on my third crop," says Mrs. Woo. "If only I could be sure they were edible."

Training Program for Draft Misfits to Start in October

By BOB HORTON

WASHINGTON AP -- The armed forces will embark in October on a special training effort designed to bring up to required military standards many poorly educated or physically deficient youths.

The Pentagon provided this starting date and listed the training bases for the program Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara envisioned Tuesday as an aid to the services as well as a benefit to American society.

Men ordinarly disqualified for military service will undergo what the Pentagon described as "supplementary or intensified training" to bring them up to minimum standards.

This schooling will take place at regular military training centers around the country.

But exactly which individuals will be affected and what kind and periods of training they will undergo before being accepted or rejected for a full military tour were not fully spelled out by the defense chief.

McNamara offered no clues when he mentioned the program as a military-social mission in a speech to Veterans of Foreign Wars in New York.

He said 40,000 young men would receive the "supplementary" training this fiscal year and 100,000 annually thereafter.

The defense chief said it is hoped up to 85 per cent of the trainees would then be retained for military duty. McNamara said the program would not affect the present draft standards.

Pentagon sources said the trainees would be sworn into the armed services, just as draftees and enlistees are. Those trainees unable to meet the armed services standards after the training period would be given an honorable discharge as unqualified, it was explained.

The sources also said that the new program would have no substantial impact on draft quotas. "This merely will provide us a bit bigger pool of qualified manpower for the military," one spokesman said.

The Pentagon said the program will be conducted at these bases:

Army — Ft. Dix, N.J.; Ft. Jackson, S.C.; Ft. Knox, Ky.; Ft. Gordon, Ga.; Ft. Polk, La.; Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.; Ft. Ord, Calif.; Ft. Benning, Ga.; Ft. Bliss, Tex.; Ft. Lewis, Wash.; Ft. Bragg, N.C.; Ft. Campbell, Ky.; Ft. Sill, Okla.; Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.; Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

Navy — Recruit training centers at San Diego, Calif., and Great Lakes, Ill.

Air Force — Lackland AFB, Tex.

Film Maker Takes Cue From Disney

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What's he trying to be — another Walt Disney?" asked a local observer of producer Ivan Tors.

The Budapest-born movie maker would like nothing more than to achieve the success with family audiences that Disney enjoys, but he is doing mighty fine as Ivan Tors.

Look at his activities:

Two high-rated television series, "Flipper" and "Daktari."

Three movies for the summer-fall season — "Around the World Under the Sea," "Birds Do It," "Namu, the Killer Whale!" plus another shooting in Africa and six in preparation.

A four-stage studio in Miami and an underwater studio in the Bahamas, where the Tors team filmed the wet scenes of "Thunderball."

Africa, U.S.A., where 500 wild animals are trained for movie work.

The difference between Disney and Tors seems to be that while Walt works with animals that are cartooned or automated, Ivan prefers the real thing.

"It all began when I was making 'Sea Hunt,'" said the producer. "During the years of filming we were exposed to sharks, killer whales and all kinds of supposedly dangerous fish. But the only real encounter was when a barracuda bumped against a man's chest. The man was wearing a St. Christopher's medal which the barracuda apparently thought was a fish."

Tors was intrigued by the apparent willingness of the sea beasts to tolerate the presence of human beings. He continued research with land animals as well and is now convinced that man and beast can coexist.

"The approach is simple," he explained in his MGM office where he works surrounded by photographs of his four-footed and finny friends. "There was antagonism between man and animals during the centuries that man was a hunter.

"But now that hunting is no longer necessary, there is no problem in establishing a friendly relationship. The important step is to pass through the boundary that exists between different species."

He accomplishes that by putting the animal on a long chain and allowing it to grow accustomed to the presence of humans.

Tors figures he can train almost any animal in a year's time, and he constantly seeks new challenges. Right now he is teaching a tiger and a police dog to work together! They may costar in a future Tors production.

Soviets Imprison Six For Religious Acts

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has sentenced six members of a Baptist sect to prison terms of unspecified length on charges of "antisocial activities" and influencing childrens' minds with books containing "nonsensical notions on reality."

The newspaper Teacher's Gazette said Tuesday that the trial took place in Rostov-on-Don but did not say when.

According to the paper, the sect organized a street demonstration last May 2 and disrupted public order not only by the demonstration but by baptizing 40 young persons in the Don River. One of those baptized was a girl member of the Young Communists' League.

The paper said she and another girl "behaved bitterly and fanatically in court" during the trial.

The sect leaders set up an illegal Sunday School "in which illiterate and fanatical teachers taught 'God's word' to children 8 to 11 years old, and persistently and systematically accustomed them to a religious outlook," the Gazette said.

The May 2 baptism came on a Monday immediately after May Day which happened to fall on a Sunday this year. The indictment charged the sect with holding meetings that conflicted with official Soviet holidays — all of which come on Sundays except for May Day and the Nov. 7 anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The Baptist sect was accused of influencing young minds through books that contained "nonsensical notions on reality, a disbelief in everything noble and good—they convince believers that there is no happiness on earth and never can be."

One defendant was described as engineer P. D. Belenky who gave Baptist lectures while on business trips. Three others were listed as Zhovmiruk, Bolgovya and Yerisov. Two were unidentified.

The paper did not say whether there was any connection between this Baptist sect and another one at Mtsensk, near Orel, denounced last May 22.

The Rev. Alexander Karev, general secretary of the Baptist Union in the Soviet Union, said the one based in Mtsensk was small and fanatical and regular Baptists disapproved of it.

The Russian, with more than 500,000 members, is the second largest Baptist community in the world after the United States.

Many Baptists at the American Embassy have attended services at the Moscow Baptist church and sung in the choir.

Execution Stay Sought For Collie

By JOHN VINOCUR

NEW YORK (AP) — The city is having second thoughts about Pete the collie, the dog it said must die for nipping one neighbor too many.

Pets, like people, should be able to confront their accusers, a city corporation counsel argued Tuesday. Pete, he said, never saw his.

The city asked for an order returnable today in State Supreme Court that would send the case back to the Department of Health for new hearings and give Pete a chance to prove he is playful, not predatory.

The department had ruled earlier that the 2-year-old collie must be destroyed under state law as a vicious dog. Three bites is the limit set by the statute.

The collie's owner, William Jones, 17, says Pete is just a happy, lively dog who likes people. He contends there is no proof he actually bit anyone.

Asst. Corp. Counsel Irving Gerstman requested in his petition that Pete's case be returned to the Department of Health "with full right to cross-examination and representation by counsel." The department has already agreed to hold new hearings.

Pete was saved last week when State Supreme Court Justice Daniel J. Fitzpatrick issued a temporary stay after Jones, backed by a lawyer and a group of placard-waving supporters, went to fight the death order.

Jones said all Pete would do was clamp his mouth around somebody's arm or hand — a show of affection, rather than a full-fledged bite.

Pete is spending his days at an animal shelter run by the Society for the Prevention for Cruelty to Animals.

His young master says he looks unhappy.

FAIRFIELD, Calif. -- Staff Sergeant Wendle L. Payne, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dowdy of Rt. 1, Essex, Mo., has been awarded the U. S. Air Force Airman's Medal at Travis AFB, Calif., for heorism at the voluntary risk of his life while serving at Tan Son Nhut AB, Vietnam.

Observing an RC-121 aircraft burst into flames while parked on the flight line, Sergeant Payne rushed forward with a fire bottle and extinguished the flame. Braving the hazards of open fire and intense heat in the proximity of thousands of gallons of highly volatile fuel, his actions are credited with saving that aircraft and three others which were parked in the immediate vicinity.

Sergeant Payne was also decorated with the 11th through 15th oak leaf clusters to the Air Medal for meritorious achievement while participating in sustained aerial flight as a combat crew member in Southeast Asia.

The sergeant, presently assigned to Travis, is a member of the Military Airlift Command which provides global airlift, air rescue, aeromedical evacuation, air weather and air photographic and geodetic services for U. S. forces.

Sergeant Payne, a graduate of Bowyt High School, is married to the former Rose M. Connely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Connely of 20 Mallory St., Henderson, Nev.

Sergeant First Class (E7) A.B. Ledbetter, Non-Commissioned Officer in charge of the U. S. Army Recruiting Station, announces that the Sikeston office will resume normal office hours again effective September 6th. The hours will be 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. Monday thru Thursday. Friday and Saturday mornings are reserved for appointments only. Due to annual leave and treatment at the hospital, Sgt. Ledbetter has been unable to maintain normal office hours, the past month. Please call GR1-3419 for appointment.

Pfc. Rayburn Wilson of Morehouse, Mo. is fulfilling a vital assignment with a special group selected from volunteers to serve with the 102nd (Ozark) Infantry Division (Reinforcement Training Unit) in the support of the national rifle and pistol matches conducted by the National Rifle Association at Camp Perry, Ohio, from Aug. 13 to 27.

The 102nd is one of the Army Reserve divisions chosen by the Department of the Army to augment the support for this "World Series of the shooting world" this year. The national matches bring together the most celebrated marksmen in the world and the competition with the rich tradition it has developed since 1907 requires a unique ability to complete a number of complex tasks to support it.

Men of the 102nd are operating ranges on which record marksmanship scores are drawing the attention of noted weapons designers and manufacturers. Some 1,100 from nearly every state are part of this special augmentation for the range support command. They will return to hometown Army Reserve volunteer functions Aug. 27.

Important School Data

The enrollment fee for all elementary students is $1.50 grades 1-6. This fee is the same as in previous years and it is used to provide weekly newspapers, art and writing supplies, workbooks, and other materials needed for the instructional program. Elementary students are asked to bring their enrollment fees on the first day of school.

Class "A" lunches will be available to students in all schools (grades 1-12). In addition to the regular menu, a variety of ala carte items will be available to Senior High students. Due to the increased cost of food, the increased cost of food service equipment, supplies, and related services, and a drastic reduction in the amount of surplus food commodities provided by the federal school lunch agency, it would be impossible to continue the quality maintained in the past without a small increase in the cost to the student. Consequently, the price of meals for this year will be 30 cents for elementary children (grades 1-6); 35 cents (grades 7-9); 40 cents for Senior High students. Milk will be 3 cents per carton. Children are encouraged to buy weekly meal tickets, especially in the elementary grades.

Student insurance will be available in the Sikeston Public Schools. It is included in the enrollment fees of students in grades 7-12. The cost of insurance for elementary students is $1.75 for an extended "coverage" policy which protects the child during school time only. The insurance is optional but it is strongly urged that all children in school are protected by some type of accident insurance. 24-hour, full coverage is also available to elementary students (grades 1-6) for $9.00.

The school insurance is selected by a 10 member committee of parents and teachers and is made available to all public school students as an added service. Parents of elementary students who are interested in this insurance protection will be sent insurance folders which explain the insurance and provide envelopes to return the premium if the insurance is desired. Please do not send premium money by your child on the first day of school.

Whynot Citizens Say Why Not Whynot?

WHYNOT, N.C. (AP) — Why did they name Whynot Whynot? "Why not?" says Mrs. M. C. Auman, who's lived about 60 of her 73 years in Whynot. "They couldn't think of anything else."

"At least that's what my mother told me," adds Mrs. Auman. "And that's the story most folks agree to."

Elderly J. B. Slack, born and reared in Whynot, agrees. Sometime before the turn of the century, he says, Whynot's menfolk got together to name their community.

"They suggested a lot of names and couldn't agree," says Slack. "It got later and later. Finally, somebody said, 'Why not call it Whynot?' So they did."

Whynot is two miles from Seagrove, three miles from Jugtown, eight miles from Erect, 13 miles from Ether, 15 miles from Star and 32 miles south of Greensboro in the rolling hills of central North Carolina.

You can miss it if you're not careful because someone tore down its only road sign. The only building on the highway bearing "Whynot" is the Whynot Upholstery Co. It is the community's only real industry. Most of the residents farm.

Nobody's sure exactly how big Whynot is.

"It's all according to how far you want to extend it. A lot of people live in these hills," says Slack, a retired regional director for the Farmers Home Administration.

How many people does Whynot have?

"Let me think a minute," said Arden Macon. "There are a lot of children born recently that I haven't seen. I guess there's anywhere from 75 to 150."

Whynot, says Mrs. Slack, used to be on the old plank road from Winston-Salem to Wilmington on the coast.

"And Whynot," Slack recalls, "had one of the best schools in North Carolina years ago. It was Whynot Academy and was a boarding school. It went through the seventh grade and attracted students from all over this part of the state. A lot of people knew about Whynot because of that school.

"But the schoolhouse burned in 1915 and only the church was left beside it. Then some years ago, they removed the post office and made the mail address Seagrove."

Seagrove has several hundred people, several stores, the post office, and it's on a major highway, U.S. 220.

"But the people in Whynot are proud," says Slack. "They don't like to be known as being from Seagrove. They want to be from Whynot."

ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

by LYNN TWITTY

Although we make every effort to encourage each student to select a program of study in relation to his ability and needs and to work to within reasonable limits of his ability, at some time during the later years of his or her's high school career the student must assume these responsibilities for himself. Teachers can encourage but the student must do the work.

Parents will sometimes tell teachers "make my child work." This we can not do. Teachers can assign the work and encourage the student to do it -- to inspire him in numerous ways -- and mark him on the quality of the work which he does, but "making" the student work is an impossibility.

It is fortunate that most students do assume responsibilities as they mature, physically and mentally, into adulthood. Some acquire a sense of responsibility and self direction even earlier. Some never do.

This is an area in which the parent can be most helpful. Their counseling with their child, their interests in scope and quality of his work, their encouragement and concern, their insistance on reasonable time devoted to it can be the deciding factor in most cases. We are always glad to work with students in bringing about these desirable outcomes but we can not "make" them do it.

School attendance gets better each year. Last year's school attendance has been better than 95%. Obviously it is of tremendous importance that a student be in school every day that school is in session. He can not participate unless he is present. It is difficult to make up this work which is missed. Only the exceptional student does it. We encourage parents to see that their children attend the first day of school and every day thereafter, if they are to receive the educational benefits to which they are entitled and for which the taxpayer is paying.

The educational programs which our Board of Education operates with federal funds will provide many services for the children and adults of the community which would not be possible if they had to be financed from local tax sources.

Not only do the federal funds aid the disadvantaged child or adult, which is their primary aim, but they also permit us to provide better education for all children through some of the services and specialists financed with federal tax money. All teachers or administrators employed to instruct in or manage these federally financed programs, are paid on exactly the same schedule in relation to qualifications, experience, and total hours assigned as are teachers who work in the regular day program grades 1-12.

Businessmen in the areas where community colleges have been established are unanimously of the opinion that these colleges have encouraged the growth of industry in the area and that the general business climate is improved. Much of northern Mississippi's recent industrial growth has been attributed to a parallel development of community colleges in their area. This is a desirable outcome in addition to the primary purpose for establishing community colleges -- that, of course, being to provide educational opportunities, both academic and most important vocational training opportunities to students above the high school level. Many of those who begin in a 2-year community college could not nor would not initially enroll in a 4-year college. This is because they can live at home and commute at much less expense and can in many cases hold down a job at the same time. Those who succeed in an academic program can then, and in most cases they do, transfer to a 4-year institution.

Of a total budget of $1,141,189.35 spent by the Board of Education last year for the community educational program, only $632,776.22 was paid in direct current taxes by local taxpayers. The remainder of the budget came primarily from the state and federal government. Our per average pupil cost here was $397.63 for the 1965-66 school year. This includes all cost but capital outlay, the lunch and the activities programs. The average per pupil cost for the state of Missouri was near $500. The national average per pupil cost was about $560.

The seven schools in the state of Missouri which provide training for licensed practical nurses sent their graduates to Jefferson City last month to take the State Board Examination prior to receiving their license. Graduates from our program in Sikeston ranked first in average scores with all eighteen candidates scoring far above the mark required. The average score of the Sikeston candidates was 623.6 while the average of the next highest school was 586.7.

The passing score for each student was 350. None of our students scored below 540 while the highest individual score for the Sikeston trainees was 722.

We are proud of this outstanding record and offer our congratulations to the trainees and to our very capable director of LPN Training, Mrs. Claire Eisenbach and her assistants.

We assume that all of these trainees will receive immediate employment as has been the case with all members of past classes.

(CINCINNATI): After the opera, a bejeweled matron approached the impressive looking man and, after a moment's hesitation, asked, "If I am not mistaken, have I not the honor of speaking to the renowned bass?"

Flattered, the bass nodded and said, "And what can I do for you, madam?"

"Well, I seem to have lost my husband," she replied. "Would you be so kind as to call out 'Charlie!' at the top of your voice?"

Five-Mile Run Daily Healthy for Heart

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Perhaps the best way to avert a heart attack —or to survive one — is to run five miles each day.

That's the opinion of a 51-year-old heart specialist who practices what he preaches. He runs about five miles every morning.

"The heart is a muscle, and it needs exercise like any other muscle to stay healthy," says Dr. Carleton B. Chapman.

The best exercise for the heart, he believes, is sustained running or riding a bicycle.

Dr. Chapman, who smokes an occasional filter cigarette, is a professor of medicine at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School at Dallas. He is immediate past president of the American Heart Association.

Dr. Chapman has been running regularly for 13 years, and he plans to continue indefinitely.

He makes the point that such exercise must be done daily or at least four or five times a week to be effective.

"Heavy exercise taken sporadically, or only once in a while, could do more harm than good" by sudden overloads on a flabby heart.

The key, then to treating a heart attack patient is what he calls "carefully graduated activity."

After a patient is able to get out of bed, Dr. Chapman has him walk a mile or two a day. This is stepped up to slow running or jogging a mile in the morning and a mile in the evening.

If all goes well, the patient gets into the routine in time of running, walking or riding a bicycle four or five miles a day.

"The important thing is a program of sensible stress on the circulatory system."

He said he began thinking about a possible correlation between inactivity and heart trouble when he learned that the death rate in the United States from coronary problems is five or six times what it is in Sweden, where people are considerably more active.

His thinking was spurred on by a study he read of in London, which said conductors on the double-decked buses have significantly less heart trouble than the drivers. The conductors are constantly climbing up and down the vehicle stairs, while the drivers just sit in a seat for hours.

"Being a scientist, I'm not in a position yet to say categorically that physical inactivity is related to coronary trouble. But I believe that it is," he said.

He added that one reason why American women suffer fewer heart attacks than their white-collar husbands is possibly that they are much more active doing housework and looking after children.

Sen. Stuart Symington

SENATE SEEKS FAIR MILITARY SERVICE AUTHORIZING LIMITED RESERVE CALL-UP

During times of relative peace, when our country is not engaged in actual hostilities, and when the military manpower pool is relatively large, the military service of a young man who is drafted is roughly equivalent to that of a young man who enlists in the Ready Reserve program.

The draftee serves on active duty for two years, then has a four - year reserve obligation.

Under the Ready Reserve enlistment program, a young man may enlist in the Reserves for a period of 6 years, six months of which is spent on active duty for training purposes.

Under present law, the Ready Reserves cannot be called to active duty unless the President declares a national emergency exists; and then members cannot be called individually, only in entire units.

When we are actually engaged in a shooting conflict, as at present, but no emergency has been declared, and no Reserve or National Guard units called, the burden is unequal. I say this after comparing a draftee, who is inducted and fights in Vietnam, with a Reserve enlistee whose active duty under present circumstances consists of 6 months training only.

In efforts to spread the military obligation on a more fair and just basis, the Senate has now passed a measure which gives the President authority to call individuals from the Ready Reserve without having to order an entire unit into service. If the House of Representatives concurs in these views of the Senate, the President would be authorized to order to active duty, for 24 months, individual members of the Ready Reserve who, except for their 6-month training program, have not otherwise served on active duty. Their six months of training would be counted as part of their 24 months of active duty.

The measure would apply to only about one - fourth of the Reserves, because only about 580,000 have not seen active service. Of these, there are some 133,000 who have not even had the six months of training duty required, this in turn because of the large influx of persons in the program and a shortage of Army training facilities.

In order to achieve fair treatment among the members of the Ready Reserve who might be called to active duty as individuals, the Senate proposal states that consideration should be given to both family responsibilities and the essential nature of the civilian employment of the reservist in question. Similar consideration is given eligible draftees under the Selective Service System.

Apart from the obvious reluctance on the part of the Administration to declare a national emergency, we are told that one reason no Reserve units have been called is because of the lop - sided effect it might have on certain communities. For example, a unit call-up could take as many as 200 or 250 men from a town of 800 or 900.

There would be much less impact on such a community if, say seven or eight men of a National Guard or Reserve unit were called. In all probability no more than that number would be called from a particular unit because the remainder would have already served on active duty, therefore would not be affected by the Senate - passed measure.

Senate action resulted from an amendment to the Defense Appropriations bill offered by Senator Richard Russell of Georgia, Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. The Senate adopted the amendment, 66 to 21. I supported it because I believe it offered a more fair and equitable program to the youth of America.

Cow Ponies Give Way to Motorcycles

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP) — The beep-beep and putt-putt of little cycles has replaced the pounding hooves of cow ponies at a livestock operation in this old West town.

A livestock sales pavilion has its cowboys riding the cycle trail instead of horses after learning that five gallons of gas takes a rider farther than a bale of hay.

It's cheaper, said a pavilion official, and much easier on the men.

"You wear out a horse pretty fast," said Frank Mapel Jr., a spokesman for the firm. "They get tired and they're hay burners."

Cattle brought in for sale are herded between scales, sales pens and "sold" pens by men on cycles.

One problem that has cropped up is that a cycle-mounted cowpoke isn't much taller than the cattle. Unable to see the herders, cattle sometimes turn and plunge back toward a drover.

In that event, the riders quickly abandon the cycle to the pounding hooves of cattle and take to the closest fence, just like in the days of yore.

The pavilion started using cycles three years ago and has worn out two motorcycles so far. The men are holding up well.

Cycles need few repairs, usually require only gasoline and oil, and never need a veterinarian.

"It costs 75 cents to a dollar a day to feed a horse," said Mapel. "I can't tell you how much it costs to operate one of these motorcycles, but five gallons of gas goes quite a ways."

Busy Month Expected in Viet Nam

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — In the view of some military men here, the North Vietnamese have taken over major fighting on the Communist side and may be expected to launch a new offensive before the monsoon season ends in the fall.

The expectation is for an active September on the war front, and for the Communists to do all they can to disrupt South Viet Nam's Sept. 11 election through military means, terror and sabotage.

This is the picture that emerges from people in a position to reckon the situation:

The North Vietnamese suffered military setbacks all over South Viet Nam in late June, July, and again this month, but are thought to be regrouping for a fresh drive in the central highlands while the moonsoon rains continue.

Hanoi continues to send troops south, mostly via the major infiltration route through Laos and some through the demilitarized zone separating North and South Viet Nam.

U.S. commanders can detect no change in Hanoi's war strategy nor any variation in tactics.

For this reason, they expect a highlands drive in an effort to achieve a long-sought goal —to sever South Viet Nam at its waist.

Five regiments of North Vietnamese regulars are known to be operating in the Chu Pong Mountains which straddle South Viet Nam and Cambodia at the central plateau border.

During late June, July and early August, U.S. troops launched a series of "spoiling actions" which hit some of these regiments before they could get a highlands drive off the ground. Notable among these actions were Operations Hawthorne and Paul Revere I and II.

The North Vietnamese now are thought to be regrouping and resupplying at the Cambodian border for a fresh rainy season attempt.

Conestoga "Stogies"

The word stogie to denote a certain type of cigar, often of the low-priced type, stems from a shortened form of Conestoga, a city in Pennsylvania noted for its cigar production, as well as its wagon factories, in the 18th and 19th centuries.

Long Calls For Banks to Aid Farmers

MEXICO, Mo. -- U. S. Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Mo) today said Congress must pass legislation to create rural electric and rural telephone banks "to assure the rural electric cooperatives of access to non-government growth capital in the years ahead."

The Senator spoke at the annual meeting of the Consolidated Electric Cooperation, which serves rural communities in Audrain, Monroe, Montgomery, Boone, and Fulton counties.

"During the next 15 year," Senator Long said, "the rural electrics will need $9.5 billion for new and improved facilities. This money is necessary if the rural electric cooperatives are to keep pace with the growing power needs of their consumer-members.

"The banks will ultimately be owned, operated, and controlled by the borrowers, whose capital would replace that provided by the federal government from repayments on existing Rural Electrification Administration loans."

Both Senate and House agriculture subcommittees have held public hearings on the bill which Senator Long co-sponsors, but neither subcommittee has given final approval.

Senator Long said: "history shows that depressed agriculture has a depressing effect on the entire national economy. Farmers are among the best customers for the goods and services of American industry."

STILL ON THE WEDDING CIRCUIT, newlyweds Luci and Pat Nugent were on hand for the marriage of Patsy Derby, a distant relative of Luci's, at the Georgetown Presbyterian Church in Washington Aug. 21. It was the second stint as a bridesmaid in two days for Luci, who took part in the wedding of one of her own bridesmaids in Austin, Tex., the day before.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

THE COSTS OF SECRECY

The present great system of governmental secrecy and its concomitants of intelligence and counter-espionage have had adverse effects upon both the individual and the political freedoms of Americans which are obvious, though also, unfortunately, non-measurable. It has had some effect in hampering free scientific enquiry. This limits the individual freedom of the scientist to pursue his goal of ascertaining truth; it restricts the political liberties of the rest of us to enjoy, in our own defense, the fruits of an alert and powerful scientific advance. It clogs to some extent our technological progress. It reduces the individual liberty of the armaments manufacturer to advertise his wares, and secure acceptance of his products; it adds to his managerial difficulties and his costs. It is probable that for some scientific-technical defense projects, as much as one-third or more of the money costs may be absorbed by the direct and indirect requirements of security. If, as is generally the case, the money costs are passed back to the taxpayer, then they reduce his individual liberties by that extent, while they diminish his political liberties-his interest in defense-by the extent to which they hold up technological deveopment of improved weapons systems.

Secrecy has personal and social consequences which are not negligible: The classified research contract divides academic communities, reduces their freedom of thought and communication, introduces the great class distinction between the "cleared" and the "uncleared." It erects barriers within the most intimate of social organisms, the family, by dividing husband from wife. Probably few who have not engaged in top secret work can appreciate the personal and social and educational consequences of a situation in which a husband cannot even mention to his wife or children the matters which engage his whole working time and energy.

Secrecy affects the political liberties of all. It closes off, not only the operations of the secret agencies, but the work of the most important organs of public policy formation from the scrutiny of the public for whom they profess to act. The classification system was recently defended by a government spokesman on the ground that after all it made little difference, since most of its secrets, while hidden from the public, were disclosed to the public's representatives in executive sessions of the Congressional committees. The representatives could adequately guard whatever public interest there might be in the information. This, of course, quite overlooks the important public interest in checking upon the representatives; it is another example of the tendency of modern big government to revert to authoritarian concepts which, while acceptable in the early days of parliamentary and representative institutions, when legislative sessions were normally secret, seem hardly consonant with the free society of today.

No Wonder Dog Became Lost

PHILADELPHIA (AP) --When Jim Stockton found a lost dog he decided to find its owner.

Reading an inoculation tag on the dog's collar, he called a veterinarian in Los Angeles. The vet told Stockton the dog's owner had moved to Bethpage, N.Y. When he called there, Stockton was told the owners had moved to Plainview, N.Y.

He called Plainview but the owner, J. F. Brennan, had moved again.

This time Stockton found him -- just two blocks from his home here.

(OMAHA): WHY NOT COLOR HIM FRACTURED?

It happened in Council Bluff's: Mrs. B. had a bit of an argument with her husband on the subject of paint for the living room. He wanted beige. She wanted pale blue.

Later, a resigned Mr. B., with pail of pale blue paint in hand, stepped up on a stool and began to work.

The stool wasn't as strong as it looked. It collaspsed. Mr. B. fell flat on his back. The pail tipped over, covering him with paint from head to foot.

Hearing the crash, Mrs. B. hurried in from the kitchen. Her look of concern slowly faded when she saw the paint. She gazed at it for several seconds.

"You know, honey," she said, "I think you're right. Let's try the beige."

"SCHOOL'S OPEN," REMINDS THE AUTO CLUB OF MISSOURI

The population explosion means more children than ever before will be making the journey to the classroom this Fall. This is why the Automobile Club of Missouri is launching its 34th annual "School's Open" campaign by reminding motorists to "Drive Carefully."

Many children will be attending school for the first time, unaware of the hazards in crossing congested intersections, streets and highways. "After a summer of fun and play," said Auto Club Safety Director Stan Keesling, "children sometimes forget to exercise that extra degree of caution necessary when going to and from school, and it is up to the motorist to watch out for children."

In stressing the need for all drivers to be "child alert" this Fall, especially in the vicinity of schools and playgrounds, the Auto Club will post 14,000 posters and will distribute 20,000 bumper strips throughout its territory. In addition, the "School's Open" safety message will be carried on motel and shopping center marquees and on the side panels of milk cartons.

Mr. Keesling urges all drivers to cooperate with members of the School Safety Patrol in protecting their classmates. He points out the need for increased safety consciousness on the part of motorists in areas where there are no School Safety Patrols or other means of protection provided to safeguard school children.

Cooperating with the Auto Club in the Fall Safety campaign are city and police officials, school authorities and AAA garages and service stations throughout the area.

Help make this September the safest back-to-school month ever. Remember, "School's Open — Drive Carefully."

Dow-Jones Plunge Watched Closely by Small Investors

by SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK AP -- The plunge of the stock market has been called a crisis in investor confidence. The drop of the Dow-Jones Industrial average below the 800 mark could be a psychological setback. That's because stock market watchers -- whether shareowners or not -- put faith in these neat round numbers.

It does little good to tell the general public that Monday's drop of 12.59 points in the index of 30 leading industrial stocks is not an average drop of $12.59 per share by any means, but less than $1.25. Nor will the public turn to other indexes tailored to come closer to actual dollar values in recording upswings and downturns.

What the public notes is that just six months ago the Dow industrial was pushing close to a fantastic figure of 1,000 and has now dropped more than 200 points —somewhat mysteriously, since business statistics continue to climb. The long flirtation of the Dow industrials with the 800 mark -- first on the uptick in the earlier years, and now on the downswing -- captured public fancy.

It was Feb. 28, 1964, that the Dow industrial index finally closed above the 800 mark for the first time, after repeated near-misses. And from then until this spring the bulls had things pretty much their way with the Dow going to 995.15 on Feb. 9 this year. But they couldn't push the Dow to the mystic 1,000 point, despite general public expectation. And the bears have finally shoved it below 800.

What the public will note about the behavior of the Dow industrial average Monday was that the 12.59 point plunge wasn't just a tilt caused by one or two weak sisters. Of the 30 stocks on the index, 20 hit new low prices for the year. And the other 10 were well below their record highs.

How the small investor and the general public reacts will be watched closely.

The market professionals also watch the Dow's performance, but with a difference. Many are now saying that technically the market seems oversold. And the big drop, along with heavier trading, may be setting a base from which at least a temporary recovery can be expected.

Investor confidence has been shaken since spring by the many uncertainties clouding the future trend of the economy. But of late the big bearish element has been tight money. This has pinched the home building industry, may have contributed to the drop in auto sales, and clouds prospects for future corporate profits.

With interest rates at the highest point in 40 years, investors are turning to opportunities offering bigger returns with less risk than do most common stocks. And the difficulties investors have in guessing the course of the Viet Nam war makes stock buying less attractive.

A campaign will be started in this city today to rid Sikeston of rats and mice. Frank P. Beaver and his assistant, L. L. Reynolds, are at the Dye Hotel, preparing for a general annihilation of the rats, in co-operation with the health department. The plan of annihilation is through the use of Barium carbonate. It is an odorless, tasteless mineral poison that may be fed to rats in doses too small to be harmful to human beings or domestic animals.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

He took Peter, John, and James with him and went up into the hills to pray. (Luke 9:28, NEB)

PRAYER: Our Father, we feel Jesus so near when we remember that He sat by a lake, ascended mountains, watched sunsets, loved trees and flowers. We pray that we may draw still nearer to Him and that He may abide in our hearts forever. In His name. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My aunt owns some pretty good show horses and she is a fair horsewoman herself. When her husband died three years ago she worked out her grief by devoting all her time and energy to the horses.

Yesterday her favorite horse fell in a hole, broke two legs and had to be destroyed. Auntie went to pieces. She called the family together and it was like a wake. When she started to outline her plans I could not believe it. She wanted to have a regular funeral for the horse, a minister, flowers, hearse and the works. We all told her it was out of the question. She replied, "That horse had finer qualities than most people I know. If I want to bury him like a friend why should anyone object?"

Well, the mortician refused to haul the horse in the hearse and the minister not only refused to conduct a service but he told my aunt she should get psychiatric help. The woman insists that the whole world is against her and announced that she is resigning from the church.

I walked out of the meeting in disgust and so did my sister. We've already been severely criticized for our "lack of compassion." What is your opinion? -- P.N.G.

Dear P.N.G.: The minister gave your aunt excellent advice. I hope she takes it.

I can understand people grieving at the loss of animals to whom they have become attached, but the idea of asking that a horse be buried from a church is so bizarre that only a sick person would suggest it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 16 who used to think your column was for laughts. Now I need to see my letter and your answer in the paper and believe me I am not laughing.

Dad made up a rule for all the members of the family. He said, "Anyone who spills food or drinks has to clean it up himself." Whenever I spill anything dad is the first one to point it out to me. Last night dad spilled some food on the stove. Mom looked at me and said, "Dad spilled something. Clean it up." I reminded mom that the rule was that the person who spills has to clean it up himself.

Dad got mad and yelled. "You don't do anything around here so shut up. You ought to clean up after everybody."

Stuff like this burns me. Do parents have the right to change the rules to suit themselves just because they are parents? I wish you would settle this in the paper because I'll bet other kids are having the same problem.--YUMA

Dear Yuma: When a parent makes a rule for all members of the family there should be no exceptions. Children who figure they are being treated unfairly feel betrayed. Their hurt often turns to anger and hostility.

Parenthood does, of course, mean privileges, but breaking one's word is not one of them.

Confidential to The Great Big Q: Each of us knows at least one couple that fits the description, "Love HIM but can't stand HER." Or it's the other way around. You can't tell a man that his wife is a jerk. You can only hope he will tire of her crude behavior and decide he must teach her some manners.

Is a heavy drinker an alcoholic? How can you tell? Is there a cure for alcoholism?

Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Alcoholism--Hope and Help." Enclose with your request, 35¢ in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Freedom will be saved by those who treasure it enough to do whatever they can in its behalf. One activity valuable to the cause of freedom is a telephone alert for radio programs that are dedicated to liberty.

One expectant mother concerned about the future awaiting her child and unwilling to take time off from the freedom cause, originated a "telephone alert." In 10 days she enlisted 23 volunteer alerters, including a patriotic blind man who spent four hours daily phoning others to alert them to freedom programs. These are splendid examples of the non-nonchalant and unapathetic citizens who dread the thought of firing squads, treasure their heritage freedom and willingly work to maintain our nation's independence.

Constructively,

OFF TO THE FINALS, three Midwest contestants leave Chicago's O'Hare airport for Columbus, Ohio, and the Miss USA World contest. Left to right are Pat Adair, Miss Chicago; Bonnie Barkley, Miss Indiana, and Lois Scott, Miss Illinois.

As used in the U.S. Navy, the term "shellback" means a Navy man who has crossed the equator.

President Theodore Roosevelt created the first U.S. bird sanctuary on Pelican Island, Fla., in 1903.

(CHARLESTON, W. VA.): I was idly leafing through a book about the flying saucers the other day when I came upon a list of rules telling the reader what he should do if he sees an Unidentified Flying Object.

Rule one is never touch a flying saucer. The book didn't say anything else but I get the idea that flying saucers are surrounded with various types of rays and if you touch one . . .ZAP! POW!. . . that's all Charlie. You will be immediately disintegrated or transported in the Fourth Dimension or turned into a babbling idiot or perhaps be given a terrible and wasting disease such as Oak Blight.

Rule two is never stand directly underneath a hovering flying saucer. The reasoning behind this is clear. If you are standing there, right under the saucer, and it suddenly decides to land . . . well. And, too, the saucer may cut loose with a downward directed ray of some kind and . . . see the second paragraph. ZAP! POW! Oak Blight.

The book feels it is more or less useless to report seeing a flying saucer to the authorities . . . especially the U.S. Air Force. The U. S. Air Force, the book intimates darkly, doesn't believe in flying saucers and probably doesn't believe in people who believe in flying saucers. If you report your sighting to the Air Force, they will dismiss it with a shrug of their epaulets and tell you what you have seen is swamp gas or the planet Venus or something . .

Crop Outlook Improves With Plenty of Rain

The crop outlook for the area is improving with moisture.

Cotton picking is not expected to begin before mid - September.

More than ample labor is available to meet expected demands, the Missouri State Employment service office reports. There is a considerable movement of labor for in-plant work in Great Lakes areas.

Applicants for field work are limited to walk-ins and there are ample orders on hand for all available workers. Year-round orders are at a seasonal low and are primarily hourly wage offers.

The farm labor information station and rest camp, route two, served 148 migrants last week. Michigan was the next work area for 11, while 33 were going to Ohio, 12 to Wisconsin and 92 were returning to Texas.

Almost daily rains in the peach growing area of Kennett, plus the short market demand for other than peaches sold on the local market is causing concern among the growers. The week of Aug. 27 should terminate the peach harvest other than a few late peaches. As a result of a slow market the supply of labor has been sufficient to take care of growers' needs.

Farm labor supply and demand is in balance for the Cape Girardeau office area. Cannery labor for Wisconsin is needed.

Farmers in the Caruthersville area are repairing their cotton pickers and getting their trailers ready for the picking season. Heavy rains have begun to plague farmers.

Cotton picking will probably be delayed for a week or more due to the rains. There is a light demand for full - time farm hands. There is a scarcity of good help throughout that area.

Little farming activity has been going on in the Poplar Bluff employment office area. Crops are in fair condition. There is no labor available for referral to other areas. Too much rain has been falling in the area.

France-Soir, biggest newspaper in France, bannerlined, "De Gaulle has decided to say everything he thinks on Viet Nam," What that was, however, remained a secret.

Besides stressing French interest in its old Southeast Asian empire, De Gaulle also plans a demonstration of France's interest in the new world of nuclear diplomacy.

If atmospheric conditions are right, he is expected to watch a French atomic test at the proving grounds near Tahiti.

His visits to Djibouti—first stop on the tour—and Addis Ababa are expected to involve discussions of the future of French Somaliland on the Red Sea. Both independent Somaliland and Ethiopia claim this last French-ruled land in Africa.

De Gaulle, 75, appeared in good health as he left Paris—an important factor in view of the tropical temperatures he faces during most of the 19-day journey. Wearing his general's uniform, he saluted an honor guard and stood at attention while a military band played the Marseillaise.

He made no public statement, but chatted with Premier Georges Pompidieu and others who came to see him off.

Spending in Viet Nam Defended

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. AP -- Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey defended today American expenditures in Viet Nam as a wedge against a wider war and warned of a resurgence of isolationism in the nation.

At the same time he chided administration critics who say the war effort is impeding domestic programs.

He said he has heard recently "otherwise responsible Americans" declare the nation ought to take the money and resources being spent in Viet Nam and transfer them to domestic programs.

"I say that to do so would require, in a few months or years, the investment of far more money, men and resources to Southeast Asia -- and possibly to other parts of the world -- than we have committed today and at a far greater danger to all of us," Humphrey said in a speech prepared for delivery to the 71st national convention of the Jewish War Veterans.

The 2,000 delegates attending the sessions Wednesday declared their support of President Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

tional election campaign, called for a large turnout of voters Sept. 11 but warned of an increase in Communist terrorism crease in Communist terrorism aimed at disrupting the elections.

The 146 missions flown against the Communist North exceeded the previous record set earlier this month by seven.

An official U.S. spokesman would not disclose the number of sorties—individual plane strikes—involved, but acknowledged that they were the highest so far in the war. This would probably run from 400 to 500 forays.

American pilots claimed heavy destruction. Four of 18 oil storage depots attacked were damaged and several others probably hit but smoke and dust prevented an accurate assessment.

Most of the attacks were concentrated in the Southern Panhandle and just north of the demilitarized zone. Only one raid was made in the Hanoi area—against an oil depot 18 miles from the Communist capital with results not announced.

The Air Force flew 71 missions, Navy pilots 68 and U.S. Marines seven.

Today's ground action followed two engagements 90 miles apart in the northern section of South Viet Nam by U.S. Marines Wednesday. They reported 211 Communist dead and said they suffered only light casualties themselves.

Japanese correspondents in the Communist Chinese capital reported they also put a bust of Mao Tze-tung in the school and plastered its walls with signs reading "Get out, foreign devils," and "Chase out the running dogs of imperialism."

The Red Guards and adults backing them blocked the school doors and made it impossible to hold classes.

The Sacred Heart Academy, almost 100 years old, has not been under the jurisdiction of the Chinese Communist government.

The teen-agers continued to surge through the streets howling for reforms which ranged from renaming Peking "The East is Red" - Tung Fang Hung --to the abolition of Chinese checkers and Western chess.

The Catholic school, said to be one of the few remaining still run by foreigners, is attended by children of foreign residents in Peking.

(LOUISVILLE): BRADSHAW LIKEE

Don't ask Charley Bradshaw, University of Kentucky football coach, to converse even a little bit in pigeon English. After an incident that occurred some years back when he attended a banquet while coaching at Ala., he's sworn off everything except the straight mother tongue.

Seated next to Bradshaw at the head table was a young man dressed in Oriental garb. After the meal started, Bradshaw felt he ought to try to strike up a conversation.

"You likee soup?" he asked.

The Oriental didn't say a word. But when it came time for the banquet speaking, it turned out he was it, and his speech was delivered in flawless English. As the speaker passed Bradshaw on his way back to his seat, he leaned over and whispered:

"You likee speech?"

Field Day at Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- Results and progress on agricultural research will be reported Sept. 1 during a field day at the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville, according to Norman Brown, superintendent.

The field day will feature reports on latest developments in studies of crops, soils, irrigation, and weed and insect control.

Of particular interest to farmers in Southeast Missouri will be the studies on corn virus, a disease which has been causing heavy crop losses in some fields.

The field day starts at 9:30 a.m.

Tours will be conducted around the research plots at the Delta center. University of Missouri researchers will be present to explain the research.

The tours will continue into the afternoon with lunch available at the center.

Included in the research underway at the center, Brown reports, are studies of soil fertility requirements of cotton, corn, and soybeans.

Varieties and strains of cotton and soybeans will be shown in the plant breeding plots.

The cotton date-of-planting studies will also be on view for field day visitors.

Studies of both insect and weed control in corn, cotton, and soybeans will be reported.

At another part of the center, results of irrigation of cotton will be on display.

The corn viruses are being studied by scientists from both field crops and entomology, Brown reports. The entomologists are stuying the insects which transmit the disease and plant breeders are attempting to develop resistant varieties.

An exhibit of farm machinery will be set up for the field day by dealers in the area.

The Delta center is located just south of Portageville on U. S. Highway 61.

The experimental fields where the tours will be conducted are seven miles southeast of Portageville on Route T. Visitors are directed to go two miles south of Portageville on Highway 61 and then five miles east on Route T to the junction of Route TT.

Signal Trouble Delays Saturn Rocket Liftoff

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) --America's man to the moon program faces a critical test today with a powerful Saturn I rocket scheduled to hurl an unmanned Apollo spaceship three-quarters of the way around the world. The aim is to qualify it for a three-man earth orbit flight in December.

The launching of the Saturn-Apollo was delayed beyond its planned 12:30 p.m. EDT liftoff be .ause of a problem in sending teletype signals to a tracking ship. The countdown was in a hold at 20 minutes, with the earliest possible liftoff time 1:30 p.m.

If all goes well on the 93-minute test and there are no other development problems, three astronauts will take a trip of up to 14 days in December to trigger an all-out drive to land men on the moon in 1968.

The Soviet Union launched an unmanned space laboratory weighing nearly two tons Wednesday on an undisclosed mission to the moon, prompting specultaion it might photograph the moon's surface or perhaps land an animal on the moon. A Soviet satellite made a controlled "soft" landing on the moon in February, four months ahead of the United States.

The latest Soviet vehicle, Luna 11, weighs more than four times as much as the 850-pound American Lunar Orbiter, which is now taking pictures of potential astronaut landing sites on the moon.

The pilots for the first Apollo earth orbit journey will be Air Force Lt Cols. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Roger B. Chaffee.

State Fair Holding Own At Gate

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP)—Attendance at this year's Missouri State Fair appears to be holding its own despite a rainy start Saturday and Sunday.

The current fair's unofficial four-day total through Tuesday was estimated at 135,111, up 3,842 from the four-day count of 131,569 last year.

Today's Sedalia and Kansas City day is expected to give the attendance a shot in the arm. Many Sedalia businesses are closing for the day, a custom of long standing; and several busloads of fairgoers are expected from Kansas City.

Wednesday was governor's day, and Gov. and Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes were on hand.

The governor used the occasion for a news conference and spoke again in favor of paying for future state highway construction by tolls rather than the gasoline tax or bond issues.

"Time is coming when we will need the tax for maintenance of our present roads," Hearnes said. "A bond issue I do not feel would be practical. It is feasible that the users of toll roads would pay 99 per cent of the cost. This approach must be explored first."

A track record was set in the free - for - all pace of Wednesday's harness racing. Early Purdue, owned and driven by Morris Trabert of Douds, Iowa, took both heats of the event, winning the second in the record time of 2:05. Trabert won the $2,000 purse and the governor's trophy, which was presented by Gov. Hearnes.

Work to Begin On New Trinity Baptist Church

Construction of the educational building and the interim auditorium at the Trinity Baptist Church is scheduled to begin Sept. 1.

Cost of the project is estimated at $256,000. The contract was awarded at a special business meeting Wednesday evening of members of the church to the Ray Clinton Construction Co., 731 North Main.

The building will be located on a 20-acre tract north of the Joel A. Montgomery home in Sikeston.

The red brick structure will be Williamsburg Colonial architecture, with 132 feet facing highway 61. It will be 144 feet, eight inches deep and will have two stories in the educational section.

Overall plans for the church call for a three-phase construction project costing in excess of $1,000,000. The second phase is expected to be undertaken in about three years.

A permanent auditorium will be built in the second phase, and the interim auditorium then will be used as a fellowship hall.

Third phase calls for the construction of a chapel. Additional educational space is called for in phase two and three. Extensive plans for recreational areas also are planned.

The church was organized Nov. 24, 1965 with a charter membership of 133. Since organization, the membership has grown to

$56,000 Cotton Loss

A fire gnawed for more than four hours into 99 bales of compressed cotton and caused an estimated loss of $56,000 early today at the Sikeston Compress and Warehouse, 801 West North.

All but 13 of the 112 cotton bales on a Frisco boxcar were damaged by the fire, B.B. McCaa, manager of the compress, said today.

The car was sealed at 5 p.m. Wednesday for shipment to Bemis, Tenn.

James Beech, a night watchman, discovered the fire at 1:20 a.m. today.

Cotton is valued at about $100 a bale. Damage in the 99 affected bales ranged from a 90 to a 10 per cent loss, McCaa said. In all, the loss was estimated at half the load, or at $56,000. The load was fully insured.

Cause of the fire was undetermined. It could have resulted from a spark thrown by a breaking metal band that binds the cotton, however, that is "only a guess," McCaa said.

"We really have no idea what caused it."

About 14 members of the fire department and eight company employes worked from 1:30 a.m. until 5:30 a.m. this morning unloading the cotton and pouring water on each smouldering bale.

The cotton bales which weigh about 500 pounds each, had been stored in a warehouse three compressed. The fire ate deeply into several bales.

Company workers were still digging into the bales to stop the smouldering at 10 a.m. today.

The box car was parked on railroad tracks north of the compress at a loading dock.

"A white smoke was put out by the burning bales," Fire Chief L.D. Ramsey said. "We didn't use anything but water to extinguish the fire. Each bale had to be rolled off the car and sprayed."

Investigation Continues at East Prairie

EAST PRAIRIE -- No new leads have been uncovered in the mysterious disappearance of a nine-month-old boy, who was missing from his home for an hour Monday.

Mississippi county sheriff officers reported today that an investigation is continuing.

Johnny Higgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Higgins, was set out on his pallet beside the family's garage about 2 p.m. Monday and was found at 2:45 p.m. in the back yard of a family who live two miles away.

The unanswered question is how an infant could travel two miles in 45 minutes. No one has admitted taking the boy from his home to the W. C. Bryant home, where the baby was found.

The Bryant home is at Sawdust corner, east of East Prairie, and the Higgins home is two miles south.

Johnny is a twin of Patty Higgins, There is also an older boy in the family, Roy Lee, 3.

NIGHT WATCHMAN JAMES BEECH discovered the freight boxcar fire this morning in which $56,000 worth of cotton was lost at Sikeston Compress and Warehouse. He stands next to undamaged bales in the car in which the fire started.

AN EMPLOYE of the Sikeston Compress and Warehouse checks a charred cotton bale to see if the fire is out. Ninety nine bales were unloaded from a sealed boxcar, where the fire started this morning.

Yorty Accuses Kennedy of Undermining

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Samuel W. Yorty, back home again after a fiery Washington appearance, has accused Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of attempting to "destroy all the friends" President Johnson has in order to further his own presidential ambitions.

"I got caught in the crossfire of Bobby Kennedy's attempt to undermine President Johnson," Yorty told a news conference Wednesday, and added: "In my opinion, he's trying to ride on his brother's fame and his father's loot and take over the United States of America."

The Los Angeles mayor appeared Tuesday before a Senate subcommittee studying the city and its problems and promptly got into an often caustic give-and-take debate with Kennedy and Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., about what the senators described as his lack of leadership.

In Washington, Kennedy responded to Yorty's Los Angeles statements by expressing regret that "Mayor Yorty could not give the Congress the necessary information nor imaginative proposals of any kind."

In the 1960 presidential election, Yorty jumped party lines and failed to support John F. Kennedy, late brother of the New York senator.

DeGaulle Embarks on World Tour

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle left today on an around-the-world trip, including a state visit to Cambodia whose leader, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, has been vociferously opposed to American policy in neighboring Viet Nam.

De Gaulle plans a major speech in the Cambodian capital, Phnom Penh, Sept. 1 in which he is expected to push his campaign for a united, neutral Viet Nam.

Whether he would condemn U.S. policy in Viet Nam from that rostrum was a matter of diplomatic speculation here. He has been critical of it in the past but observers noted he was restrained about the situation while visiting the Soviet Union last spring.

The president, accompanied by his wife, flew from Paris in an American-built DC8 jet on the 22nd anniversary of the liberation of the city by French and American troops.

Although his 27,000-mile trip includes stops in Djibouti, French Somaliland; Addis Ababa, Ethiopia; New Caledonia; Tahiti, and Guadeloupe, his visit to Cambodia-formerly a part of French Indochina-overshad-

Red Chinese Close Catholic Mission School

TOKYO AP -- Communist China ordered the closing today of the Sacred Heart Academy, a Roman Catholic mission school in Peking run by French nuns, the newspaper Yomiuri reported in a dispatch from Peking.

Kensaburo Seki, Yomiuri correspondent based in Peking, said Communist China's Ministry of Foreign Affairs, shortly after teen-age Red Guards broke into the school and hoisted the Red flag over it, informed embassies by telephone that it was closing down Sacred Heart.

The explanation given, Seki said, was that the Catholic mission school was supported by those advocating anticommu-

Pupil Costs Low-Twitty

Lynn Twitty, superintendent of the public schools, told the Kiwanis club Tuesday night at the Rustic Rock that a student "can be given excellent training" in the Sikeston schools for $325 a year compared with a $500 average per student cost across the country.

He praised this country's advanced civilization and gave reasons for it:

The constitution, democratic type of government laid out by the bill of rights, scientific discoveries, a healthyly climate for medical discoveries, creation of six per cent of the wealth of the world and 30 percent of the manufactured goods.

Universal public education and community colleges and universities have brought education to the nation's youth, he said.

Results of the people's brain power give the county one half of the telephones in the work, one half of the television sets, one third of the automobiles and 75 per cent of the bath tubs.

He said that about 25 per cent of the adult educated people are directly or indirectly engaged in jobs related to education, the world's highest.

Costs of the vocational training in Sikeston last year were $14,000,000 of which $650,000 came from local taxes, $750,000 from state aid programs and the federal government contributing to such undertakings as the Head Start program, car mechanics, janitor training, secretarial typing, shorthand, given to adult.

Twitty said that tests given students in the Sikeston schools indicated the value of "high standard teachers" and their performance. These tests indicate that the Sikeston schools graded 13 per cent above those of the national average. He was a guest of George Kirk.

Lonnie Standley will talk to the club next Tuesday night at the Rustic Rock at 6 p.m.

Mrs. Jeffries described proper handling of food being served to customers, mannerisms and knowledge of proper procedures from waitress to customer.

House Ponders Reserve Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House squares off today for a fight over including in a defense appropriation bill authority for President Johnson to call up some Reserves for active duty. The President has not asked for such authority.

The provision was written into the $58-billion bill by the Senate. It was not included in the defense money bill originally passed by the House.

Under present law, the President can call up Reserves only after declaring a state of national emergency, and then they usually are mobilized by units.

The Senate-passed provision would waive the emergency declaration and authorize the President to summon Reservists as individuals, whether or not they were attached to organize units, to take advantage of special skills.

The Reserves provision added by the Senate is not mandatory for the President.

Spokesmen for National Guard and Reserve organizations opposed the proposal. They claimed it would wreck the Reserves.

The Reserves provision was listed as the first order of business for today's House session. It was expected to be opposed by most Republicans and most members of the House Armed Services Committee which now is considering a separate bill dealing with Reserve forces.

Under the Senate provision, Reservists or National Guardsmen could be called to active duty up to 24 months, minus any time previously on active duty for training purposes.

Proponents of the Reserve provision have contended that many draft-age youths have signed up for Reserve and Guard duty to avoid induction for active military service.

They argued that the policy of allowing young men to fulfill their military obligation without the risk of going into combat was unfair to those who are drafted or who volunteer for active duty.

Since the appropriations measure passed by the House and the one approved by the Senate differed, the measures were sent to a Senate-House conference where a compromise was reached Wednesday. Among other things, the compromise included agreement for the House to vote on the Senate's Reserves provision.

The conferees agreed to go along with the Senate provision with modifying language requiring that the identities of Reserve units ordered to active duty be retained and that family and economic status be considered.

While the Senate-House conferees were reaching their agreement Wednesday, the Pentagon provided more details on a military training program announced by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in a New York speech Tuesday.

Under the program, thousands of men who in the past would have been rejected for military service because they did not score high enough in physical or intelligence and aptitude tests, will be inducted.

During their first months in uniform, efforts will be made toward improvement. If there is sufficient improvement, these GIs will remain in service. If not, the trainee will receive an honorable discharge on the grounds that he is not qualified for military service.

Pentagon manpower officials said that the 40,000 men who enter the service under the new program between October and next July 1 will be those now disqualified by substandard scores in military intelligence and aptitude tests. They will get special educational training.

Starting next July 1, when the program begins absorbing 100,000 men a year, men also will be accepted with physical ailments which can be cured in about six weeks. An example would be a man with a hernia, which could be corrected with relatively minor surgery.

The manpower officials said quotas for the program are being worked out among the armed services but the Army will get the bulk of the trainees.

They said the Selective Service is expected to review men classified 1Y—eligible for duty only in time of national emergency or war—and many of these will be among the new trainees.

They said about 200,000 of the 2 million men in the 1Y category probably can be qualified under the new program to meet standards and remain in service.

The officials said 30 per cent, or about 12,000 of the first 40,000 trainees, are expected to be Negro. At present, about 10 per cent of all recruits are Negro.

Meanwhile, an Army report says wide variations from state to state noted from year to year in the disqualification rates for draftees continued last year.

Total disqualifications-- for moral, mental or medical reasons—ranged from a low of 26.1 per cent for Iowa to a high of 59.8 per cent for South Carolina.

The report prepared by the Army surgeon general's office said that for the nation as a whole, the 1965 results of the preinduction examinations "indicate a substantial decrease in the total disqualification rate". 44 per cent, compared with 53 per cent in 1964.

If all goes well on the 93-minute test and there are no other development problems, three astronauts will take a trip of up to 14 days in December to trigger an all-out drive to land men on the moon in 1968.

The Soviet Union launched an unmanned space laboratory weighing nearly two tons Wednesday on an undisclosed mission to the moon, prompting specultaion it might photograph the moon's surface or perhaps land an animal on the moon. A Soviet satellite made a controlled "soft" landing on the moon in February, four months ahead of the United States.

The latest Soviet vehicle, Luna 11, weighs more than four times as much as the 850-pound American Lunar Orbiter, which is now taking pictures of potential astronaut landing sites on the moon.

The pilots for the first Apollo earth orbit journey will be Air Force Lt Cols. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Roger B. Chaffee.

Work to Begin On New Trinity Baptist Church

Construction of the educational building and the interim auditorium at the Trinity Baptist Church is scheduled to begin Sept. 1.

Cost of the project is estimated at $256,000. The contract was awarded at a special business meeting Wednesday evening of members of the church to the Ray Clinton Construction Co., 731 North Main.

The building will be located on a 20-acre tract north of the Joel A. Montgomery home in Sikeston.

The red brick structure will be Williamsburg Colonial architecture, with 132 feet facing highway 61. It will be 144 feet, eight inches deep and will have two stories in the educational section.

Overall plans for the church call for a three-phase construction project costing in excess of $1,000,000. The second phase is expected to be undertaken in about three years.

A permanent auditorium will be built in the second phase, and the interim auditorium then will be used as a fellowship hall.

Third phase calls for the construction of a chapel. Additional educational space is called for in phase two and three. Extensive plans for recreational areas also are planned.

The church was organized Nov. 24, 1965 with a charter membership of 133. Since organization, the membership has grown to

Investigation Continues at East Prairie

EAST PRAIRIE -- No new leads have been uncovered in the mysterious disappearance of a nine-month-old boy, who was missing from his home for an hour Monday.

Mississippi county sheriff officers reported today that an investigation is continuing.

Johnny Higgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Higgins, was set out on his pallet beside the family's garage about 2 p.m. Monday and was found at 2:45 p.m. in the back yard of a family who live two miles away.

The unanswered question is how an infant could travel two miles in 45 minutes. No one has admitted taking the boy from his home to the W. C. Bryant home, where the baby was found.

The Bryant home is at Sawdust corner, east of East Prairie, and the Higgins home is two miles south.

Yorty Accuses Kennedy of Undermining

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Samuel W. Yorty, back home again after a fiery Washington appearance, has accused Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of attempting to "destroy all the friends" President Johnson has in order to further his own presidential ambitions.

"I got caught in the crossfire of Bobby Kennedy's attempt to undermine President Johnson," Yorty told a news conference Wednesday, and added: "In my opinion, he's trying to ride on his brother's fame and his father's loot and take over the United States of America."

The Los Angeles mayor appeared Tuesday before a Senate subcommittee studying the city and its problems and promptly got into an often caustic give-and-take debate with Kennedy and Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., about what the senators described as his lack of leadership.

In Washington, Kennedy responded to Yorty's Los Angeles statements by expressing regret that "Mayor Yorty could not give the Congress the necessary information nor imaginative proposals of any kind."

In the 1960 presidential election, Yorty jumped party lines and failed to support John F. Kennedy, late brother of the New York senator.

DeGaulle Embarks on World Tour

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle left today on an around-the-world trip, including a state visit to Cambodia whose leader, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, has been vociferously opposed to American policy in neighboring Viet Nam.

De Gaulle plans a major speech in the Cambodian capital, Phnom Penh, Sept. 1 in which he is expected to push his campaign for a united, neutral Viet Nam.

Whether he would condemn U.S. policy in Viet Nam from that rostrum was a matter of diplomatic speculation here. He has been critical of it in the past but observers noted he was restrained about the situation while visiting the Soviet Union last spring.

The president, accompanied by his wife, flew from Paris in an American-built DC8 jet on the 22nd anniversary of the liberation of the city by French and American troops.

Although his 27,000-mile trip includes stops in Djibouti, French Somaliland; Addis Ababa, Ethiopia; New Caledonia; Tahiti, and Guadeloupe, his visit to Cambodia-formerly a part of French Indochina-overshad-

Red Chinese Close Catholic Mission School

TOKYO AP -- Communist China ordered the closing today of the Sacred Heart Academy, a Roman Catholic mission school in Peking run by French nuns, the newspaper Yomiuri reported in a dispatch from Peking.

Kensaburo Seki, Yomiuri correspondent based in Peking, said Communist China's Ministry of Foreign Affairs, shortly after teen-age Red Guards broke into the school and hoisted the Red flag over it, informed embassies by telephone that it was closing down Sacred Heart.

The explanation given, Seki said, was that the Catholic mission school was supported by those advocating anticommu-

Pupil Costs Low-Twitty

Lynn Twitty, superintendent of the public schools, told the Kiwanis club Tuesday night at the Rustic Rock that a student "can be given excellent training" in the Sikeston schools for $325 a year compared with a $500 average per student cost across the country.

He praised this country's advanced civilization and gave reasons for it:

The constitution, democratic type of government laid out by the bill of rights, scientific discoveries, a healthyly climate for medical discoveries, creation of six per cent of the wealth of the world and 30 percent of the manufactured goods.

Universal public education and community colleges and universities have brought education to the nation's youth, he said.

Results of the people's brain power give the county one half of the telephones in the work, one half of the television sets, one third of the automobiles and 75 per cent of the bath tubs.

He said that about 25 per cent of the adult educated people are directly or indirectly engaged in jobs related to education, the world's highest.

Costs of the vocational training in Sikeston last year were $14,000,000 of which $650,000 came from local taxes, $750,000 from state aid programs and the federal government contributing to such undertakings as the Head Start program, car mechanics, janitor training, secretarial typing, shorthand, given to adult.

Twitty said that tests given students in the Sikeston schools indicated the value of "high standard teachers" and their performance. These tests indicate that the Sikeston schools graded 13 per cent above those of the national average. He was a guest of George Kirk.

Lonnie Standley will talk to the club next Tuesday night at the Rustic Rock at 6 p.m.

House Ponders Reserve Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House squares off today for a fight over including in a defense appropriation bill authority for President Johnson to call up some Reserves for active duty. The President has not asked for such authority.

The provision was written into the $58-billion bill by the Senate. It was not included in the defense money bill originally passed by the House.

Under present law, the President can call up Reserves only after declaring a state of national emergency, and then they usually are mobilized by units.

The Senate-passed provision would waive the emergency declaration and authorize the President to summon Reservists as individuals, whether or not they were attached to organize units, to take advantage of special skills.

The Reserves provision added by the Senate is not mandatory for the President.

Spokesmen for National Guard and Reserve organizations opposed the proposal. They claimed it would wreck the Reserves.

The Reserves provision was listed as the first order of business for today's House session. It was expected to be opposed by most Republicans and most members of the House Armed Services Committee which now is considering a separate bill dealing with Reserve forces.

Under the Senate provision, Reservists or National Guardsmen could be called to active duty up to 24 months, minus any time previously on active duty for training purposes.

Proponents of the Reserve provision have contended that many draft-age youths have signed up for Reserve and Guard duty to avoid induction for active military service.

They argued that the policy of allowing young men to fulfill their military obligation without the risk of going into combat was unfair to those who are drafted or who volunteer for active duty.

Since the appropriations measure passed by the House and the one approved by the Senate differed, the measures were sent to a Senate-House conference where a compromise was reached Wednesday. Among other things, the compromise included agreement for the House to vote on the Senate's Reserves provision.

The conferees agreed to go along with the Senate provision with modifying language requiring that the identities of Reserve units ordered to active duty be retained and that family and economic status be considered.

While the Senate-House conferees were reaching their agreement Wednesday, the Pentagon provided more details on a military training program announced by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in a New York speech Tuesday.

Under the program, thousands of men who in the past would have been rejected for military service because they did not score high enough in physical or intelligence and aptitude tests, will be inducted.

During their first months in uniform, efforts will be made toward improvement. If there is sufficient improvement, these GIs will remain in service. If not, the trainee will receive an honorable discharge on the grounds that he is not qualified for military service.

Pentagon manpower officials said that the 40,000 men who enter the service under the new program between October and next July 1 will be those now disqualified by substandard scores in military intelligence and aptitude tests. They will get special educational training.

Starting next July 1, when the program begins absorbing 100,000 men a year, men also will be accepted with physical ailments which can be cured in about six weeks. An example would be a man with a hernia, which could be corrected with relatively minor surgery.

The manpower officials said quotas for the program are being worked out among the armed services but the Army will get the bulk of the trainees.

They said the Selective Service is expected to review men classified 1Y—eligible for duty only in time of national emergency or war—and many of these will be among the new trainees.

They said about 200,000 of the 2 million men in the 1Y category probably can be qualified under the new program to meet standards and remain in service.

The officials said 30 per cent, or about 12,000 of the first 40,000 trainees, are expected to be Negro. At present, about 10 per cent of all recruits are Negro.

Meanwhile, an Army report says wide variations from state to state noted from year to year in the disqualification rates for draftees continued last year.

Total disqualifications-- for moral, mental or medical reasons—ranged from a low of 26.1 per cent for Iowa to a high of 59.8 per cent for South Carolina.

The report prepared by the Army surgeon general's office said that for the nation as a whole, the 1965 results of the preinduction examinations "indicate a substantial decrease in the total disqualification rate". 44 per cent, compared with 53 per cent in 1964.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Now that the commercial passenger planes are back in the air, Congress should make passage of laws governing strikes affecting the national interest the first order of business.

President Lyndon B. Johnson should use the enormous prestige of his office or his ability as an arm twister to encourage Congress to act.

The strike of the airline machinists was like others before it.

Any legislation passed during it would have been bad legislation -- hastily conceived to assure a specific result and granting that it would have achieved compliance, it most certainly would have had poor acceptance from striking machinists forced to return to work even temporarily under federal government dictated terms.

Now that the immediate crisis has passed Congress in an election year wants to forget the whole problem. It should instead enact sound legislation when it is not involved in a labor crisis.

It is unfortunate that both President Johnson and Congress both share the belief that people soon forget the inconvenience and hardship suffered during strikes. They both share the belief that it is good politics to do nothing and that the long range needs of the country can be forgotten as far as their popularity with the voter is concerned.

The inflationary result of the strike has not been lost either on the American people or on other ambitious labor union leaders, who have never been known to forget.

The labor leaders will be trying to get more for their members at the earliest possible date.

Since it has been demonstrated that it can be done, they'll be willing to make everybody from President Johnson on down look like fools just as the airline machinists did so successfully in getting a whopper of a settlement.

This process is making a mockery of the collective bargaining but the airline machinists union leaders defend it as being "democracy" at work. It is a form of perverted deomocracy which endangers the rights of the majority of the people.

It may be better that neither President Johnson nor Congress act to protect the public interest.

When public irritation grows great enough the people will throw out of office those federal officials, who chose to ignore their well being in favor of cultivating the labor union vote.

The public's patience has grown razor thin and the hope for better labor-management relations grows dimmer every time a union flaunts the public interest and defies the President and the members of Congress with the impunity of the airline machinists.

The President and Congress need to be shown the public's displeasure with their inaction.

If they receive the message at the polls it will come through loud and clear at last.

THE GOLD GAME

BY THE END OF AUGUST, France will probably have converted into gold the entire amount of $146 million which accrued to French reserves during July. That will bring the French gold hoard to almost $5.4 billion, next to the United States' the largest in the world.

Since the end of 1964, when President de Gaulle announced that France would reduce her holdings of dollars, France has converted a minimum of $34 million -- or 30 tons of gold -- each month. The gold drain is alarming to many American economists, though opinion is not solid. The dollars France redeems ship gold from Ft. Knox to Paris.

When France engaged in the gold game, as money men call it, 73 per cent of her reserves were in gold. A year later the figure was 85 per cent. So far this year the rise has been gradual, to about 86 per cent. The reserve total is about $6 billion.

ACCUMULATION OF GOLD in the United States reached its high-water mark in 1949, when American reserves totaled $24.6 billion. Since then the outflow has been consistent, though occasionally the rate has been reduced. Today the holding is slightly over $13.3 billion, as against well over $13.8 billion a year ago.

The gold drain stems from the chronic American deficit in the balance of international payments. We still sell more abroad than we buy, but that margin is dwindling. And our expenditures for the war in Viet Nam, our massive foreign aid, and private investment abroad tip the balance of payments machine to TILT.

All the efforts of the past three administrations to redress the balance have been insufficient to the task. Some good news came on Aug. 18, when Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler announced that the payments deficit for April, May, and June was only $163 million. This was a trifle higher than the total of $150 hinted a week earlier, but still a healthy cut from the first-quarter deficit of $563 million.

HOW LONG we can play the gold game with France remains to be seen. Already there is pressure in some parts of Congress and some sections of the press to make France pay the $6.5 billion owing to us since World War II.

Most economists say we are skating near the balance of payments abyss. But Eli Shapiro, Harvard Business School professor of finance, recently told an international symposium that short-term claims against the American gold stock have been exaggerated. Too little has been said about the U. S. long-term creditor position in the world, which has risen from $3 billion in 1946 to $55 billion today.

Why is France playing the gold game, anyway? Some say it's a reflection of the ancient French peasant instinct to hoard gold i n times of emergency. More likely, it's an attack on both the pound sterling and the dollar to try to effect currency revaluation.

Edward W. Kuhn, President of the American Bar Association, at its annual convention in Montreal:

"Why will America keenly watch what we do here today and tomorrow? Because America is in desperate need of authoritative advice from the organized bar in the field of human rights and responsibilities. In the light of prevailing conditions, of the 'long hot summers,' we have failed in our duty to the American people, both old and young. Especially do our youth need education in these fundamental principles. We observe small groups of students in effect taking over a large university by simply locking out the school administrators. We hear them cry 'Freedom, Freedom,' yet they demonstrate little awareness that with freedom goes responsibility.

"We see more and more students absorbing the principles of political science, and at the same time more and more young people becoming faceless figures in banner groups whose single-minded purpose seems to be rebellion. Rebellion, as a product of permissiveness and a tool of pressure groups which misunderstand freedom, is a trap and a snare.

"We have withstood teach-ins, lie-downs, lie-ins, sit-ins, mass demonstrations, mass invasion of governmental offices -- including the White House itself--blocking of busy streets, entrances and exits to public buildings, armed groups of citizens espousing opposite dogmas confronting each other in public seizure of private property by force, deadly and vicious riots, and other forms of unlawful protest.

"We hear of self-appointed leaders, both secular and religious, proclaiming in all sincerity the philosophy that it is right and proper to obey only the laws he believes to be just --that he can with moral impunity disobey those he does not believe just. The late Mr. Justice Frankfurter gave the answer to this when he said:

" ' If a man can be allowed to determine for himself what is law, every man can. This means first, chaos, then tyranny.' "

TALLEST BIRDS

The tallest bird ever to live on earth was the giant moa, now extinct. Some very big species were alive until about 1570, possibly until about 1770. The average giant moa stood about twelve feet high, with enormous, elephantine leg bones.

WHEN WE WERE a boy there was as much condemnation of cigarettes as there was of liquor. The cigarettes were called "coffin nails" and our grandmother and mother guided us through most of our youthful years afraid of tobacco in that form. At an early age, we can't remember just when, we began smoking small cigars. Likely we didn't smoke more than two a week, but felt sort of grownup puffing on a cigar.

We must have been 18 or close to it when one night our date expressed a desire for a smoke, and we bought a package of Fatimas. As she smoked, we thought we might as well. That was the first cigarette we ever smoked and it didn't create a habit for we very rarely thereafter smoked any.

But in the fall of 1913 we entered the University of Kansas and most all of the boys in our fraternity smoked ciagrettes. As a pledge one of the first things that we remember was being taken by an upper classman to the leading drug store in Lawrence, introduced to a clerk and recommended as being "alright." In case you did not know, Kansas had a law against selling cigarettes and they were bootlegged just like liquor was, though the cigarettes could be bought in respectable places. It appealed to us as so thrilling to lay a quarter on the counter in the drug store and be handed a sack with a package of Camels in it, we soon got "hooked" with the habit.

Camels could be bought in Kansas City in those days for 10 cents a package, but brought 25 cents in Lawrence. Our fraternity house would have some of the members buy a suitcase full of cigarettes in the city and then retail them to the brothers.

The years passed and from a slight beginning the habit worked on us until we smoked not less than two and a half packages a day, and many days three packages. Lots of times we would light a cigarette and look down in the ash try and see the remains of one still burning.

Forty years passed and we won't estimate the thousands and thousands of cigarettes we smoked, nor the hundreds of dollars we spent on them. Then came New Year's Eve, December 31, 1952. We took sick that evening, an not from what the date might infer. It was the old fashioned flu. For several days we were so sick we didn't want to smoke, and then we got better. Realizing we hadn't smoked in 1953, we decided we'd quit long enough to get the nicotine out of our system. Phil Donnelly had named us to his staff of honorary colonels and we went to the first gathering of these gentlemen, carrying two packages of cigarettes, for we felt we had done without smoking long enough. But before we ever lit one, we found ourself bragging to another colonel that "We haven't smoked this year." And we are still bragging and it's not far from 14 years now.

We cannot remember there being as many makes of cigaretes when we were a boy as there are now. Pall Malls were on the market but they were 100% Turkish tobacco then, packed 10 cigarettes to the box, and selling for 25 cents when other cigarettes were only 10 cents. Fatimas had an unusual taste and many thought some kind of dope was put in them. Egyptian Deities were a dainty cork tipped (not filter), oval shaped cigarette. Camels looked just like they do now, even the package was the same. Our older friends remember such brands as Sweet Caperal, Omar, Home Run, Piccayune, Lord Salisbury, Piedmont, Nebo (10 for 5¢), Benson and Hedges.

Like a lot of other boys we started smoking early, but not cigarettes. First there was corn silk, then mullen, grape leaves rolled into cigars, buggy whip which burned your mouth with every puff, catapa beans, and doubtless other things we have forgotten. Old women smoked pipes, but it was a rare thing when a young housewife or a girl smoked, the one who got us started being an exception.

Tobacco chewing was very popular but we never cared for it. Our uncle, for whom we are named, made the statement frequently that no one would make a good printer who didn't chew tobacco.

Nearly every town had a cigar factory, sometimes more than one. There was a cigar factory in Shelbina when we came in 1926.

LAST YEARS

H. L. Hunt Says

PRIVACY INVADERS

A massive invasion of personal privacy is underway in our country. Numerous careful studies have confirmed its existence and shown its extent. The makers of the studies run the gamut from "left" to "right" of the ideological spectrum. They all find the same pattern.

The worst invasions of privacy are those for which government is responsible, since government has the power to force individuals to answer its questions under penalty of fine or imprisonment, or to prosecute individuals on the basis of information gained by privacy invasion. But too many private business corporations are also guilty of privacy invasion, particulary of their employees, through the use of such techniques as the personality test and the so-called "lie detector."

A man's personality and private life are strictly his own business. So long as he injures no one else, no other person should probe him against his will. To be sure, the private business concern has a right not to hire, or to discharge, persons who will not bare their souls on order. But it is very poor practice, and will result in the most talented individuals going elsewhere.

Privacy invasion by government can take the form of "mail covers," electronic spying, or simply too-detailed census questionnaires that recipients are required to answer. The federal government already has much information on every American. We should take care that it is never brought together into the kind of "dossier" which the secret police of totalitarian states like to use. A central file of this kind on every citizen has actually been proposed, but so far rejected. HLH

By Victor Riesel

McNamara: Nation Calling on Negroes t o Fight Abroad Must Give Minorities Full Opportunity at Home

It is not generally known that the Dept. of Defense is the world's biggest employer of labor. I asked Secretary Robert McNamara, as the head of this vast system, to comment on his department's impact on labor and its policies in handling such a vast force. Here is his reply:

By Robert McNamara
Secretary of Defense

Washington, D.C.: I a m pleased to be able to accept Mr. Riesel's invitation t o contribute this guest column. Managing the Department of Defense is, in so many ways, a question of applying human resources to national needs. This, of course, means labor.

As the largest employer in the world, we have a natural interest in labor, just as labor has a natural interest in us. For without the efforts of the many millions of Americans who work with us -- either directly or indirectly -- there can be no effective Defense Department. Human resources available to the government are our most priceless resources. How we use them demonstrates, as perhaps nothing else can, the kind of country we are.

The primary mission of the Department of Defense is to keep America strong. But our large effort also contains a moral obligation. The money, the resources, the labor that are used in the defense effort must be expended in accord with our principles and our traditions. This means that the Defense Department, in partnership with industry, must provide labor with equal opportunity for all. Not only must the nation be defended -- our heritage must be defended as well.

This was the thinking which prompted President Kennedy's Executive Order 10925, issued in 1961. Its guiding principle is clear and simple. Industry, in fulfilling the government's contracts, must give the same equal opportunity to labor, without regard to race, creed, color or national origin, that the federal government insists upon in its own operations. There must be no discrimination. There must be no bias. There must be equal opportunity for all.

The directive was not without a bite to it. A vital clause stated that the government could cancel a contract were it determined that discrimination was being exercised in the fulfillment of that contract. It has been the policy of the Department of Defense to buy at the lowest sound price, but we all agreed that price was unacceptable if it meant the exclusion of some Americans from their birthright.

The vast majority of American industry was eager to comply. But compliance was not a simple matter. For the more one looked at the problem, the more one realized that its roots lay in a whole social structure.

Equal opportunity does n o t come from segregated local unions.

Equal opportunity is not born out of Negro ghettos.

Equal opportunity finds no home in poor housing, inadequate education, inferior training programs.

To comply with this order, in short, meant a government-wide effort as well as an industry-wide effort. To comply with this order meant, in fact, a compliance with the promises of the American Constitution.

The statistics for the 1964-65 non-white employment in the first 100 companies enrolled in industry's voluntary Plans for Progress program have been encouraging. While the total employment in these companies has increased 6.6 per cent, the increase in total non-white employment increased 19.1 per cent.

Yet, in as expanding economy, the gains in non-white employment by these 100 companies have not been reflected on a national basis. These companies have shown what can be done, but the great national imbalance in truly equal opportunity, opportunities within the whole spectrum of management and labor, still remains a challenge for what must be done.

If the obligations of citizenship require a non-white citizen to serve in battle, he must also be able to serve, without discrimination, in industry.

If a Negro can become an officer -- and hundreds have -- equal opportunity should mean that he can also become an office manager.

In short, we must build our country as we build our strength. It would be a hollow thing indeed if, in the act of building our defenses, we overlook the very principles which we have set out to defend.

When you come down to it, basically, we are defending an idea. This, in essence, is what the Defense Department is all about. We are apt to think in terms of the tangible expression of that idea -- the land itself, its resources, t h e physical bounty of our country. But America would be just another land without the concepts that govern it. The very heart of that concept is equal opportunity for all. Deny the concept and you deny America. Deny the concept and there is no true America to defend -- only a latitude and a longitude, which could be any other land by any other name.

If we hope to realize our promise of the future, we must keep our promise with our past. Almost two hundred years ago that promise was spelled out in the Constitution. Today it is spelled out once again in President Johnson's bill for civil rights.

Many problems must b e solved before equal employment, not only in defense related industries, but also throughout the country, becomes a reality. Some of these problems are social, some are economic, some are political.

But the great encouragement is that we are going ahead with the task, and industry is going ahead with it. The results are beginning to be reflected in communities throughout the country, where it is being discovered that opportunity is not diminished by the sharing, and that if democracy is to have its true meaning, it must mean the truths it has vowed to defend.

Most important, one gets the feeling that industry and the whole country are beginning to recognize the right of equal opportunity -- not just because the government says it has to -- but because it is just.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- This column owes an apology to Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., regarding the recent account of his trip to Miami -- with his two sons-- in which it was stated that he double-billed the Senate Internal Security Committee and the Citizens Committee for a free Cuba $153.72 each for the trip.

Sen. Dodd did take his two sons, together with his assistant, David Martin, Martin's wife and two children, to Miami under interesting circumstances. But a refund was given to the Cuban Committee. Here are further details, some of them complicated, but illustrating the manner in which one senator maneuvered with the taxpayers' money.

The trip took place in 1965 during a Senate Internal Security Committee investigation friendly to Gen. Wessin Y Wessin, the Dominican strongman who was bucking the state department's attempt to set up a civilian government in the Dominican Republic. Sen. Dodd and Roman Hruska, R-Neb., of this committee seemed intent on lining up against the State Department on the side of the military. For some reason best known to the senators, their investigation was taking place in the swank Eden Roc hotel, one of the most expensive in Miami, instead of the rent-free federal building in Miami where hearings are traditionally held.

The invitation to Sen. Dodd, Mrs. Dodd, and assistant Martin came from Paul D. Bethel, secretary of the Citizens Committee for a free Cuba, who now complains that Dodd was not invited by the Citizens Committee but by the Cuban representation in exile.

THE FAMILY IS INCLUDED

After the invitation was issued, Martin telephoned Bethel to ask if Tom Dodd, Jr., couldn't come with the Senator and Mrs. Dodd. The Cubans said fine and sent him an extra ticket. At this point Martin decided that since he and the Senator were going to the Wessin Y Wessin hearing, he could charge his own ticket to the Senate Internal Security Committee and use the free ticket donated by the Cuban Committee to take his wife to Miami.

After inquiring around among the airlines, Martin also found that the first-class ticket given him by the Cubans could be used under the family plan, tourist class, to take his wife and two children. This was done.

At the last minute Mrs. Dodd decided not to go. So Dodd exchanged her ticket for one for Jeremy Dodd, his second son. Thus, thanks to the generosity of the Cubans, plus a smart exchange of airline tickets, Sen. Dodd, his two sons, his assistant, David Martin, Martin's wife and two children all went to Miami and all stayed at the Eden Roc, where their expenses were paid by the Cubans.

While in Miami, Dodd, who is a member of the Senate Subcommittee on Immigration, received an invitation from President Johnson to go with him to New York to sign the immigration bill.

The ceremony in New York was to be on Sunday, Oct. 3, whereas Dodd's speech before the Cubans in Miami was to be on the preceding Saturday night. The Senator was invited to fly from Washington to New York on the presidential plane, but he had to get to Washington by Sunday morning. The only plane he could take left Miami shortly after midnight, arriving in Washington about 4 a.m. This interfered with the Senator's sleep.

So he asked Michael O'Hare, his accountant, to call the air force to see if a special plane could fly him from Miami to Washington Sunday morning. The air force agreed.

WEEKEND RUINED

Dodd then came back with a second request that his two sons also be allowed to fly on the air force plane. The air force refused.

When this message was conveyed to Dodd, the Senator almost screamed. He protested vociferously that this had ruined his entire weekend.

In the end the Senator took the air force plane alone from Miami to Washington, joined the presidential plane there and flew on to New York for the signing of the Immigration Bill.

After he got back, Dodd found himself with one unused round-trip ticket between Washington and Miami which had been supplied him by the Cubans. This was because he had gone to Miami at the expense of the Internal Security Committee and returned at the expense of the air force. So Dodd instructed his accountant, O'Hare, to get a refund on the unused round-trip ticket.

Since this ticket had been issued by a Cuban travel agency in Miami, it was impossible for O'Hare to get a refund direct from the airline involved. He had to go through the Cuban travel agency. When he did so, the agency wrote back asking whether the Senator from Connecticut would like to have the money returned to the Cuban friend who had paid for it in the first place.

Obviously it was embarrassing for Dodd to say no. O'Hare wrote back that this was agreeable.

Thus this column was in error in reporting that Dodd collected twice on his round-trip ticket between Washington and Miami. Our apologies.

The column in question, however, was not in error on other details, including the manner in which Dodd paid for the $150 dinner at the Eden Roc and then, displeased at the size of the dinner check, had his assistant telephone the Cuban Committee asking for a refund. The refund came in the form of a $150 check No. 701, Oct. 4, 1965, on the account of the Citizens Committee for free Cuba.

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest puzzle to a husband is his own wife.

She's the greatest mystery of his lifetime, as much of an enigma on their 50th wedding anniversary — if they live that long — as on the day she married him.

How come it is so hard for a husband to understand his soulmate? What really makes his wife so mystifying? Well, practically everything, it would appear.

An informal poll of a nondescript group of husbands asked: "What puzzles you most about your wife?" It produced these answers:

"Why she always has to be the first gal at a cocktail party to kick off her shoes."

"Why she bends over and kisses me on the bald spot on top of my head while I am reading — when she knows this makes me mad."

"Why she wants me to get bifocal glasses but wants contact lenses for herself."

"Why she always insists that we eat at home by candlelight so dim a fellow can't even see what's on the plate."

"Why she always eats those tuna fish sandwiches for lunch."

"Why she only butters the center of our breakfast toast. I like it buttered all over. I've been telling her that for years."

"Why she thinks I should have to give her four weeks' warning if I'm going to bring anyone home for dinner."

"Why she saves all my old love letters."

"Why she only doles me out six bits for lunch, when everybody knows you haven't been able to get a decent lunch for that in Manhattan since 1942."

"Why she always makes me lick the stamps for our Christmas cards. The Lord knows she's got as big a tongue as I have — probably bigger."

"Why, when we split up the Sunday newspaper, she always demands the section I happen to want to read first."

"Why she thinks she knows how the government could balance its budget when she can't even keep ours in kilter."

"Why she'd rather go out in the evening, even to watch a blood transfusion or attend the opening of a delicatessen, than stay home and watch television."

Yes, mysterious are the ways of wives, but ever husband agrees on the one thing that puzzles him most about his particular wife:

"Why she marr ed me in the first place — when, she claims, she had so many to choose from."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Now that the commercial passenger planes are back in the air, Congress should make passage of laws governing strikes affecting the national interest the first order of business.

President Lyndon B. Johnson should use the enormous prestige of his office or his ability as an arm twister to encourage Congress to act.

The strike of the airline machinists was like others before it.

Any legislation passed during it would have been bad legislation -- hastily conceived to assure a specific result and granting that it would have achieved compliance, it most certainly would have had poor acceptance from striking machinists forced to return to work even temporarily under federal government dictated terms.

Now that the immediate crisis has passed Congress in an election year wants to forget the whole problem. It should instead enact sound legislation when it is not involved in a labor crisis.

It is unfortunate that both President Johnson and Congress both share the belief that people soon forget the inconvenience and hardship suffered during strikes. They both share the belief that it is good politics to do nothing and that the long range needs of the country can be forgotten as far as their popularity with the voter is concerned.

The inflationary result of the strike has not been lost either on the American people or on other ambitious labor union leaders, who have never been known to forget.

The labor leaders will be trying to get more for their members at the earliest possible date.

Since it has been demonstrated that it can be done, they'll be willing to make everybody from President Johnson on down look like fools just as the airline machinists did so successfully in getting a whopper of a settlement.

This process is making a mockery of the collective bargaining but the airline machinists union leaders defend it as being "democracy" at work. It is a form of perverted deomocracy which endangers the rights of the majority of the people.

It may be better that neither President Johnson nor Congress act to protect the public interest.

When public irritation grows great enough the people will throw out of office those federal officials, who chose to ignore their well being in favor of cultivating the labor union vote.

The public's patience has grown razor thin and the hope for better labor-management relations grows dimmer every time a union flaunts the public interest and defies the President and the members of Congress with the impunity of the airline machinists.

The President and Congress need to be shown the public's displeasure with their inaction.

If they receive the message at the polls it will come through loud and clear at last.

THE GOLD GAME

BY THE END OF AUGUST, France will probably have converted into gold the entire amount of $146 million which accrued to French reserves during July. That will bring the French gold hoard to almost $5.4 billion, next to the United States' the largest in the world.

Since the end of 1964, when President de Gaulle announced that France would reduce her holdings of dollars, France has converted a minimum of $34 million -- or 30 tons of gold -- each month. The gold drain is alarming to many American economists, though opinion is not solid. The dollars France redeems ship gold from Ft. Knox to Paris.

When France engaged in the gold game, as money men call it, 73 per cent of her reserves were in gold. A year later the figure was 85 per cent. So far this year the rise has been gradual, to about 86 per cent. The reserve total is about $6 billion.

ACCUMULATION OF GOLD in the United States reached its high-water mark in 1949, when American reserves totaled $24.6 billion. Since then the outflow has been consistent, though occasionally the rate has been reduced. Today the holding is slightly over $13.3 billion, as against well over $13.8 billion a year ago.

The gold drain stems from the chronic American deficit in the balance of international payments. We still sell more abroad than we buy, but that margin is dwindling. And our expenditures for the war in Viet Nam, our massive foreign aid, and private investment abroad tip the balance of payments machine to TILT.

All the efforts of the past three administrations to redress the balance have been insufficient to the task. Some good news came on Aug. 18, when Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler announced that the payments deficit for April, May, and June was only $163 million. This was a trifle higher than the total of $150 hinted a week earlier, but still a healthy cut from the first-quarter deficit of $563 million.

HOW LONG we can play the gold game with France remains to be seen. Already there is pressure in some parts of Congress and some sections of the press to make France pay the $6.5 billion owing to us since World War II.

Most economists say we are skating near the balance of payments abyss. But Eli Shapiro, Harvard Business School professor of finance, recently told an international symposium that short-term claims against the American gold stock have been exaggerated. Too little has been said about the U. S. long-term creditor position in the world, which has risen from $3 billion in 1946 to $55 billion today.

Why is France playing the gold game, anyway? Some say it's a reflection of the ancient French peasant instinct to hoard gold i n times of emergency. More likely, it's an attack on both the pound sterling and the dollar to try to effect currency revaluation.

Edward W. Kuhn, President of the American Bar Association, at its annual convention in Montreal:

"Why will America keenly watch what we do here today and tomorrow? Because America is in desperate need of authoritative advice from the organized bar in the field of human rights and responsibilities. In the light of prevailing conditions, of the 'long hot summers,' we have failed in our duty to the American people, both old and young. Especially do our youth need education in these fundamental principles. We observe small groups of students in effect taking over a large university by simply locking out the school administrators. We hear them cry 'Freedom, Freedom,' yet they demonstrate little awareness that with freedom goes responsibility.

"We see more and more students absorbing the principles of political science, and at the same time more and more young people becoming faceless figures in banner groups whose single-minded purpose seems to be rebellion. Rebellion, as a product of permissiveness and a tool of pressure groups which misunderstand freedom, is a trap and a snare.

"We have withstood teach-ins, lie-downs, lie-ins, sit-ins, mass demonstrations, mass invasion of governmental offices -- including the White House itself--blocking of busy streets, entrances and exits to public buildings, armed groups of citizens espousing opposite dogmas confronting each other in public seizure of private property by force, deadly and vicious riots, and other forms of unlawful protest.

"We hear of self-appointed leaders, both secular and religious, proclaiming in all sincerity the philosophy that it is right and proper to obey only the laws he believes to be just --that he can with moral impunity disobey those he does not believe just. The late Mr. Justice Frankfurter gave the answer to this when he said:

" ' If a man can be allowed to determine for himself what is law, every man can. This means first, chaos, then tyranny.' "

The remaining 37 per cent (26 drivers) had valid licenses, but did not have them in their possession when stopped.

TALLEST BIRDS

The tallest bird ever to live on earth was the giant moa, now extinct. Some very big species were alive until about 1570, possibly until about 1770. The average giant moa stood about twelve feet high, with enormous, elephantine leg bones.

WHEN WE WERE a boy there was as much condemnation of cigarettes as there was of liquor. The cigarettes were called "coffin nails" and our grandmother and mother guided us through most of our youthful years afraid of tobacco in that form. At an early age, we can't remember just when, we began smoking small cigars. Likely we didn't smoke more than two a week, but felt sort of grownup puffing on a cigar.

We must have been 18 or close to it when one night our date expressed a desire for a smoke, and we bought a package of Fatimas. As she smoked, we thought we might as well. That was the first cigarette we ever smoked and it didn't create a habit for we very rarely thereafter smoked any.

But in the fall of 1913 we entered the University of Kansas and most all of the boys in our fraternity smoked ciagrettes. As a pledge one of the first things that we remember was being taken by an upper classman to the leading drug store in Lawrence, introduced to a clerk and recommended as being "alright." In case you did not know, Kansas had a law against selling cigarettes and they were bootlegged just like liquor was, though the cigarettes could be bought in respectable places. It appealed to us as so thrilling to lay a quarter on the counter in the drug store and be handed a sack with a package of Camels in it, we soon got "hooked" with the habit.

Camels could be bought in Kansas City in those days for 10 cents a package, but brought 25 cents in Lawrence. Our fraternity house would have some of the members buy a suitcase full of cigarettes in the city and then retail them to the brothers.

The years passed and from a slight beginning the habit worked on us until we smoked not less than two and a half packages a day, and many days three packages. Lots of times we would light a cigarette and look down in the ash try and see the remains of one still burning.

Forty years passed and we won't estimate the thousands and thousands of cigarettes we smoked, nor the hundreds of dollars we spent on them. Then came New Year's Eve, December 31, 1952. We took sick that evening, an not from what the date might infer. It was the old fashioned flu. For several days we were so sick we didn't want to smoke, and then we got better. Realizing we hadn't smoked in 1953, we decided we'd quit long enough to get the nicotine out of our system. Phil Donnelly had named us to his staff of honorary colonels and we went to the first gathering of these gentlemen, carrying two packages of cigarettes, for we felt we had done without smoking long enough. But before we ever lit one, we found ourself bragging to another colonel that "We haven't smoked this year." And we are still bragging and it's not far from 14 years now.

We cannot remember there being as many makes of cigarettes when we were a boy as there are now. Pall Malls were on the market but they were 100% Turkish tobacco then, packed 10 cigarettes to the box, and selling for 25 cents when other cigarettes were only 10 cents. Fatimas had an unusual taste and many thought some kind of dope was put in them. Egyptian Deities were a dainty cork tipped (not filter), oval shaped cigarette. Camels looked just like they do now, even the package was the same. Our older friends remember such brands as Sweet Caperal, Omar, Home Run, Piccayune, Lord Salisbury, Piedmont, Nebo (10 for 5¢), Benson and Hedges.

Like a lot of other boys we started smoking early, but not cigarettes. First there was corn silk, then mullen, grape leaves rolled into cigars, buggy whip which burned your mouth with every puff, catapa beans, and doubtless other things we have forgotten. Old women smoked pipes, but it was a rare thing when a young housewife or a girl smoked, the one who got us started being an exception.

Tobacco chewing was very popular but we never cared for it. Our uncle, for whom we are named, made the statement frequently that no one would make a good printer who didn't chew tobacco.

Nearly every town had a cigar factory, sometimes more than one. There was a cigar factory in Shelbina when we came in 1926.

LAST YEARS

The year 27 B.C. is generally held to be the last year of the Roman Republic.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- This column owes an apology to Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., regarding the recent account of his trip to Miami -- with his two sons-- in which it was stated that he double-billed the Senate Internal Security Committee and the Citizens Committee for a free Cuba $153.72 each for the trip.

Sen. Dodd did take his two sons, together with his assistant, David Martin, Martin's wife and two children, to Miami under interesting circumstances. But a refund was given to the Cuban Committee. Here are further details, some of them complicated, but illustrating the manner in which one senator maneuvered with the taxpayers' money.

The trip took place in 1965 during a Senate Internal Security Committee investigation friendly to Gen. Wessin Y Wessin, the Dominican strongman who was bucking the state department's attempt to set up a civilian government in the Dominican Republic. Sen. Dodd and Roman Hruska, R-Neb., of this committee seemed intent on lining up against the State Department on the side of the military. For some reason best known to the senators, their investigation was taking place in the swank Eden Roc hotel, one of the most expensive in Miami, instead of the rent-free federal building in Miami where hearings are traditionally held.

The invitation to Sen. Dodd, Mrs. Dodd, and assistant Martin came from Paul D. Bethel, secretary of the Citizens Committee for a free Cuba, who now complains that Dodd was not invited by the Citizens Committee but by the Cuban representation in exile.

THE FAMILY IS INCLUDED

After the invitation was issued, Martin telephoned Bethel to ask if Tom Dodd, Jr., couldn't come with the Senator and Mrs. Dodd. The Cubans said fine and sent him an extra ticket. At this point Martin decided that since he and the Senator were going to the Wessin Y Wessin hearing, he could charge his own ticket to the Senate Internal Security Committee and use the free ticket donated by the Cuban Committee to take his wife to Miami.

After inquiring around among the airlines, Martin also found that the first-class ticket given him by the Cubans could be used under the family plan, tourist class, to take his wife and two children. This was done.

At the last minute Mrs. Dodd decided not to go. So Dodd exchanged her ticket for one for Jeremy Dodd, his second son. Thus, thanks to the generosity of the Cubans, plus a smart exchange of airline tickets, Sen. Dodd, his two sons, his assistant, David Martin, Martin's wife and two children all went to Miami and all stayed at the Eden Roc, where their expenses were paid by the Cubans.

PRIVACY INVADERS

A massive invasion of personal privacy is underway in our country. Numerous careful studies have confirmed its existence and shown its extent. The makers of the studies run the gamut from "left" to "right" of the ideological spectrum. They all find the same pattern.

The worst invasions of privacy are those for which government is responsible, since government has the power to force individuals to answer its questions under penalty of fine or imprisonment, or to prosecute individuals on the basis of information gained by privacy invasion. But too many private business corporations are also guilty of privacy invasion, particulary of their employees, through the use of such techniques as the personality test and the so-called "lie detector."

A man's personality and private life are strictly his own business. So long as he injures no one else, no other person should probe him against his will. To be sure, the private business concern has a right not to hire, or to discharge, persons who will not bare their souls on order. But it is very poor practice, and will result in the most talented individuals going elsewhere.

Privacy invasion by government can take the form of "mail covers," electronic spying, or simply too-detailed census questionnaires that recipients are required to answer. The federal government already has much information on every American. We should take care that it is never brought together into the kind of "dossier" which the secret police of totalitarian states like to use. A central file of this kind on every citizen has actually been proposed, but so far rejected. HLH

By Victor Riesel

McNamara: Nation Calling on Negroes t o Fight Abroad Must Give Minorities Full Opportunity at Home

It is not generally known that the Dept. of Defense is the world's biggest employer of labor. I asked Secretary Robert McNamara, as the head of this vast system, to comment on his department's impact on labor and its policies in handling such a vast force. Here is his reply:

By Robert McNamara
Secretary of Defense

Washington, D.C.: I a m pleased to be able to accept Mr. Riesel's invitation t o contribute this guest column. Managing the Department of Defense is, in so many ways, a question of applying human resources to national needs. This, of course, means labor.

As the largest employer in the world, we have a natural interest in labor, just as labor has a natural interest in us. For without the efforts of the many millions of Americans who work with us -- either directly or indirectly -- there can be no effective Defense Department. Human resources available to the government are our most priceless resources. How we use them demonstrates, as perhaps nothing else can, the kind of country we are.

The primary mission of the Department of Defense is to keep America strong. But our large effort also contains a moral obligation. The money, the resources, the labor that are used in the defense effort must be expended in accord with our principles and our traditions. This means that the Defense Department, in partnership with industry, must provide labor with equal opportunity for all. Not only must the nation be defended -- our heritage must be defended as well.

This was the thinking which prompted President Kennedy's Executive Order 10925, issued in 1961. Its guiding principle is clear and simple. Industry, in fulfilling the government's contracts, must give the same equal opportunity to labor, without regard to race, creed, color or national origin, that the federal government insists upon in its own operations. There must be no discrimination. There must be no bias. There must be equal opportunity for all.

The directive was not without a bite to it. A vital clause stated that the government could cancel a contract were it determined that discrimination was being exercised in the fulfillment of that contract. It has been the policy of the Department of Defense to buy at the lowest sound price, but we all agreed that price was unacceptable if it meant the exclusion of some Americans from their birthright.

The vast majority of American industry was eager to comply. But compliance was not a simple matter. For the more one looked at the problem, the more one realized that its roots lay in a whole social structure.

Equal opportunity does n o t come from segregated local unions.

Equal opportunity is not born out of Negro ghettos.

Equal opportunity finds no home in poor housing, inadequate education, inferior training programs.

To comply with this order, in short, meant a government-wide effort as well as an industry-wide effort. To comply with this order meant, in fact, a compliance with the promises of the American Constitution.

The statistics for the 1964-65 non-white employment in the first 100 companies enrolled in industry's voluntary Plans for Progress program have been encouraging. While the total employment in these companies has increased 6.6 per cent, the increase in total non-white employment increased 19.1 per cent.

Yet, in as expanding economy, the gains in non-white employment by these 100 companies have not been reflected on a national basis. These companies have shown what can be done, but the great national imbalance in truly equal opportunity, opportunities within the whole spectrum of management and labor, still remains a challenge for what must be done.

If the obligations of citizenship require a non-white citizen to serve in battle, he must also be able to serve, without discrimination, in industry.

If a Negro can become an officer -- and hundreds have -- equal opportunity should mean that he can also become an office manager.

In short, we must build our country as we build our strength. It would be a hollow thing indeed if, in the act of building our defenses, we overlook the very principles which we have set out to defend.

When you come down to it, basically, we are defending an idea. This, in essence, is what the Defense Department is all about. We are apt to think in terms of the tangible expression of that idea -- the land itself, its resources, t h e physical bounty of our country. But America would be just another land without the concepts that govern it. The very heart of that concept is equal opportunity for all. Deny the concept and you deny America. Deny the concept and there is no true America to defend -- only a latitude and a longitude, which could be any other land by any other name.

If we hope to realize our promise of the future, we must keep our promise with our past. Almost two hundred years ago that promise was spelled out in the Constitution. Today it is spelled out once again in President Johnson's bill for civil rights.

Many problems must b e solved before equal employment, not only in defense related industries, but also throughout the country, becomes a reality. Some of these problems are social, some are economic, some are political.

But the great encouragement is that we are going ahead with the task, and industry is going ahead with it. The results are beginning to be reflected in communities throughout the country, where it is being discovered that opportunity is not diminished by the sharing, and that if democracy is to have its true meaning, it must mean the truths it has vowed to defend.

Most important, one gets the feeling that industry and the whole country are beginning to recognize the right of equal opportunity -- not just because the government says it has to -- but because it is just.

Astros End 24-Inning Drouth With 7-2 Victory

A's Take Two From Boston, 4-2 and 8-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Houston, held scoreless for 24 innings, launched a three-run rally in the fifth inning Wednesday on the way to a 7-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in the Astrodome.

Kansas City, meanwhile, captured both games of a doubleheader against Boston on the East Coast, winning the first game, 4-2, and the second, 8-3.

The A's scored all of their runs in the first game in the sixth-inning on a walk, Mike Hershberger's double, an error and a three-run homer by Roger Repoz. Jim Nash got credit for the victory, his eighth against one loss, although he needed help from Jack Aker over the last three innings.

Lew Krausse went the distance in the second game, allowing the Red Sox only 5-hits, while his teammates backed him up with an 11-hit attack including two-run homers by Ed Charles and Jim Gosger. Hershberger also drove in two runs on a single. Krausse has now won 10 and lost 7.

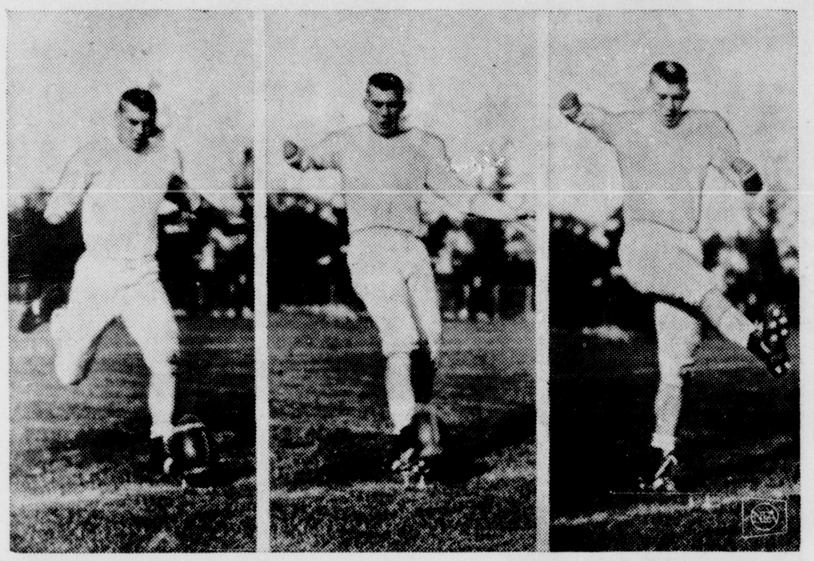
Campy Campaneris was thrown out twice attempting to steal a base in the first game, but was successful in two attempts in the second to boost his total to 38 for the season.

Bob Aspromonte sparked the Houston victory by singling in a run in the fifth to trigger a three - run rally and singled again to score two runs in the sixth in a four - run rally.

The Cardinals were able to collect only five hits off Mike Cuellar who recorded his ninth victory in 15 starts. Larry Jaster was the loser.

The Cardinals are idle today.

Kansas City plays Boston in another doubleheader with Paul Lindblad, 4-6, and Johnny Odom 2-3, scheduled to face Ed Fischer, 2-9, and Dennis Bennett, 2-2.



RISING TO NEW HIGHT-S is Bob Hight, Southern Illinois placekicker now with the Buffalo Bills. Hight was born without a right arm and lost an eye in a childhood fall. But he is very much in the competition for the job vacated by Pete Gogolak.

HOUSTON AP - Whitey Ford, New York Yankee left-hander, entered Texas Medical Center Hospital Wednesday for an examination of his ailing pitching hand.

Ford, 37, earlier this week was placed on baseball's disabled list a second time this season after complaining of cramps in the fingers of the left hand.

WILD BILL IS HAPPY!!!!!

Dolphins Take On Fourth Consecutive Loss

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Miami Coach George Wilson, whose Dolphins were beaten by Denver 28-16 Wednesday night, apparently sees a silver lining after his team's fourth consecutive exhibition defeat.

"I think our boys are coming around," said Wilson, after the game.

The coach of the American Football League's newest team noted that the Dolphins' 16 points were the most they have scored this year, while Denver's 28 were the least scored by an opponent.

"We just let them pick up a couple of cheap ones in the first half," he said. "In the second half, we gave a better defensive effort-particularly Frank Emmanuel and Willie West."

The scoreboard backed him up. Denver scored all 28 points in the first half while Miami rebounded with a touchdown and a safety after the intermission.

Denver Coach Mac Speedie said the Dolphins were a "very underrated" team, adding: "They're going to surprise a lot of people."

PITCHING - Vernon Law, Pirates, fired six innings of scoreless, one-hit relief in a 5-4 victory over Philadelphia, that sent the Pirates back into the National lead.

A. State Returning 12 Lettermen, Depth and Experience Are Lacking

JONESBORO--Arkansas State Head Coach Bennie Ellender will be considered a miracle man in football circles if he, and his A-State coaching staff, can pull the Indians through with a winning record this season. Although the Indians finished with an unbeaten 7-0-2 record two seasons ago and last year tallied a respectable 6-3 slate, the Redmen will be hard pressed to come near those marks this season.

The Indians will have only 12 lettermen returning, with a total of 19 letters among them, to face one of the toughest schedules in recent Indian history. Included in the schedule are Ohio Valley foes Tennessee Tech and Murray State, Gulf State opponents Southwestern Louisiana and Louisiana Tech, Southland cousins Lamar Tech, Abilene Christian, Trinity University and Arlington State, and independent Florence State.

Nineteen lettermen were lost by graduation, including the entire first unit, with the lone exception of quarterbeck Terry Gwin turned halfback for this season, and five starters off the second unit.

The Indians' major problem will be lack of depth and experience at all positions except quarterback. The Indians will be changing to the use of offensive and defensive platoons instead of using platoons which played both ways as in past seasons.

The brightest ray in the Redmen's future is the return of last year's defensive secondary led by ALL-SLC safety Dick Ritchey. The trio intercepted 7 passes and held Indian opposition to less than 66 yards per game through the air. The returning halfbacks are three-year letterman Bryan Caplinger and sophomore Gary Hankins.

A-State's chief offensive experience will also lie in the backfield. Gwin, last year's leading rusher with 534 yards for a 4.9 per carry average, will return, as will the team's leading passer, Tim Keane, who hit on 27 of 67 passes for 326 yards. Keane, who like Gwin will be a senior this season, will have sole control of the signal calling duties.

The fullback will probably be 185-pound junior Steve Gankiewicz, who lettered last season as a halfback. Benny Winford, a two-year letterman, will man the other halfback position.

The A-State offensive line will be filled with new faces. The only certain returning lettermen is tackle Dwain Glenn, a 219-pound sophomore. Gerald Jumper, last year's leading pass receiver, will see duty as the split end. Virgil Peyton is slated for the tight end position. However, David Wagnon and Dennis Zolper, both freshman redshirts, are putting up a good battle for starting end positions.

Coach Ellender will go with Jack Smith at the other offensive tackle position. Smith is a 210-pound redshirt. The starting guards will probably be Dennis Roberts, a 220-pound junior transfer, and Sid Trammell, a 6-5, 230-pound freshman.

The center position will be manned by Ran Worthen, a 6-5, 225-pound junior squadman who was impressive in spring training.

Leading the defensive linemen will be linebackers Truman Moore and Bill Bergey. Moore, a 6-1, 218-pound senior, is the club's most experienced lineman with three letters. Bergey is probably the team's fastest lineman, and lettered last season as a noseman.

Eugene Thompson, 6-0, 224-pounder, is slated for the noseman slot, while Dan Buckley and Charles Hinrich are the leading defensive tackle candidates. All three are freshman redshirts.

The defensive ends will be Steve Puryear, a junior who lettered last season as a guard and linebacker, and Tom Howard, a junior transfer.

The Indians' success will depend greatly on the success of transfers and incoming freshmen, combined with the improvement of the numerous freshmen redshirts who will be heavily counted on.

Jim Brown the Actor Is Through With Football

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON, England—(NEA)—Stage 10 on the movie lot in Boreham Wood was made up to look like the inside of a World War II army stockade.

There is an ennui to movie making that an outsider can't grasp. It's like the real army where you always hurry up and wait.

The real pros take it in stride. Lee Marvin, Telly Savalas, Charles Bronson, Clint Walker and John Cassavetes sit at the long, prop-loaded dinner table. They turn the emotion of a tense scene on and off like an electric switch. With them is Jimmy Brown. He's casual, too.

"He's a beautiful man," said Cassavetes, an intense, talented actor who has also directed fine films. "I think he'll become a better actor than he was a football player.

"When he came into the picture, I didn't know he was Jimmy Brown the football player. But he comes prepared. And you have to. This is the most competitive business in the world. If he can get by in this bunch of guys, he can do O.K. any place."

Brown's acting career began when he was in Los Angeles two and a half years ago to play in the Pro Bowl. He got a phone call asking if he'd like to play in a western. It was an opus called "Rio Conchos" and Brown's part was mostly flexing his muscles.

"I tried to be relaxed," he recalled. "I tried to deliver my lines easy, to fit in. Here I've got to do more than fit in. The challenge of acting changes as you get a little more astute. I'm trying to compete, to live the part."

Does he find the competition an extension of the same thing he experienced in football?

"It's as hard as playing a game. It drains you. You're just as tired. Actors like to zing you, as they say. They like to surprise you within the confines of the script and bring out the real response in you.

"You have to meet these challenges by zinging back. When you have two actors in a scene and they're really zinging and it's real, the audience senses that realness. And then you come out with what we construe as a good picture."

It seemed possible that the other actors, experienced in their craft, might help him over the rough spots.

"That went out with grade school," scoffed Marvin. "He doesn't need any help. He just has to be Jimmy Brown. He has a tremendous opportunity because he's the first Negro actor to come along that the average man in Watts or Harlem or the Detroit ghetto can identify with. He looks like them and slouches like them and talks like them. Not like Sidney Poitier, who goes around all day talking Shakespeare."

And this is why I think that Jimmy Brown, at the age of 30, is through with football and will stay in his new medium. He has a commitment from Paramount Pictures for another film, with an option for two more. He is convinced there is room for him as a Negro leading actor.

Baseball Meeting Opens

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball's major leagues open their annual summer meetings in Chicago today with such items on the agenda as:

Who's going to pay Marvin Miller's salary?; clarification of the White Sox proposal to relax rules limiting major leaguers playing winter baseball.

The Major League Players Association proposes to tap the players' pension fund to pay their $50,000-a-year executive director, Marvin Miller. Among those attacking this plan is Art Allyn, White Sox owner.

"It's illegal," he says. "It makes the pension plan illegal for tax deduction and can endanger the whole pension plan, one of the finest programs anywhere."

Miller currently is paid through dues of the Players Association.

Allyn also is opposed to any agreement with the National Collegiate Athletic Association to hold off signing baseball prospects until their college classes have graduated. Presently, the majors cannot sign a collegian until after his sophomore year.

The majors are expected to approve a contract that would send one major league club to Japan on tour every other year, alternating between National and American League teams.

The White Sox have proposed that major league players be allowed to play winter ball at any time during their first five years in the majors. Currently, winter ball is limited to players in their first three years with a major league club.

"He's a beautiful man," said Cassavetes, an intense, talented actor who has also directed fine films. "I think he'll become a better actor than he was a football player.

"When he came into the picture, I didn't know he was Jimmy Brown the football player. But he comes prepared. And you have to. This is the most competitive business in the world. If he can get by in this bunch of guys, he can do O.K. any place."

Brown's acting career began when he was in Los Angeles two and a half years ago to play in the Pro Bowl. He got a phone call asking if he'd like to play in a western. It was an opus called "Rio Conchos" and Brown's part was mostly flexing his muscles.

"I tried to be relaxed," he recalled. "I tried to deliver my lines easy, to fit in. Here I've got to do more than fit in. The challenge of acting changes as you get a little more astute. I'm trying to compete, to live the part."

Does he find the competition an extension of the same thing he experienced in football?

"It's as hard as playing a game. It drains you. You're just as tired. Actors like to zing you, as they say. They like to surprise you within the confines of the script and bring out the real response in you.

"You have to meet these challenges by zinging back. When you have two actors in a scene and they're really zinging and it's real, the audience senses that realness. And then you come out with what we construe as a good picture."

It seemed possible that the other actors, experienced in their craft, might help him over the rough spots.

"That went out with grade school," scoffed Marvin. "He doesn't need any help. He just has to be Jimmy Brown. He has a tremendous opportunity because he's the first Negro actor to come along that the average man in Watts or Harlem or the Detroit ghetto can identify with. He looks like them and slouches like them and talks like them. Not like Sidney Poitier, who goes around all day talking Shakespeare."

And this is why I think that Jimmy Brown, at the age of 30, is through with football and will stay in his new medium. He has a commitment from Paramount Pictures for another film, with an option for two more. He is convinced there is room for him as a Negro leading actor.

Baseball Meeting Opens

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball's major leagues open their annual summer meetings in Chicago today with such items on the agenda as:

Who's going to pay Marvin Miller's salary?; clarification of the White Sox proposal to relax rules limiting major leaguers playing winter baseball.

The Major League Players Association proposes to tap the players' pension fund to pay their $50,000-a-year executive director, Marvin Miller. Among those attacking this plan is Art Allyn, White Sox owner.

"It's illegal," he says. "It makes the pension plan illegal for tax deduction and can endanger the whole pension plan, one of the finest programs anywhere."

Miller currently is paid through dues of the Players Association.

Allyn also is opposed to any agreement with the National Collegiate Athletic Association to hold off signing baseball prospects until their college classes have graduated. Presently, the majors cannot sign a collegian until after his sophomore year.

The majors are expected to approve a contract that would send one major league club to Japan on tour every other year, alternating between National and American League teams.

The White Sox have proposed that major league players be allowed to play winter ball at any time during their first five years in the majors. Currently, winter ball is limited to players in their first three years with a major league club.

Red Tape Creates Hardships for Wives of Missing Servicemen

EDITOR'S NOTE — The wives of some U. S. fighting men missing or captured in Viet Nam must tangle with red tape and what seems to them bureaucratic indifference. Here's a report on what can happen when a service wife suddenly finds herself in a legal limbo.

By JOHN T. WHEELER

NEW YORK (AP) — Wives of U.S. fighting men missing or captured in Viet Nam say they sometimes must shoulder bewildering burdens because their husbands have become legal "nonpersons."

Some of them contend they have been forced to tackle walls of red tape and bureaucratic indifference in carrying the load.

When a man is declared missing or captured, his status falls into a gray legal area, somewhere between alive and dead. He can not act for himself, and his wife or dependents can't act for him, except in special circumstances.

Major complaints reported by next of kin include:

— Problems in making ends meet because money the serviceman had been sending home stops and the pay he was getting is frozen. It can take weeks or months to unfreeze part of it.

-- A federal income tax bureau refused to process a joint return unless the wife somehow got the signature of her husband, who had been shot down over North Viet Nam.

— The woman was forced to sell the family car because she couldn't get new license plates without her husband's signature.

Wives and children who are entitled to free medical treatment can't get it sometimes in emergencies because they are not allowed to live on military bases.

— Attorney fees to solve legal problems directly related to a missing man's or POW's status must be borne by the families.

— Only bare-boned, sometimes confusing reports are issued by the Defense Department concerning the fate of lost men. Many doubts are cleared up only after families ask congressmen for help.

A Pentagon spokesman said such problems are "normal things that must be put up with when a man is missing or captured. Anyone with someone missing in action or captured will hit snags."

He said the Pentagon does its best to give families the full details of casualties. Complaints, he said, must be the exception.

Each service maintains a casualty assistance office to help dependents in whatever way possible after their men become casualties, the spokesman said.

He added later, "But don't write anything that will bring a flood of letters or calls. Its not so much that they (the offices) couldn't handle it, but there is no requirement for it. It would create unnecessary problems."

Instances of proolems faced by families have cropped up in reports from a recently formed civilian group seeking to protect POW's legal rights, and in interviews of some wives by The Associated Press.

Names of the missing men and their families are ommitted to prevent the Communists from confronting captured men with reports of difficulties encountered by their dependents. The Defense Department declines to make public information about the men for the same reason.

One woman who tried to get quick cash from the Air Force after her husband was shot down reported, "One officer at the base told me to go on relief because he couldn't give me the money.

"It was only a couple of weeks before Christmas and I said, 'You've got to be kidding me.' But he wasn't."

She had been getting a regular postal money order from her husband in addition to a monthly allotment of $200, a deduction from his pay arranged by the serviceman.

Told she could not draw against her husband's pay, which was accumulating in a special account, the woman threatened to go to the newspapers. She also wrote President Johnson. She says she got the money and a letter of apology from the Air Force.

The troubles of some service wives came to light during the past two months after Patrick McGahn, an Atlantic City, N.J., lawyer, formed the Society for the Defense of American Prisoners.

McGahn's original interest was in trying to get American lawyers into North Viet Nam to defend American fliers, then threatened with trials as war criminals.

He says that more than 100 wives and parents of missing men called or wrote him, many complaining of their treatment by the government. Some enclosed copies of their correspondence with the military and congressmen.

With some 400 Americans missing in the Viet Nam war, McGahn suggests the services could pool resources to provide highly trained personnel that could regularly visit dependents, explain their rights, help with filling out forms, offer legal advice and aid them in dealing with government agencies.

If a GI is killed, then such things as real estate and other property pass to dependents together with special payments from the government and money from insurance policies.

To ease the threat of red tape, the services encourage Viet Nam- bound men to give their wives general powers of attorney — permitting them to act for the husband legally no matter what comes up. But some wives report this doesn't always solve the problem.

A Pentagon source said men who try to make out valid powers of attorney from Viet Nam cannot do so in 23 states which insist that the documents be witnessed by a notary public of that state or have other restrictions.

Many men are sent to Viet Nam with only a few days notice and don't get around to clearing up all their personal affairs.

Some men balk at filling out powers of attorney or assigning nearly all their pay to their wives for a variety of reasons.

One is that an unscrupulous woman could put everything in her name and then sue for divorce.

Some men have said their wives just don't have the needed business sense. Many decline to act for the same reason other men refuse to make wills. They don't want to admit even indirectly that they may not be coming back.

The Pentagon spokesman said the Army has an aggressive and effective program to get its men to do their best to insure that wives will not run into unnecessary problems. He said the Navy and Air Force have not done nearly so well. The overwhelming majority of missing and captured men are Navy and Air Force fliers.

School Bells Jingle Nation's Cash Boxes

By SALLY RYAN
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) —School bells are ringing bells on cash registers for the nation's merchants.

The back-to-school crowd pays more than $3 billion each year for Eatman lunch boxes, Beatles writing tablets, plum hiprider skirts, the longest dipping all the way down to the top of the knee; white texture hose, long dazzling earrings, honey-hued corduroy jeans, red stretch tights, plaid school bags and fake fur hassocks.

It's the biggest thing next to Christmas for the stores.

Take a look at a few school girl figures:

Eugene Gilbert Youth Research, in a study for Seventeen magazine, sampled 5.8 million high school girls last year and another 618,000 who were off for their first year of college.

The college girls spent a total of $289,277,000, an average of $468.07 each, the survey indicated. The high school girls averaged $231.17 each, a total of $1,340,822,000 getting ready for school.

The survey estimated the girls bought more than 33 million pairs of shoes, sneakers sandals, slippers and boots, 27.5 million blouses, 22 million skirts, 13 million dresses and 8 million sweaters, along with 8 million coats.

The Boys' Apparel Buyers' Association, Inc., estimates boys 6 to 18 spend $510 million to $575 million each August and September on clothing.

This year indications are the figures will be even larger — there are more teen-agers and some prices are higher.

That is why discount stores and fashion houses are sending out back-to-school catalogs, putting kicky clothes in display windows and spending thousands of dollars on fashion shows.

"It's a time of major expenditure," said Melvin E. Dawley, president of Lord & Taylor, New York.

Dawley estimated that the back-to-school and Christmas sales combined accounted for half of the year's business in children's departments, with Christmas sales about 25 per cent larger.

In Philadelphia, retailers are promoting tape recorders for class note-taking. A Chicago department store suggests a black and white mod room with vinyl pillows for studying. Denver stores report a brisk business in pots for boiling water for coffee or tea. Hair dryers are promoted as back-to-school items in Cleveland.

A Southern California chain is advertising bookcases, beds, desks, bedspreads, lamps and related items, and a St. Louis store is advertising student desks and chairs.

Woman of 71 Flushes Robbers With Club

KANSAS CITY, Kan. AP - It was when one of three young robbers hit her over the head that 71-year-old Mrs. Garnet H. Smith got mad.

She grabbed a club from a wastebasket and chased them out of the house. In their haste one of the robbers dropped his .32 caliber pistol.

The men entered the Smith home Tuesday night while Mrs. Smith and a house guest, Mrs. Nettie Pearce, 70, of Houston, were out to mail a letter.

Mrs. Pearce went into the house while Mrs. Smith was parking their car and was forced to turn over her billfold, containing $6.

When Mrs. Smith came in, she told the bandits she had no money. One struck her on the head and forced her into the bedroom. There, she seized the club and struck one man. He ran and the other two followed. Mrs. Smith suffered a cut on the scalp.

This Shouldn't Happen to Anyone

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) - After eight years delay by broken legs, assorted childhood mishaps and childbirth, Mr. and Mrs. Arden Miser and their eight children finally set out on a vacation trip.

They and the family dog headed for a rented cottage at Higgins Lake.

About 25 miles from home a rear wheel on the loaded family station wagon started to lock and a short time later exploded.

Miser walked to a telephone to call a tow truck. Mrs. Miser and children stayed in the car.

"Then I heard a crackling sound," she recalled. "I looked back and smelled smoke. Then I saw it."

She took the children, aged 1 to 12, to the side of the road just as the car burst into flames.

"We saved nothing, not even my purse which was beside me on the front seat," she said.

Fishing Ground

Dogger Bank is an isolated shoal in the North Sea off the coast of England. It is 160 miles long, 60 miles wide and 50 feet below the surface of the sea at its highest point. A well-known fishing ground, it gets its name from the Dutch "dogger," meaning a trawler, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Journeymen Win First At Jackson

JACKSON -- The Journeymen, a newly formed Sikeston folk-singing group, won first place in the Jackson Homecoming talent show Tuesday night.

The group is composed of Larry Bond, guitar, Russell Felker, guitar; Malcolm Lee, bass; and George Gilmore, banjo. The prize was $25.

Gilmore was unable to sing with the group Tuesday as he was employed out of town. The Journeymen will compete Saturday night with other contest winners for the grand prize.

Trouble Mushrooms

LOS ANGELES AP - Mrs. Tak Woo's problem with her car is mushrooming.

She said Tuesday she didn't know whether to take it to a mechanic or a gardener when she found a crop of brown and white mushrooms sprouting from the floor matting.

She decided on a mechanic who said, "It looks like there may be a leak in the air conditioner which makes the carpet damp."

And if repairing the air conditioner doesn't do it?

"I'm on my third crop," says Mrs. Woo. "If only I could be sure they were edible."

The college girls spent a total of $289,277,000, an average of $468.07 each, the survey indicated. The high school girls averaged $231.17 each, a total of $1,340,822,000 getting ready for school.

The survey estimated the girls bought more than 33 million pairs of shoes, sneakers sandals, slippers and boots, 27.5 million blouses, 22 million skirts, 13 million dresses and 8 million sweaters, along with 8 million coats.

The Boys' Apparel Buyers' Association, Inc., estimates boys 6 to 18 spend $510 million to $575 million each August and September on clothing.

This year indications are the figures will be even larger — there are more teen-agers and some prices are higher.

That is why discount stores and fashion houses are sending out back-to-school catalogs, putting kicky clothes in display windows and spending thousands of dollars on fashion shows.

"It's a time of major expenditure," said Melvin E. Dawley, president of Lord & Taylor, New York.

Dawley estimated that the back-to-school and Christmas sales combined accounted for half of the year's business in children's departments, with Christmas sales about 25 per cent larger.

In Philadelphia, retailers are promoting tape recorders for class note-taking. A Chicago department store suggests a black and white mod room with vinyl pillows for studying. Denver stores report a brisk business in pots for boiling water for coffee or tea. Hair dryers are promoted as back-to-school items in Cleveland.

A Southern California chain is advertising bookcases, beds, desks, bedspreads, lamps and related items, and a St. Louis store is advertising student desks and chairs.

Woman of 71 Flushes Robbers With Club

KANSAS CITY, Kan. AP - It was when one of three young robbers hit her over the head that 71-year-old Mrs. Garnet H. Smith got mad.

She grabbed a club from a wastebasket and chased them out of the house. In their haste one of the robbers dropped his .32 caliber pistol.

The men entered the Smith home Tuesday night while Mrs. Smith and a house guest, Mrs. Nettie Pearce, 70, of Houston, were out to mail a letter.

Mrs. Pearce went into the house while Mrs. Smith was parking their car and was forced to turn over her billfold, containing $6.

When Mrs. Smith came in, she told the bandits she had no money. One struck her on the head and forced her into the bedroom. There, she seized the club and struck one man. He ran and the other two followed. Mrs. Smith suffered a cut on the scalp.

This Shouldn't Happen to Anyone

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) - After eight years delay by broken legs, assorted childhood mishaps and childbirth, Mr. and Mrs. Arden Miser and their eight children finally set out on a vacation trip.

They and the family dog headed for a rented cottage at Higgins Lake.

About 25 miles from home a rear wheel on the loaded family station wagon started to lock and a short time later exploded.

Miser walked to a telephone to call a tow truck. Mrs. Miser and children stayed in the car.

"Then I heard a crackling sound," she recalled. "I looked back and smelled smoke. Then I saw it."

She took the children, aged 1 to 12, to the side of the road just as the car burst into flames.

"We saved nothing, not even my purse which was beside me on the front seat," she said.

Journeymen Win First At Jackson

JACKSON -- The Journeymen, a newly formed Sikeston folk-singing group, won first place in the Jackson Homecoming talent show Tuesday night.

The group is composed of Larry Bond, guitar, Russell Felker, guitar; Malcolm Lee, bass; and George Gilmore, banjo. The prize was $25.

Gilmore was unable to sing with the group Tuesday as he was employed out of town. The Journeymen will compete Saturday night with other contest winners for the grand prize.

Trouble Mushrooms

LOS ANGELES AP - Mrs. Tak Woo's problem with her car is mushrooming.

She said Tuesday she didn't know whether to take it to a mechanic or a gardener when she found a crop of brown and white mushrooms sprouting from the floor matting.

She decided on a mechanic who said, "It looks like there may be a leak in the air conditioner which makes the carpet damp."

And if repairing the air conditioner doesn't do it?

"I'm on my third crop," says Mrs. Woo. "If only I could be sure they were edible."

Training Program for Draft Misfits to Start in October

By BOB HORTON

WASHINGTON AP — The armed forces will embark in October on a special training effort designed to bring up to required military standards many poorly educated or physically deficient youths.

The Pentagon provided this starting date and listed the training bases for the program Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara envisioned Tuesday as an aid to the services as well as a benefit to American society.

Men ordinarly disqualified for military service will undergo what the Pentagon described as "supplementary or intensified training" to bring them up to minimum standards.

This schooling will take place at regular military training centers around the country.

But exactly which individuals will be affected and what kind and periods of training they will undergo before being accepted or rejected for a full military tour were not fully spelled out by the defense chief.

McNamara offered no clues when he mentioned the program as a military-social mission in a speech to Veterans of Foreign Wars in New York.

He said 40,000 young men would receive the "supplementary" training this fiscal year and 100,000 annually thereafter.

The defense chief said it is hoped up to 85 per cent of the trainees would then be retained for military duty. McNamara said the program would not affect the present draft standards.

Pentagon sources said the trainees would be sworn into the armed services, just as draftees and enlistees are. Those trainees unable to meet the armed services standards after the training period would be given an honorable discharge as unqualified, it was explained.

The sources also said that the new program would have no substantial impact on draft quotas. "This merely will provide us a bit bigger pool of qualified manpower for the military," one spokesman said.

The Pentagon said the program will be conducted at these bases:

Army — Ft. Dix, N.J.; Ft. Jackson, S.C.; Ft. Knox, Ky.; Ft. Gordon, Ga.; Ft. Polk, La.; Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.; Ft. Ord, Calif.; Ft. Benning, Ga.; Ft. Bliss, Tex.; Ft. Lewis, Wash.; Ft. Bragg, N.C.; Ft. Campbell, Ky.; Ft. Sill, Okla.; Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.; Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

Navy — Recruit training centers at San Diego, Calif., and Great Lakes, Ill.

Air Force — Lackland AFB, Tex.

Film Maker Takes Cue From Disney

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What's he trying to be — another Walt Disney?" asked a local observer of producer Ivan Tors.

The Budapest-born movie maker would like nothing more than to achieve the success with family audiences that Disney enjoys, but he is doing mighty fine as Ivan Tors.

Look at his activities:

Two high-rated television series, "Flipper" and "Daktari."

Three movies for the summer-fall season — "Around the World Under the Sea," "Birds Do It," "Namu, the Killer Whale!" plus another shooting in Africa and six in preparation.

A four-stage studio in Miami and an underwater studio in the Bahamas, where the Tors team filmed the wet scenes of "Thunderball."

Africa, U.S.A., where 500 wild animals are trained for movie work.

The difference between Disney and Tors seems to be that while Walt works with animals that are cartooned or automated, Ivan prefers the real thing.

"It all began when I was making 'Sea Hunt,'" said the producer. "During the years of filming we were exposed to sharks, killer whales and all kinds of supposedly dangerous fish. But the only real encounter was when a barracuda bumped against a man's chest. The man was wearing a St. Christopher's medal which the barracuda apparently thought was a fish."

Tors was intrigued by the apparent willingness of the sea beasts to tolerate the presence of human beings. He continued research with land animals as well and is now convinced that man and beast can coexist.

"The approach is simple," he explained in his MGM office where he works surrounded by photographs of his four-footed and finny friends. "There was antagonism between man and animals during the centuries that man was a hunter.

"But now that hunting is no longer necessary, there is no problem in establishing a friendly relationship. The important step is to pass through the boundary that exists between different species."

He accomplishes that by putting the animal on a long chain and allowing it to grow accustomed to the presence of humans.

Tors figures he can train almost any animal in a year's time, and he constantly seeks new challenges. Right now he is teaching a tiger and a police dog to work together! They may costar in a future Tors production.

Soviets Imprison Six For Religious Acts

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has sentenced six members of a Baptist sect to prison terms of unspecified length on charges of "antisocial activities" and influencing childrens' minds with books containing "nonsensical notions on reality."

The newspaper Teacher's Gazette said Tuesday that the trial took place in Rostov-on-Don but did not say when.

According to the paper, the sect organized a street demonstration last May 2 and disrupted public order not only by the demonstration but by baptizing 40 young persons in the Don River. One of those baptized was a girl member of the Young Communists' League.

The paper said she and another girl "behaved bitterly and fanatically in court" during the trial.

The sect leaders set up an illegal Sunday School "in which illiterate and fanatical teachers taught 'God's word' to children 8 to 11 years old, and persistently and systematically accustomed them to a religious outlook," the Gazette said.

The May 2 baptism came on a Monday immediately after May Day which happened to fall on a Sunday this year. The indictment charged the sect with holding meetings that conflicted with official Soviet holidays — all of which come on Sundays except for May Day and the Nov. 7 anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The Baptist sect was accused of influencing young minds through books that contained "nonsensical notions on reality, a disbelief in everything noble and good—they convince believers that there is no happiness on earth and never can be."

One defendant was described as engineer P. D. Belenky who gave Baptist lectures while on business trips. Three others were listed as Zhovmiruk, Bolgovya and Yerisov. Two were unidentified.

The paper did not say whether there was any connection between this Baptist sect and another one at Mtsensk, near Orel, denounced last May 22.

The Rev. Alexander Karev, general secretary of the Baptist Union in the Soviet Union, said the one based in Mtsensk was small and fanatical and regular Baptists disapproved of it.

The Russian, with more than 500,000 members, is the second largest Baptist community in the world after the United States.

Many Baptists at the American Embassy have attended services at the Moscow Baptist church and sung in the choir.

Execution Stay Sought For Collie

By JOHN VINOCUR

NEW YORK (AP) — The city is having second thoughts about Pete the collie, the dog it said must die for nipping one neighbor too many.

Pets, like people, should be able to confront their accusers, a city corporation counsel argued Tuesday. Pete, he said, never saw his.

The city asked for an order returnable today in State Supreme Court that would send the case back to the Department of Health for new hearings and give Pete a chance to prove he is playful, not predatory.

The department had ruled earlier that the 2-year-old collie must be destroyed under state law as a vicious dog. Three bites is the limit set by the statute.

The collie's owner, William Jones, 17, says Pete is just a happy, lively dog who likes people. He contends there is no proof he actually bit anyone.

Asst. Corp. Counsel Irving Gerstman requested in his petition that Pete's case be returned to the Department of Health "with full right to cross-examination and representation by counsel." The department has already agreed to hold new hearings.

Pete was saved last week when State Supreme Court Justice Daniel J. Fitzpatrick issued a temporary stay after Jones, backed by a lawyer and a group of placard-waving supporters, went to fight the death order.

Jones said all Pete would do was clamp his mouth around somebody's arm or hand — a show of affection, rather than a full-fledged bite.

Pete is spending his days at an animal shelter run by the Society for the Prevention for Cruelty to Animals.

His young master says he looks unhappy.

FAIRFIELD, Calif. -- Staff Sergeant Wendle L. Payne, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dowdy of Rt. 1, Essex, Mo., has been awarded the U. S. Air Force Airman's Medal at Travis AFB, Calif., for heorism at the voluntary risk of his life while serving at Tan Son Nhut AB, Vietnam.

Observing an RC-121 aircraft burst into flames while parked on the flight line, Sergeant Payne rushed forward with a fire bottle and extinguished the flame. Braving the hazards of open fire and intense heat in the proximity of thousands of gallons of highly volatile fuel, his actions are credited with saving that aircraft and three others which were parked in the immediate vicinity.

Sergeant Payne was also decorated with the 11th through 15th oak leaf clusters to the Air Medal for meritorious achievement while participating in sustained aerial flight as a combat crew member in Southeast Asia.

The sergeant, presently assigned to Travis, is a member of the Military Airlift Command which provides global airlift, air rescue, aeromedical evacuation, air weather and air photographic and geodetic services for U. S. forces.

Sergeant Payne, a graduate of Bowyt High School, is married to the former Rose M. Connely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Connely of 20 Mallory St., Henderson, Nev.

Sergeant First Class (E7) A.B. Ledbetter, Non-Commissioned Officer in charge of the U. S. Army Recruiting Station, announces that the Sikeston office will resume normal office hours again effective September 6th. The hours will be 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. Monday thru Thursday. Friday and Saturday mornings are reserved for appointments only. Due to annual leave and treatment at the hospital, Sgt. Ledbetter has been unable to maintain normal office hours, the past month. Please call GR1-3419 for appointment.

Pfc. Rayburn Wilson of Morehouse, Mo. is fulfilling a vital assignment with a special group selected from volunteers to serve with the 102nd (Ozark) Infantry Division (Reinforcement Training Unit) in the support of the national rifle and pistol matches conducted by the National Rifle Association at Camp Perry, Ohio, from Aug. 13 to 27.

The 102nd is one of the Army Reserve divisions chosen by the Department of the Army to augment the support for this "World Series of the shooting world" this year. The national matches bring together the most celebrated marksmen in the world and the competition with the rich tradition it has developed since 1907 requires a unique ability to complete a number of complex tasks to support it.

Men of the 102nd are operating ranges on which record marksmanship scores are drawing the attention of noted weapons designers and manufacturers. Some 1,100 from nearly every state are part of this special augmentation for the range support command. They will return to hometown Army Reserve volunteer functions Aug. 27.

Important School Data

The enrollment fee for all elementary students is $1.50 grades 1-6. This fee is the same as in previous years and it is used to provide weekly newspapers, art and writing supplies, workbooks, and other materials needed for the instructional program. Elementary studeats are asked to bring their enrollment fees on the first day of school.

Class "A" lunches will be available to students in all schools (grades 1-12). In addition to the regular menu, a variety of ala carte items will be available to Senior High students. Due to the increased cost of food, the increased cost of food service equipment, supplies, and related services, and a drastic reduction in the amount of surplus food commodities provided by the federal school lunch agency, it would be impossible to continue the quality maintained in the past without a small increase in the cost to the student. Consequently, the price of meals for this year will be 30 cents for elementary children (grades 1-6); 35 cents (grades 7-9); 40 cents for Senior High students. Milk will be 3 cents per carton. Children are encouraged to buy weekly meal tickets, especially in the elementary grades.

Student insurance will be available in the Sikeston Public Schools. It is included in the enrollment fees of students in grades 7-12. The cost of insurance for elementary students is $1.75 for an extended "coverage" policy which protects the child during school time only. The insurance is optional but it is strongly urged that all children in school are protected by some type of accident insurance. 24-hour, full coverage is also available to elementary students (grades 1-6) for $9.00.

The school insurance is selected by a 10 member committee of parents and teachers and is made available to all public school students as an added service. Parents of elementary students who are interested in this insurance protection will be sent insurance folders which explain the insurance and provide envelopes to return the premium if the insurance is desired. Please do not send premium money by your child on the first day of school.

Whynot Citizens Say Why Not Whynot?

WHYNOT, N.C. (AP) — Why did they name Whynot Whynot? "Why not?" says Mrs. M. C. Auman, who's lived about 60 of her 73 years in Whynot. "They couldn't think of anything else."

"At least that's what my mother told me," adds Mrs. Auman. "And that's the story most folks agree to."

Elderly J. B. Slack, born and reared in Whynot, agrees. Sometime before the turn of the century, he says, Whynot's menfolk got together to name their community.

"They suggested a lot of names and couldn't agree," says Slack. "It got later and later. Finally, somebody said, 'Why not call it Whynot?' So they did."

Whynot is two miles from Seagrove, three miles from Jugtown, eight miles from Erect, 13 miles from Ether, 15 miles from Star and 32 miles south of Greensboro in the rolling hills of central North Carolina.

You can miss it if you're not careful because someone tore down its only road sign. The only building on the highway bearing "Whynot" is the Whynot Upholstery Co. It is the community's only real industry. Most of the residents farm.

Nobody's sure exactly how big Whynot is.

"It's all according to how far you want to extend it. A lot of people live in these hills," says Slack, a retired regional director for the Farmers Home Administration.

How many people does Whynot have?

"Let me think a minute," said Arden Macon. "There are a lot of children born recently that I haven't seen. I guess there's anywhere from 75 to 150."

Whynot, says Mrs. Slack, used to be on the old plank road from Winston-Salem to Wilmington on the coast.

"And Whynot," Slack recalls, "had one of the best schools in North Carolina years ago. It was Whynot Academy and was a boarding school. It went through the seventh grade and attracted students from all over this part of the state. A lot of people knew about Whynot because of that school.

"But the schoolhouse burned in 1915 and only the church was left beside it. Then some years ago, they removed the post office and made the mail address Seagrove."

Seagrove has several hundred people, several stores, the post office, and it's on a major highway, U.S. 220.

"But the people in Whynot are proud," says Slack. "They don't like to be known as being from Seagrove. They want to be from Whynot."

ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

by LYNN TWITTY

Although we make every effort to encourage each student to select a program of study in relation to his ability and needs and to work to within reasonable limits of his ability, at some time during the later years of his or her's high school career the student must assume these responsibilities for himself. Teachers can encourage but the student must do the work.

Parents will sometimes tell teachers "make my child work." This we can not do. Teachers can assign the work and encourage the student to do it -- to inspire him in numerous ways -- and mark him on the quality of the work which he does, but "making" the student work is an impossibility.

It is fortunate that most students do assume responsibilities as they mature, physically and mentally, into adulthood. Some acquire a sense of responsibility and self direction even earlier. Some never do.

This is an area in which the parent can be most helpful. Their counseling with their child, their interests in scope and quality of his work, their encouragement and concern, their insistance on reasonable time devoted to it can be the deciding factor in most cases. We are always glad to work with students in bringing about these desirable outcomes but we can not "make" them do it.

School attendance gets better each year. Last year's school attendance has been better than 95%. Obviously it is of tremendous importance that a student be in school every day that school is in session. He can not participate unless he is present. It is difficult to make up this work which is missed. Only the exceptional student does it. We encourage parents to see that their children attend the first day of school and every day thereafter, if they are to receive the educational benefits to which they are entitled and for which the taxpayer is paying.

The educational programs which our Board of Education operates with federal funds will provide many services for the children and adults of the community which would not be possible if they had to be financed from local tax sources.

Not only do the federal funds aid the disadvantaged child or adult, which is their primary aim, but they also permit us to provide better education for all children through some of the services and specialists financed with federal tax money. All teachers or administrators employed to instruct in or manage these federally financed programs, are paid on exactly the same schedule in relation to qualifications, experience, and total hours assigned as are teachers who work in the regular day program grades 1-12.

Businessmen in the areas where community colleges have been established are unanimously of the opinion that these colleges have encouraged the growth of industry in the area and that the general business climate is improved. Much of northern Mississippi's recent industrial growth has been attributed to a parallel development of community colleges in their area. This is a desirable outcome in addition to the primary purpose for establishing community colleges -- that, of course, being to provide educational opportunities, both academic and most important vocational training opportunities to students above the high school level. Many of those who begin in a 2-year community college could not nor would not initially enroll in a 4-year college. This is because they can live at home and commute at much less expense and can in many cases hold down a job at the same time. Those who succeed in an academic program can then, and in most cases they do, transfer to a 4-year institution.

Of a total budget of $1,141,-189.35 spent by the Board of Education last year for the community educational program, only $632,776.22 was paid in direct current taxes by local taxpayers. The remainder of the budget came primarily from the state and federal government. Our per average pupil cost here was $397.63 for the 1965-66 school year. This includes all cost but capital outlay, the lunch and the activities programs. The average per pupil cost for the state of Missouri was near $500. The national average per pupil cost was about $560.

The seven schools in the state of Missouri which provide training for licensed practical nurses sent their graduates to Jefferson City last month to take the State Board Examination prior to receiving their license. Graduates from our program in Sikeston ranked first in average scores with all eighteen candidates scoring far above the mark required. The average score of the Sikeston candidates was 623.6 while the average of the next highest school was 586.7.

The passing score for each student was 350. None of our students scored below 540 while the highest individual score for the Sikeston trainees was 722.

We are proud of this outstanding record and offer our congratulations to the trainees and to our very capable director of LPN Training, Mrs. Claire Eisenbach and her assistants.

We assume that all of these trainees will receive immediate employment as has been the case with all members of past classes.

FAIRFIELD, Calif.--Staff Sergeant Wendle L. Payne (right), nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dowdy of Rt. 1, Essex, Mo., receives the U.S. Air Force Airman's Medal at Travis AFB, Calif., from Brigadier General Maurice F. Casey, commander of the 60th Military Airlift Wing, for service at Tan Son Nhut AB, Vietnam.

FAIRFIELD, Calif. -- Staff Sergeant Wendle L. Payne, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dowdy of Rt. 1, Essex, Mo., has been awarded the U. S. Air Force Airman's Medal at Travis AFB, Calif., for heorism at the voluntary risk of his life while serving at Tan Son Nhut AB, Vietnam.

Observing an RC-121 aircraft burst into flames while parked on the flight line, Sergeant Payne rushed forward with a fire bottle and extinguished the flame. Braving the hazards of open fire and intense heat in the proximity of thousands of gallons of highly volatile fuel, his actions are credited with saving that aircraft and three others which were parked in the immediate vicinity.

Sergeant Payne was also decorated with the 11th through 15th oak leaf clusters to the Air Medal for meritorious achievement while participating in sustained aerial flight as a combat crew member in Southeast Asia.

The sergeant, presently assigned to Travis, is a member of the Military Airlift Command which provides global airlift, air rescue, aeromedical evacuation, air weather and air photographic and geodetic services for U. S. forces.

Sergeant Payne, a graduate of Bowyt High School, is married to the former Rose M. Connely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Connely of 20 Mallory St., Henderson, Nev.

Sergeant First Class (E7) A.B. Ledbetter, Non-Commissioned Officer in charge of the U. S. Army Recruiting Station, announces that the Sikeston office will resume normal office hours again effective September 6th. The hours will be 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. Monday thru Thursday. Friday and Saturday mornings are reserved for appointments only. Due to annual leave and treatment at the hospital, Sgt. Ledbetter has been unable to maintain normal office hours, the past month. Please call GR1-3419 for appointment.

Pfc. Rayburn Wilson of Morehouse, Mo. is fulfilling a vital assignment with a special group selected from volunteers to serve with the 102nd (Ozark) Infantry Division (Reinforcement Training Unit) in the support of the national rifle and pistol matches conducted by the National Rifle Association at Camp Perry, Ohio, from Aug. 13 to 27.

The 102nd is one of the Army Reserve divisions chosen by the Department of the Army to augment the support for this "World Series of the shooting world" this year. The national matches bring together the most celebrated marksmen in the world and the competition with the rich tradition it has developed since 1907 requires a unique ability to complete a number of complex tasks to support it.

Men of the 102nd are operating ranges on which record marksmanship scores are drawing the attention of noted weapons designers and manufacturers. Some 1,100 from nearly every state are part of this special augmentation for the range support command. They will return to hometown Army Reserve volunteer functions Aug. 27.

ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

by LYNN TWITTY

Although we make every effort to encourage each student to select a program of study in relation to his ability and needs and to work to within reasonable limits of his ability, at some time during the later years of his or her's high school career the student must assume these responsibilities for himself. Teachers can encourage but the student must do the work.

Parents will sometimes tell teachers "make my child work." This we can not do. Teachers can assign the work and encourage the student to do it -- to inspire him in numerous ways -- and mark him on the quality of the work which he does, but "making" the student work is an impossibility.

It is fortunate that most students do assume responsibilities as they mature, physically and mentally, into adulthood. Some acquire a sense of responsibility and self direction even earlier. Some never do.

This is an area in which the parent can be most helpful. Their counseling with their child, their interests in scope and quality of his work, their encouragement and concern, their insistance on reasonable time devoted to it can be the deciding factor in most cases. We are always glad to work with students in bringing about these desirable outcomes but we can not "make" them do it.

School attendance gets better each year. Last year's school attendance has been better than 95%. Obviously it is of tremendous importance that a student be in school every day that school is in session. He can not participate unless he is present. It is difficult to make up this work which is missed. Only the exceptional student does it. We encourage parents to see that their children attend the first day of school and every day thereafter, if they are to receive the educational benefits to which they are entitled and for which the taxpayer is paying.

The educational programs which our Board of Education operates with federal funds will provide many services for the children and adults of the community which would not be possible if they had to be financed from local tax sources.

Not only do the federal funds aid the disadvantaged child or adult, which is their primary aim, but they also permit us to provide better education for all children through some of the services and specialists financed with federal tax money. All teachers or administrators employed to instruct in or manage these federally financed programs, are paid on exactly the same schedule in relation to qualifications, experience, and total hours assigned as are teachers who work in the regular day program grades 1-12.

Businessmen in the areas where community colleges have been established are unanimously of the opinion that these colleges have encouraged the growth of industry in the area and that the general business climate is improved. Much of northern Mississippi's recent industrial growth has been attributed to a parallel development of community colleges in their area. This is a desirable outcome in addition to the primary purpose for establishing community colleges -- that, of course, being to provide educational opportunities, both academic and most important vocational training opportunities to students above the high school level. Many of those who begin in a 2-year community college could not nor would not initially enroll in a 4-year college. This is because they can live at home and commute at much less expense and can in many cases hold down a job at the same time. Those who succeed in an academic program can then, and in most cases they do, transfer to a 4-year institution.

Of a total budget of $1,141,-189.35 spent by the Board of Education last year for the community educational program, only $632,776.22 was paid in direct current taxes by local taxpayers. The remainder of the budget came primarily from the state and federal government. Our per average pupil cost there was $397.63 for the 1965-66 school year. This includes all cost but capital outlay, the lunch and the activities programs. The average per pupil cost for the state of Missouri was near $500. The national average per pupil cost was about $560.

The seven schools in the state of Missouri which provide training for licensed practical nurses sent their graduates to Jefferson City last month to take the State Board Examination prior to receiving their license. Graduates from our program in Sikeston ranked first in average scores with all eighteen candidates scoring far above the mark required. The average score of the Sikeston candidates was 623.6 while the average of the next highest school was 586.7.

The passing score for each student was 350. None of our students scored below 540 while the highest individual score for the Sikeston trainees was 722.

We are proud of this outstanding record and offer our congratulations to the trainees and to our very capable director of LPN Training, Mrs. Claire Eisenbach and her assistants.

We assume that all of these trainees will receive immediate employment as has been the case with all members of past classes.

Flattered, the bass nodded and said, "And what can I do for you, madam?"

"Well, I seem to have lost my husband," she replied. "Would you be so kind as to call out 'Charlie!' at the top of your voice?"

Five-Mile Run Daily Healthy for Heart

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Perhaps the best way to avert a heart attack —or to survive one -- is to run five miles each day.

That's the opinion of a 51-year-old heart specialist who practices what he preaches. He runs about five miles every morning.

"The heart is a muscle, and it needs exercise like any other muscle to stay healthy," says Dr. Carleton B. Chapman.

The best exercise for the heart, he believes, is sustained running or riding a bicycle.

Dr. Chapman, who smokes an occasional filter cigarette, is a professor of medicine at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School at Dallas. He is immediate past president of the American Heart Association.

Dr. Chapman has been running regularly for 13 years, and he plans to continue idefinitely.

He makes the point that such exercise must be done daily or at least four or five times a week to be effective.

"Heavy exercise taken sporadically, or only once in a while, could do more harm than good" by sudden overloads on a flabby heart.

The key, then to treating a heart attack patient is what he calls "carefully graduated activity."

After a patient is able to get out of bed, Dr. Chapman has him walk a mile or two a day. This is stepped up to slow running or jogging a mile in the morning and a mile in the evening.

If all goes well, the patient gets into the routine in time of running, walking or riding a bicycle four or five miles a day.

"The important thing is a program of sensible stress on the circulatory system."

He said he began thinking about a possible correlation between inactivity and heart trouble when he learned that the death rate in the United States from coronary problems is five or six times what it is in Sweden, where people are considerably more active.

His thinking was spurred on by a study he read of in London, which said conductors on the double-decked buses have significantly less heart trouble than the drivers. The conductors are constantly climbing up and down the vehicle stairs, while the drivers just sit in a seat for hours.

"Being a scientist, I'm not in a position yet to say categorically that physical inactivity is related to coronary trouble. But I believe that it is," he said.

He added that one reason why American women suffer fewer heart attacks than their white-collar husbands is possibly that they are much more active doing housework and looking after children.

SENATE SEEKS FAIR MILITARY SERVICE AUTHORIZING LIMITED RESERVE CALL-UP

During times of relative peace, when our country is not engaged in actual hostilities, and when the military manpower pool is relatively large, the military service of a young man who is drafted is roughly equivalent to that of a young man who enlists in the Ready Reserve program.

The draftee serves on active duty for two years, then has a four - year reserve obligation.

Under the Ready Reserve enlistment program, a young man may enlist in the Reserves for a period of 6 years, six months of which is spent on active duty for training purposes.

Under present law, the Ready Reserves cannot be called to active duty unless the President declares a national emergency exists; and then members cannot be called individually, only in entire units.

When we are actually engaged in a shooting conflict, as at present, but no emergency has been declared, and no Reserve or National Guard units called, the burden is unequal. I say this after comparing a draftee, who is inducted and fights in Vietnam, with a Reserve enlistee whose active duty under present circumstances consists of 6 months training only.

In efforts to spread the military obligation on a more fair and just basis, the Senate has now passed a measure which gives the President authority to call individuals from the Ready Reserve without having to order an entire unit into service. If the House of Representatives concurs in these views of the Senate, the President would be authorized to order to active duty, for 24 months, individual members of the Ready Reserve who, except for their 6-month training program, have not otherwise served on active duty. Their six months of training would be counted as part of their 24 months of active duty.

The measure would apply to only about one - fourth of the Reserves, because only about 580,000 have not seen active service. Of these, there are some 133,000 who have not even had the six months of training duty required, this in turn because of the large influx of persons in the program and a shortage of Army training facilities.

In order to achieve fair treatment among the members of the Ready Reserve who might be called to active duty as individuals, the Senate proposal states that consideration should be given to both family responsibilities and the essential nature of the civilian employment of the reservist in question. Similar consideration is given eligible draftees under the Selective Service System.

Apart from the obvious reluctance on the part of the Administration to declare a national emergency, we are told that one reason no Reserve units have been called is because of the lop - sided effect it might have on certain communities. For example, a unit call-up could take as many as 200 or 250 men from a town of 800 or 900.

There would be much less impact on such a community if, say seven or eight men of a National Guard or Reserve unit were called. In all probability no more than that number would be called from a particular unit because the remainder would have already served on active duty, therefore would not be affected by the Senate - passed measure.

Senate action resulted from an amendment to the Defense Appropriations bill offered by Senator Richard Russell of Georgia, Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. The Senate adopted the amendment, 66 to 21. I supported it because I believe it offered a more fair and equitable program to the youth of America.

Cow Ponies Give Way to Motorcycles

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP) — The beep-beep and putt-putt of little cycles has replaced the pounding hooves of cow ponies at a livestock operation in this old West town.

A livestock sales pavilion has its cowboys riding the cycle trail instead of horses after learning that five gallons of gas takes a rider farther than a bale of hay.

It's cheaper, said a pavilion official, and much easier on the men.

"You wear out a horse pretty fast," said Frank Mapel Jr., a spokesman for the firm. "They get tired and they're hay burners."

Cattle brought in for sale are herded between scales, sales pens and "sold" pens by men on cycles.

One problem that has cropped up is that a cycle-mounted cowpoke isn't much taller than the cattle. Unable to see the herders, cattle sometimes turn and plunge back toward a drover.

In that event, the riders quickly abandon the cycle to the pounding hooves of cattle and take to the closest fence, just like in the days of yore.

The pavilion started using cycles three years ago and has worn out two motorcycles so far. The men are holding up well.

Cycles need few repairs, usually require only gasoline and oil, and never need a veterinarian.

"It costs 75 cents to a dollar a day to feed a horse," said Mapel. "I can't tell you how much it costs to operate one of these motorcycles, but five gallons of gas goes quite a ways."

Busy Month Expected in Viet Nam

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — In the view of some military men here, the North Vietnamese have taken over major fighting on the Communist side and may be expected to launch a new offensive before the monsoon season ends in the fall.

The expectation is for an active September on the war front, and for the Communists to do all they can to disrupt South Viet Nam's Sept. 11 election through military means, terror and sabotage.

This is the picture that emerges from people in a position to reckon the situation:

The North Vietnamese suffered military setbacks all over South Viet Nam in late June, July, and again this month, but are thought to be regrouping for a fresh drive in the central highlands while the moonsoon rains continue.

Hanoi continues to send troops south, mostly via the major infiltration route through Laos and some through the demilitarized zone separating North and South Viet Nam.

U.S. commanders can detect no change in Hanoi's war strategy nor any variation in tactics.

For this reason, they expect a highlands drive in an effort to achieve a long-sought goal —to sever South Viet Nam at its waist.

Five regiments of North Vietnamese regulars are known to be operating in the Chu Pong Mountains which straddle South Viet Nam and Cambodia at the central plateau border.

During late June, July and early August, U.S. troops launched a series of "spoiling actions" which hit some of these regiments before they could get a highlands drive off the ground. Notable among these actions were Operations Hawthorne and Paul Revere I and II.

The North Vietnamese now are thought to be regrouping and resupplying at the Cambodian border for a fresh rainy season attempt.

Long Calls For Banks to Aid Farmers

MEXICO, Mo. -- U. S. Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Mo) today said Congress must pass legislation to create rural electric and rural telephone banks "to assure the rural electric cooperatives of access to non-government growth capital in the years ahead."

The Senator spoke at the annual meeting of the Consolidated Electric Cooperation, which serves rural communities in Audrain, Monroe, Montgomery, Boone, and Fulton counties.

"During the next 15 year," Senator Long said, "the rural electrics will need $9.5 billion for new and improved facilities. This money is necessary if the rural electric cooperatives are to keep pace with the growing power needs of their consumer-members.

"The banks will ultimately be owned, operated, and controlled by the borrowers, whose capital would replace that provided by the federal government from repayments on existing Rural Electrification Administration loans."

Both Senate and House agriculture subcommittees have held public hearings on the bill which Senator Long co-sponsors, but neither subcommittee has given final approval.

Senator Long said: "history shows that depressed agriculture has a depressing effect on the entire national economy. Farmers are among the best customers for the goods and services of American industry."

"During the next 15 year," Senator Long said, "the rural electrics will need $9.5 billion for new and improved facilities. This money is necessary if the rural electric cooperatives are to keep pace with the growing power needs of their consumer-members.

"The banks will ultimately be owned, operated, and controlled by the borrowers, whose capital would replace that provided by the federal government from repayments on existing Rural Electrification Administration loans."

Both Senate and House agriculture subcommittees have held public hearings on the bill which Senator Long co-sponsors, but neither subcommittee has given final approval.

Senator Long said; "history shows that depressed agriculture has a depressing effect on the entire national economy. Farmers are among the best customers for the goods and services of American industry."

STILL ON THE WEDDING CIRCUIT, newlyweds Luci and Pat Nugent were on hand for the marriage of Patsy Derby, a distant relative of Luci's, at the Georgetown Presbyterian Church in Washington Aug. 21. It was the second stint as a bridesmaid in two days for Luci, who took part in the wedding of one of her own bridesmaids in Austin, Tex., the day before.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

THE COSTS OF SECRECY

The present great system of governmental secrecy and its concomitants of intelligence and counter-espionage have had adverse effects upon both the individual and the political freedoms of Americans which are obvious, though also, unfortunately, non-measurable. It has had some effect in hampering free scientific enquiry. This limits the individual freedom of the scientist to pursue his goal of ascertaining truth; it restricts the political liberties of the rest of us to enjoy, in our own defense, the fruits of an alert and powerful scientific advance. It clogs to some extent our technological progress. It reduces the individual liberty of the armaments manufacturer to advertise his wares, and secure acceptance of his products; it adds to his managerial difficulties and his costs. It is probable that for some scientific-technical defense projects, as much as one-third or more of the money costs may be absorbed by the direct and indirect requirements of security. If, as is generally the case, the money costs are passed back to the taxpayer, then they reduce his individual liberties by that extent, while they diminish his political liberties-his interest in defense-by the extent to which they hold up technological deveopment of improved weapons systems.

Secrecy has personal and social consequences which are not negligible: The classified research contract divides academic communities, reduces their freedom of thought and communication, introduces the great class distinction between the "cleared" and the "uncleared." It erects barriers within the most intimate of social organisms, the family, by dividing husband from wife. Probably few who have not engaged in top secret work can appreciate the personal and social and educational consequences of a situation in which a husband cannot even mention to his wife or children the matters which engage his whole working time and energy.

Secrecy affects the political liberties of all. It closes off, not only the operations of the secret agencies, but the work of the most important organs of public policy formation from the scrutiny of the public for whom they profess to act. The classification system was recently defended by a government spokesman on the ground that after all it made little difference, since most of its secrets, while hidden from the public, were disclosed to the public's representatives in executive sessions of the Congressional committees. The representatives could adequately guard whatever public interest there might be in the information. This, of course, quite overlooks the important public interest in checking upon the representatives; it is another example of the tendency of modern big government to revert to authoritarian concepts which, while acceptable in the early days of parliamentary and representative institutions, when legislative sessions were normally secret, seem hardly consonant with the free society of today.

No Wonder Dog Became Lost

PHILADELPHIA (AP) --When Jim Stockton found a lost dog he decided to find its owner.

Reading an inoculation tag on the dog's collar, he called a veterinarian in Los Angeles. The vet told Stockton the dog's owner had moved to Bethpage, N.Y. When he called there, Stockton was told the owners had moved to Plainview, N.Y.

He called Plainview but the owner, J. F. Brennan, had moved again.

This time Stockton found him -- just two blocks from his home here.

(OMAHA): WHY NOT COLOR HIM FRACTURED?

It happened in Council Bluff's: Mrs. B. had a bit of an argument with her husband on the subject of paint for the living room. He wanted beige. She wanted pale blue.

Later, a resigned Mr. B., with pail of pale blue paint in hand, stepped up on a stool and began to work.

The stool wasn't as strong as it looked. It collaspsed. Mr. B. fell flat on his back. The pail tipped over, covering him with paint from head to foot.

Hearing the crash, Mrs. B. hurried in from the kitchen. Her look of concern slowly faded when she saw the paint. She gazed at it for several seconds.

"You know, honey," she said, "I think you're right. Let's try the beige."

"SCHOOL'S OPEN," REMINDS THE AUTO CLUB OF MISSOURI

The population explosion means more children than ever before will be making the journey to the classroom this Fall. This is why the Automobile Club of Missouri is launching its 34th annual "School's Open" campaign by reminding motorists to "Drive Carefully."

Many children will be attending school for the first time, unaware of the hazards in crossing congested intersections, streets and highways. "After a summer of fun and play," said Auto Club Safety Director Stan Keesling, "children sometimes forget to exercise that extra degree of caution necessary when going to and from school, and it is up to the motorist to watch out for children."

In stressing the need for all drivers to be "child alert" this Fall, especially in the vicinity of schools and playgrounds, the Auto Club will post 14,000 posters and will distribute 20,000 bumper strips throughout its territory. In addition, the "School's Open" safety message will be carried on motel and shopping center marquees and on the side panels of milk cartons.

Mr. Keesling urges all drivers to cooperate with members of the School Safety Patrol in protecting their classmates. He points out the need for increased safety consciousness on the part of motorists in areas where there are no School Safety Patrols or other means of protection provided to safeguard school children.

Cooperating with the Auto Club in the Fall Safety campaign are city and police officials, school authorities and AAA garages and service stations throughout the area.

Help make this September the safest back-to-school month ever. Remember, "School's Open — Drive Carefully."

Dow-Jones Plunge Watched Closely by Small Investors

by SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK AP -- The plunge of the stock market has been called a crisis in investor confidence. The drop of the Dow-Jones Industrial average below the 800 mark could be a psychological setback. That's because stock market watchers -- whether shareowners or not -- put faith in these neat round numbers.

It does little good to tell the general public that Monday's drop of 12.59 points in the index of 30 leading industrial stocks is not an average drop of $12.59 per share by any means, but less than $1.25. Nor will the public turn to other indexes tailored to come closer to actual dollar values in recording upswings and downturns.

What the public notes is that just six months ago the Dow industrial was pushing close to a fantastic figure of 1,000 and has now dropped more than 200 points —somewhat mysteriously, since business statistics continue to climb. The long flirtation of the Dow industrials with the 800 mark --first on the uptick in the earlier years, and now on the downswing -- captured public fancy.

It was Feb. 28, 1964, that the Dow industrial index finally closed above the 800 mark for the first time, after repeated near-misses. And from then until this spring the bulls had things pretty much their way with the Dow going to 995.15 on Feb. 9 this year. But they couldn't push the Dow to the mystic 1,000 point, despite general public expectation. And the bears have finally shoved it below 800.

What the public will note about the behavior of the Dow industrial average Monday was that the 12.59 point plunge wasn't just a tilt caused by one or two weak sisters. Of the 30 stocks on the index, 20 hit new low prices for the year. And the other 10 were well below their record highs.

How the small investor and the general public reacts will be watched closely.

The market professionals also watch the Dow's performance, but with a difference. Many are now saying that technically the market seems oversold. And the big drop, along with heavier trading, may be setting a base from which at least a temporary recovery can be expected.

Investor confidence has been shaken since spring by the many uncertainties clouding the future trend of the economy. But of late the big bearish element has been tight money. This has pinched the home building industry, may have contributed to the drop in auto sales, and clouds prospects for future corporate profits.

With interest rates at the highest point in 40 years, investors are turning to opportunities offering bigger returns with less risk than do most common stocks. And the difficulties investors have in guessing the course of the Viet Nam war makes stock buying less attractive.

"SCHOOL'S OPEN," REMINDS THE AUTO CLUB OF MISSOURI

The population explosion means more children than ever before will be making the journey to the classroom this Fall. This is why the Automobile Club of Missouri is launching its 34th annual "School's Open" campaign by reminding motorists to "Drive Carefully."

Many children will be attending school for the first time, unaware of the hazards in crossing congested intersections, streets and highways. "After a summer of fun and play," said Auto Club Safety Director Stan Keesling, "children sometimes forget to exercise that extra degree of caution necessary when going to and from school, and it is up to the motorist to watch out for children."

In stressing the need for all drivers to be "child alert" this Fall, especially in the vicinity of schools and playgrounds, the Auto Club will post 14,000 posters and will distribute 20,000 bumper strips throughout its territory. In addition, the "School's Open" safety message will be carried on motel and shopping center marquees and on the side panels of milk cartons.

Mr. Keesling urges all drivers to cooperate with members of the School Safety Patrol in protecting their classmates. He points out the need for increased safety consciousness on the part of motorists in areas where there are no School Safety Patrols or other means of protection provided to safeguard school children.

Cooperating with the Auto Club in the Fall Safety campaign are city and police officials, school authorities and AAA garages and service stations throughout the area.

Help make this September the safest back-to-school month ever. Remember, "School's Open — Drive Carefully."

Dow-Jones Plunge Watched Closely by Small Investors

by SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK AP -- The plunge of the stock market has been called a crisis in investor confidence. The drop of the Dow-Jones Industrial average below the 800 mark could be a psychological setback. That's because stock market watchers -- whether shareowners or not -- put faith in these neat round numbers.

It does little good to tell the general public that Monday's drop of 12.59 points in the index of 30 leading industrial stocks is not an average drop of $12.59 per share by any means, but less than $1.25. Nor will the public turn to other indexes tailored to come closer to actual dollar values in recording upswings and downturns.

What the public notes is that just six months ago the Dow industrial was pushing close to a fantastic figure of 1,000 and has now dropped more than 200 points —somewhat mysteriously, since business statistics continue to climb. The long flirtation of the Dow industrials with the 800 mark --first on the uptick in the earlier years, and now on the downswing -- captured public fancy.

It was Feb. 28, 1964, that the Dow industrial index finally closed above the 800 mark for the first time, after repeated near-misses. And from then until this spring the bulls had things pretty much their way with the Dow going to 995.15 on Feb. 9 this year. But they couldn't push the Dow to the mystic 1,000 point, despite general public expectation. And the bears have finally shoved it below 800.

What the public will note about the behavior of the Dow industrial average Monday was that the 12.59 point plunge wasn't just a tilt caused by one or two weak sisters. Of the 30 stocks on the index, 20 hit new low prices for the year. And the other 10 were well below their record highs.

How the small investor and the general public reacts will be watched closely.

The market professionals also watch the Dow's performance, but with a difference. Many are now saying that technically the market seems oversold. And the big drop, along with heavier trading, may be setting a base from which at least a temporary recovery can be expected.

Investor confidence has been shaken since spring by the many uncertainties clouding the future trend of the economy. But of late the big bearish element has been tight money. This has pinched the home building industry, may have contributed to the drop in auto sales, and clouds prospects for future corporate profits.

With interest rates at the highest point in 40 years, investors are turning to opportunities offering bigger returns with less risk than do most common stocks. And the difficulties investors have in guessing the course of the Viet Nam war makes stock buying less attractive.

It is an odorless, tasteless mineral poison that may be fed to rats in doses too small to be harmful to human beings or domestic animals.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My aunt owns some pretty good show horses and she is a fair horsewoman herself. When her husband died three years ago she worked out her grief by devoting all her time and energy to the horses.

Yesterday her favorite horse fell in a hole, broke two legs and had to be destroyed. Auntie went to pieces. She called the family together and it was like a wake. When she started to outline her plans I could not believe it. She wanted to have a regular funeral for the horse, a minister, flowers, hearse and the works. We all told her it was out of the question. She replied, "That horse had finer qualities than most people I know. If I want to bury him like a friend why should anyone object?"

Well, the mortician refused to haul the horse in the hearse and the minister not only refused to conduct a service but he told my aunt she should get psychiatric help. The woman insists that the whole world is against her and announced that she is resigning from the church.

I walked out of the meeting in disgust and so did my sister. We've already been severely criticized for our "lack of compassion." What is your opinion? -- P.N.G.

Dear P.N.G.: The minister gave your aunt excellent advice. I hope she takes it.

I can understand people grieving at the loss of animals to whom they have become attached, but the idea of asking that a horse be buried from a church is so bizarre that only a sick person would suggest it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 16 who used to think your column was for laughts. Now I need to see my letter and your answer in the paper and believe me I am not laughing.

Last night dad spilled some food on the stove. Mom looked at me and said, "Dad spilled something. Clean it up." I reminded mom that the rule was that the person who spills has to clean it up himself.

Dad got mad and yelled. "You don't do anything around here so shut up. You ought to clean up after everybody."

Stuff like this burns me. Do parents have the right to change the rules to suit themselves just because they are parents? I wish you would settle this in the paper because I'll bet other kids are having the same problem.--YUMA

Dear Yuma: When a parent makes a rule for all members of the family there should be no exceptions. Children who figure they are being treated unfairly feel betrayed. Their hurt often turns to anger and hostility.

Parenthood does, of course, mean privileges, but breaking one's word is not one of them.

Almost daily rains in the peach growing area of Kennett, plus the short market demand for other than peaches sold on the local market is causing concern among the growers. The week of Aug. 27 should terminate the peach harvest other than a few late peaches. As a result of a slow market the supply of labor has been sufficient to take care of growers' needs.

Farm labor supply and demand is in balance for the Cape Girardeau office area. Cannery labor for Wisconsin is needed.

Farmers in the Caruthersville area are repairing their cotton pickers and getting their trailers ready for the picking season. Heavy rains have begun to plague farmers.

Cotton picking will probably be delayed for a week or more due to the rains. There is a light demand for full - time farm hands. There is a scarcity of good help throughout that area.

For Today From The Upper Room

He took Peter, John, and James with him and went up into the hills to pray. (Luke 9:28, NEB) PRAYER: Our Father, we feel Jesus so near when we remember that He sat by a lake, ascended mountains, watched sunsets, loved trees and flowers. ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My aunt owns some pretty good show horses and she is a fair horsewoman herself. When her husband died three years ago she worked out her grief by devoting all her time and energy to the horses.

Yesterday her favorite horse fell in a hole, broke two legs and had to be destroyed. Auntie went to pieces. She called the family together and it was like a wake. When she started to outline her plans I could not believe it. She wanted to have a regular funeral for the horse, a minister, flowers, hearse and the works. We all told her it was out of the question. She replied, "That horse had finer qualities than most people I know. If I want to bury him like a friend why should anyone object?"

Well, the mortician refused to haul the horse in the hearse and the minister not only refused to conduct a service but he told my aunt she should get psychiatric help. The woman insists that the whole world is against her and announced that she is resigning from the church.

I walked out of the meeting in disgust and so did my sister. We've already been severely criticized for our "lack of compassion." What is your opinion? -- P.N.G.

Dear P.N.G.: The minister gave your aunt excellent advice. I hope she takes it.

I can understand people grieving at the loss of animals to whom they have become attached, but the idea of asking that a horse be buried from a church is so bizarre that only a sick person would suggest it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 16 who used to think your column was for laughts. Now I need to see my letter and your answer in the paper and believe me I am not laughing.

Dad made up a rule for all the members of the family. He said, "Anyone who spills food or drinks has to clean it up himself." Whenever I spill anything dad is the first one to point it out to me. Last night dad spilled some food on the stove. Mom looked at me and said, "Dad spilled something. Clean it up." I reminded mom that the rule was that the person who spills has to clean it up himself.

Dad got mad and yelled. "You don't do anything around here so shut up. You ought to clean up after everybody."

Stuff like this burns me. Do parents have the right to change the rules to suit themselves just because they are parents? I wish you would settle this in the paper because I'll bet other kids are having the same problem.--YUMA

Dear Yuma: When a parent makes a rule for all members of the family there should be no exceptions. Children who figure they are being treated unfairly feel betrayed. Their hurt often turns to anger and hostility.

Parenthood does, of course, mean privileges, but breaking one's word is not one of them.

owed the rest.

France-Soir, biggest newspaper in France, bannerlined, "De Gaulle has decided to say everything he thinks on Viet Nam," What that was, however, remained a secret.

Besides stressing French interest in its old Southeast Asian empire, De Gaulle also plans a demonstration of France's interest in the new world of nuclear diplomacy.

If atmospheric conditions are right, he is expected to watch a French atomic test at the proving grounds near Tahiti.

His visits to Djibouti—first stop on the tour—and Addis Ababa are expected to involve discussions of the future of French Somaliland on the Red Sea. Both independent Somailland and Ethiopia claim this last French-ruled land in Africa.

De Gaulle, 75, appeared in good health as he left Paris—an important factor in view of the tropical temperatures he faces during most of the 19-day journey. Wearing his general's uniform, he saluted an honor guard and stood at attention while a military band played the Marseillaise.

He made no public statement, but chatted with Premier Georges Pompidieu and others who came to see him off.

Spending in Viet Nam Defended

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. AP -- Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey defended today American expenditures in Viet Nam as a wedge against a wider war and warned of a resurgence of isolationism in the nation.

At the same time he chided administration critics who say the war effort is impeding domestic programs.

He said he has heard recently "otherwise responsible Americans" declare the nation ought to take the money and resources being spent in Viet Nam and transfer them to domestic programs.

"I say that to do so would require, in a few months or years, the investment of far more money, men and resources to Southeast Asia -- and possibly to other parts of the world -- than we have committed today and at a far greater danger to all of us," Humphrey said in a speech prepared for delivery to the 71st national convention of the Jewish War Veterans.

The 2,000 delegates attending the sessions Wednesday declared their support of President Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

tional election campaign, called for a large turnout of voters Sept. 11 but warned of an increase in Communist terrorism crease in Communist terrorism aimed at disrupting the elections.

The 146 missions flown against the Communist North exceeded the previous record set earlier this month by seven.

An official U.S. spokesman would not disclose the number of sorties—individual plane strikes—involved, but acknowledged that they were the highest so far in the war. This would probably run from 400 to 500 forays.

American pilots claimed heavy destruction. Four of 18 oil storage depots attacked were damaged and several others probably hit but smoke and dust prevented an accurate assessment.

Most of the attacks were concentrated in the Southern Panhandle and just north of the demilitarized zone. Only one raid was made in the Hanoi area—against an oil depot 18 miles from the Communist capital with results not announced.

The Air Force flew 71 missions, Navy pilots 68 and U.S. Marines seven.

Today's ground action followed two engagements 90 miles apart in the northern section of South Viet Nam by U.S. Marines Wednesday. They reported 211 Communist dead and said they suffered only light casualties themselves.

nism and antisocialism and those opposed to the thoughts of Mao Tze-tung, Communist China's leader.

Japanese correspondents in the Communist Chinese capital reported they also put a bust of Mao Tze-tung in the school and plastered its walls with signs reading "Get out, foreign devils," and "Chase out the running dogs of imperialism."

The Red Guards and adults backing them blocked the school doors and made it impossible to hold classes.

The Sacred Heart Academy, almost 100 years old, has not been under the jurisdiction of the Chinese Communist government.

The teen-agers continued to surge through the streets howling for reforms which ranged from renaming Peking "The East is Red" - Tung Fang Hung --to the abolition of Chinese checkers and Western chess.

The Catholic school, said to be one of the few remaining still run by foreigners, is attended by children of foreign residents in Peking.

(LOUISVILLE): BRADSHAW LIKEE

Don't ask Charley Bradshaw, University of Kentucky football coach, to converse even a little bit in pigeon English. After an incident that occurred some years back when he attended a banquet while coaching at Ala., he's sworn off everything except the straight mother tongue.

Seated next to Bradshaw at the head table was a young man dressed in Oriental garb. After the meal started, Bradshaw felt he ought to try to strike up a conversation.

"You likee soup?" he asked.

The Oriental didn't say a word. But when it came time for the banquet speaking, it turned out he was it, and his speech was delivered in flawless English. As the speaker passed Bradshaw on his way back to his seat, he leaned over and whispered:

"You likee speech?"

Field Day at Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- Results and progress on agricultural research will be reported Sept. 1 during a field day at the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville, according to Norman Brown, superintendent.

The field day will feature reports on latest developments in studies of crops, soils, irrigation, and weed and insect control.

Of particular interest to farmers in Southeast Missouri will be the studies on corn virus, a disease which has been causing heavy crop losses in some fields.

The field day starts at 9:30 a.m.

Tours will be conducted around the research plots at the Delta center. University of Missouri researchers will be present to explain the research.

The tours will continue into the afternoon with lunch available at the center.

Included in the research underway at the center, Brown reports, are studies of soil fertility requirements of cotton, corn, and soybeans.

Varieties and strains of cotton and soybeans will be shown in the plant breeding plots.

The cotton date-of-planting studies will also be on view for field day visitors.

Studies of both insect and weed control in corn, cotton, and soybeans will be reported.

At another part of the center, results of irrigation of cotton will be on display.

owed the rest.

France-Soir, biggest newspaper in France, bannerlined, "De Gaulle has decided to say everything he thinks on Viet Nam," What that was, however, remained a secret.

Besides stressing French interest in its old Southeast Asian empire, De Gaulle also plans a demonstration of France's interest in the new world of nuclear diplomacy.

If atmospheric conditions are right, he is expected to watch a French atomic test at the proving grounds near Tahiti.

His visits to Djibouti—first stop on the tour—and Addis Ababa are expected to involve discussions of the future of French Somaliland on the Red Sea. Both independent Somaliland and Ethiopia claim this last French-ruled land in Africa.

De Gaulle, 75, appeared in good health as he left Paris—an important factor in view of the tropical temperatures he faces during most of the 19-day journey. Wearing his general's uniform, he saluted an honor guard and stood at attention while a military band played the Marseillaise.

He made no public statement, but chatted with Premier Georges Pompidieu and others who came to see him off.

Spending in Viet Nam Defended

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. AP -- Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey defended today American expenditures in Viet Nam as a wedge against a wider war and warned of a resurgence of isolationism in the nation.

At the same time he chided administration critics who say the war effort is impeding domestic programs.

He said he has heard recently "otherwise responsible Americans" declare the nation ought to take the money and resources being spent in Viet Nam and transfer them to domestic programs.

"I say that to do so would require, in a few months or years, the investment of far more money, men and resources to Southeast Asia -- and possibly to other parts of the world -- than we have committed today and at a far greater danger to all of us," Humphrey said in a speech prepared for delivery to the 71st national convention of the Jewish War Veterans.

The 2,000 delegates attending the sessions Wednesday declared their support of President Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

tional election campaign, called for a large turnout of voters Sept. 11 but warned of an increase in Communist terrorism crease in Communist terrorism aimed at disrupting the elections.

The 146 missions flown against the Communist North exceeded the previous record set earlier this month by seven.

An official U.S. spokesman would not disclose the number of sorties—individual plane strikes—involved, but acknowledged that they were the highest so far in the war. This would probably run from 400 to 500 forays.

American pilots claimed heavy destruction. Four of 18 oil storage depots attacked were damaged and several others probably hit but smoke and dust prevented an accurate assessment.

Most of the attacks were concentrated in the Southern Panhandle and just north of the demilitarized zone. Only one raid was made in the Hanoi area—against an oil depot 18 miles from the Communist capital with results not announced.

The Air Force flew 71 missions, Navy pilots 68 and U.S. Marines seven.

Today's ground action followed two engagements 90 miles apart in the northern section of South Viet Nam by U.S. Marines Wednesday. They reported 211 Communist dead and said they suffered only light casualties themselves.

Japanese correspondents in the Communist Chinese capital reported they also put a bust of Mao Tze-tung in the school and plastered its walls with signs reading "Get out, foreign devils," and "Chase out the running dogs of imperialism."

The Red Guards and adults backing them blocked the school doors and made it impossible to hold classes.

The Sacred Heart Academy, almost 100 years old, has not been under the jurisdiction of the Chinese Communist government.

The teen-agers continued to surge through the streets howling for reforms which ranged from renaming Peking "The East is Red" - Tung Fang Hung --to the abolition of Chinese checkers and Western chess.

The Catholic school, said to be one of the few remaining still run by foreigners, is attended by children of foreign residents in Peking.

(LOUISVILLE): BRADSHAW LIKEE

Don't ask Charley Bradshaw, University of Kentucky football coach, to converse even a little bit in pigeon English. After an incident that occurred some years back when he attended a banquet while coaching at Ala., he's sworn off everything except the straight mother tongue.

Seated next to Bradshaw at the head table was a young man dressed in Oriental garb. After the meal started, Bradshaw felt he ought to try to strike up a conversation.

"You likee soup?" he asked.

The Oriental didn't say a word. But when it came time for the banquet speaking, it turned out he was it, and his speech was delivered in flawless English. As the speaker passed Bradshaw on his way back to his seat, he leaned over and whispered:

"You likee speech?"

Field Day at Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- Results and progress on agricultural research will be reported Sept. 1 during a field day at the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville, according to Norman Brown, superintendent.

The field day will feature reports on latest developments in studies of crops, soils, irrigation, and weed and insect control.

Of particular interest to farmers in Southeast Missouri will be the studies on corn virus, a disease which has been causing heavy crop losses in some fields.

The field day starts at 9:30 a.m.

Tours will be conducted around the research plots at the Delta center. University of Missouri researchers will be present to explain the research.

The tours will continue into the afternoon with lunch available at the center.

Included in the research underway at the center, Brown reports, are studies of soil fertility requirements of cotton, corn, and soybeans.

Varieties and strains of cotton and soybeans will be shown in the plant breeding plots.

The cotton date-of-planting studies will also be on view for field day visitors.

Studies of both insect and weed control in corn, cotton, and soybeans will be reported.

At another part of the center, results of irrigation of cotton will be on display.

The corn viruses are being studied by scientists from both field crops and entomology, Brown reports. The entomologists are stuyding the insects which transmit the disease and plant breeders are attempting to develop resistant varieties.

An exhibit of farm machinery will be set up for the field day by dealers in the area.

The Delta center is located just south of Portageville on U. S. Highway 61.

The experimental fields where the tours will be conducted are seven miles southeast of Portageville on Route T. Visitors are directed to go two miles south of Portageville on Highway 61 and then five miles east on Route T to the junction of Route TT.
